

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

QUEEN ANNE.

295. SIDLEY, of Southfleet, Kent.

Created Baronet, July 10, 1702.

HIS family (of very good antiquity in the county of Kent) was anciently feated near Romney Marsh, where there are lands now called Sidley's and Sidley's Marsh; they afterwards, temp. Ed. III. built a mansion house at Sedbury in Southsteet in the said county. Philpot, in his Villare Cantiarum, takes notice that their arms were in the old hall there, and the date 1337.

John Sidley was lord of the manor of Southsteet, and also of Mortimer in the county of Kent. Philpot, in his Villare, page 126, says, that this manor went from the Mortimers to the Englefields of Berks, and in that Baronet family it continued till alienated the latter end of Hen. VII. to the said John Sidley, Esq; auditor to that Prince. He married three wives, 1. Elizabeth, daughter and coheir of Roger Jenks of London. 2. Elizabeth, daughter to John Cotton of Hampsall-ridware, in the county of Stafford, Esq. Third wife, Agnes, daughter and heir to John Wyborne of Hakewell in Kent, Esq; but he left issue only by his second wise. 1. William Sidley, of South fleet, son and heir. 2. Martin Sidley, of Morley in Norfolk (from whom Thomas Sidley, LL.D. member for Limington); he married the daughter and heir of Mountney of Mountneyfing in Essex, whose son Martin married Bridget, daughter of Sir John Pettus, Bart. and was father to John Sidley, who Vol. III. bsirrem married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir William Spring, Bart. 3

Dorothy Sidley, a nun at Dartford.

The said William Sidley was high sheriff of Kent, 1. Edw. VI. 1597, and married Anne, daughter and heir to Roger Groves of London, and had issue, 1. John Sidley; 2. Robert Sidley, married Elizabeth, daughter to George Darrell, of Calchill in Kent, Esq. 3. Nicholas Sidley, married Jane, daughter and heir of Edward Isaack, Esq; whose son, Sir Isaac Sidley, of Great Chart, in Kent, was created a Baronet, Sept. 14, 1621. 19 Jac. I. and had issue. 4. Frances, wife of Thomas Hyde, Esq. 5. Elizabeth, wife of John Culpeper, of Wigshill, in Kent, Esq.

John Sidley of Southfleet, aforesaid, was high sheriff of Kent, 9 Eliz. and had issue by Anne, daughter of John Culpeper, of Alisford, in Kent, who appears to be allied to William Wickham, bishop of Winchester, the sounder of New College, in Oxford; as the Culpepers are, who married Edwin Sandys, uncle to lord Sandys.

Sir William Sidley, eldest son and heir of the said John, was created a Baronet, May 22, 1611. 9 Jac. I. He was sounder of the Sidleian Lecture of Natural Philosophy at Oxford, 1621; and he resided at the Friars at Rilessord, the sair habitation, saith Dr. Holland, (in his additions to Camden) of Sir William Sidley, painfully and expensively studious of the common good of his country, as both his endowed house for the poor, and the bridge there, with the common voice, do testify. He married Elizabeth, daughter and coheir of Stephen Darrell, of Spel-mander, in Kent, widow of Henry, lord Abergaveny.

Sir John Sidley, fon and heir of Sir William, of Southfleet and St. Clairs, in Ightam, and Ailesford, in Kent, married Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Sir Henry Savile, (great uncle to the earl of Mixborough) provost of Eton, warden of Merton college, and founder of the Astronomy Professorship at Oxford, and left issue three sons, who succeeded to the title and estate. 1. Sir Henry Sidley, died unmarried. 2. Sir William Sidley, of whom it is faid, in Ant. Wood's life, p. 582, (prefixed to the arms of Thomas Cay) that when he was a young man, he lived very high in London, with his friend Robert Dormer, cf Rousham, in Oxfordshire, Esq; (whose wise was Anne, one of the daughters of Sir Charles Cotterell, mafter of the ceremonies) and they endeavoured who should outvie each other in gallantry, and in splendid coaches. He died unmarried, and was succeeded by his brother; 3. Sir Charles Sidley, the posthumous son, who obtained a great name in the world of gallantry; was admitted of Wadham college, in Oxford, 1656, at the age of 17, and on his quitting the university, he retired to his own country till the nation was fet at liberty, and freed from the severity of the usurpers, at the Restoration; when he came to London to join in the general jubilee, he commenced wit, courtier, poet, and gallant, and he was so much applauded, that he began to be the oracle of the poets, and it was by his judgment every performance was approved or condemned; which made the king jest with him, and tell him that nature had given him a patent to be Apollo's vice-roy. Lord Rochester bears testimony of this, when he puts him foremost among the judges of poetry; and his abilities further appear in the poems, letters, and speeches, he left behind him in print and manuscript. The king delighted in his conversation; and he was the dearer to him on this account, that he never asked any favours. He was deeply immersed in the public distraction of the times, as the gay life he led drew him into many frolics with his affociates, Charles lord Buckhurst, Sir Thomas Ogle, &c. but afterwards he took a more ferious turn, and he began to apply himself to the study of politics, by which he might be of some service to his country: he was chosen, says Anth. Wood, a recruiter of the long parliament which began at Westminster the 8th of May, 1661, to serve for New Romney; and fat in three parliaments, fince the diffolution of that, when he died, Aug. 20, 1701, and his title became extinct. He was exceeding active in the Revolution, which was thought the more extraordinary, as he had received favours from King James the Second. That prince, it feems, had fallen in love with Sir Charles's only daughter and heir (for he had no other legitimate issue) which was by Catharine, third daughter to John Savage, Earl Rivers. The faid Catharine his daughter, in confequence of his intrigues with her, and in order to give her the greater lustre, was created for life (Jan. 20. 1 Jac. II. 1685) Counters of Dorchester, and Baroness of Darlington, in Durham. This honour, so far from pleasing, greatly shocked Sir Charles, who could not bear the thoughts of his daughter's dishonour, and looked upon her exaltation as rendering her more conspicuously infamous. Vide his life in Biog. Brit. vol. VI. p. 3603. He therefore conceived a hatred for King James, and readily joined to disposses him of his throne: and being asked one day, why he appeared so warm against the king, who had created his daughter a Counters, replied, it was from a principle of gratitude; for, fays he, fince his Majesty has made my daughter a Countess, it is fit I should do all I can to make his daughter a Queen. The Countess married Sir David Collier, Knight, (created Baron Portmore, and afterwards Earl of Portmore, by King Wm. III.) and by her had iffue two fons, of which the eldest, David, Lord Missington, married Bridget Bridget Noel, niece to Lord Camden, and left no iffue; fecond, Charles, who married Juliana, Duchess Dowager of Leeds, whose daughter and coheir, Carolina, married Nathanael Curzon, Lord Scarsdale; and Juliana, her second daughter, married Henry Dawkins, Esq; but before her marriage she had two natural children by King James II.—a fon, who died an infant, and a daughter, named Catherine Darnley, first married, March, 1600, to James, Earl of Anglesey, by whom he had Catherine Annesley, his only daughter and heir, who married William Phipps, father to Constantine, now Lord Mulgrave; but, being divorced from the Earl of Anglesey by act of parliament, the married, secondly, to John Sheffield, Duke of Buckingham, and had issue by him, 1. Robert, marquis of Normanby, who died Feb. 1, 1714, aged 17; second son, Edmund, the last duke of Buckinghamshire. He went a volunteer under his uncle, the Duke of Brunswick, to Germany, whom he served as aid-de-camp at the sieges of Fort Keel and Philipsburgh, till the marshal lost his head by a cannon ball, from the walls of the latter. He died at Rome, of a hasty consumption, Oct. 30, 1735, aged 19; and his body being brought to England, was conveyed to Waltham-abbey, with the like funeral solemnity as that of his father. The duchess died, 1742, at Buckingham House, in St. James's Park, (now the Queen's Palace) and was buried with her husband and her two fons, in the Abbey, where the effigies of them are in wax work. The aforesaid John, Duke of Buckingham, had also issue by Mrs. Lambert, 1. Charles Herbert, who took the name of Sheffield by order of the duke, and was created a Baronet, March 1, 1755, and married the daughter of General Sabine; 2. Charlotta Herbert, married Dr. Walker, Dean of Burien; after to Jeremiah Griffith, counsellor at law; 2. Catharine Sophia Herbert, married Dr. Hunt, master of Baliol College, in Oxford; after to - Cox, of Stanford, Berks, Esq; by whom she has a son, Captain Cox, equerry to the Duke of Gloucester; and two daughters, one married to the Hon. Dr. Digby, Dean of Worcester, brother to Lord Digby, and the other to Colonel Grant.

We now turn to the issue of John Sidley, and Anne Culpeper, his wife, viz.

John Sidley, second son, of Southfleet; of whom prefently. Richard Sidley, third fon, lord of the manor of North-hall, or Northaw, in Hertfordshire, temp. Jac. I. which he purchased from Lord Russel, Earl of Bedford, as appears from Chauncy's history of that county, p. 501. He married Elizabeth, daughter of John Darrell of Calehill, Founder's kin at All-soul's college, Oxford, and had iffue, William Sidley, his fon and heir, whose first wife, Anne, was one of the heirs of Henry Butler, of London, Esq; she died April 1, 1647, and was buried at Digswell, in Hertfordshire; leaving issue, Anne Sidley, daughter and coheir, who married John Nourse, of Woodeaton, in the county of Oxford, Esq; She died in childhed, Aug. 30, 1669, aged 34, and was buried there. Her epitaph is printed in Le Neve's Monument. Angl. She had iffue, 1. Richard Nourse, who died young. 2. John Nourse, died young, unmarried. 2. Martha, married Robert Pitt, of Blandford, in Dorfetshire, M. D. (whose sister was mother to Dr. Lowth, Bishop of Oxford); his daughter Martha married Sir George Bridges Skipwith, Bart. 4. Elizabeth, wife of Charles Harris, of Oxford, whose only son, Charles Harris, was a countellor at law; and her daughter, Elizabeth Harris, married James Bouchier, of Harborough, the King's professor of law, at Oxford, by whom she left iffue, Thomas Bouchier, Esq; and Elizabeth, the wife of Joseph Smith, of Oxford, Esq; 5. Susanna, married Dr. Thomas Craddock, rector of Slimbridge, in Gloucestershire. 6. Mary, wife of Dutton Seaman, of Rotherby, in Leicestershire, whose only son, Dutton Seaman, of Rotherby, is comptroller of the city of London, and has iffue three fons and one daughter.

It appears, according to the epitaph in Digswell church, inferted in Salmon's history of Hertfordshire, p. 209, that the faid William Sidley, son of Richard, died in June, 1658, and that his second wife was Mary, daughter of Sir Robert Honeywood, of Pett in Charing, Kent, by Mary his wife, daughter and coheir of Robert Waters, of Lenham, in Kent, who, it is recorded, had, at her decease, lawfully descended from her, 367 children, viz. 16 of her own body, (by her only husband Honeywood,) 114 grand-children, 228 in the third generation, and nine in the fourth. Vide Ward's Lives of the Professors of Gresham College, p. 306, under the account of Sir John Croke, whose son William married Dorothy, daughter of the said Honeywood. This remarkable lady, falling into a lowspirited way, took it into her head that she should be damned, and, holding a glass in her hand, said she should be damned as fure as that glass would break, and though she threw it down, two or three times, on a marble flab she was then standing by. it rebounded, and never broke, which so greatly affected her, and had so strong an impression, that it brought her to her senfes, and gave her more eafe and composure of mind, than all the arguments of the learned divines the had before consulted. She is drawn in her picture with this emblematical story. died at Markeshall, in Essex, May 11, 1620, in the 93d year

fton, the place of her birth.

The aforesaid John Sidley, of Southsleet, had issue, Sir. Charles Sidley, of Southfleet. He was knighted March 12, 1688, and afterwards created a baronet, July 10, 1702, 1 Q. Anne; he married Frances, daughter of Sir Richard Newdigate, Bart. and died 1727. He gave, among other legacies, 400l. to a schoolmaster at Wymondham and Southsteet, and 100l. apiece to Merton and Magdalen college, in Oxford. His lady died April 20, 1738, leaving iffue, 1. Sir Charles Sidley, fon and heir, married, 1718; Elizabeth, daughter of William Frith, Esq; and Mary his wife, (granddaughter to Richard Sclater, Esq;) by whom came the estate at Nuthall, in Nottinghamshire, and the manors of Hayford and Harleigh. 2. Elizabeth Sidley, married, in November 1739, Sir Robert Burdet of Bramcote, in Warwickshire, Bart. (son of Robert Burdet and Elizabeth his wife, daughter of William Lord Viscount Tracy) by . whom he had issue. She died Aug. 28, 1747, and he married, lecondly, Lady Carolina Manners, daughter of John Duke of Rutland. Sir Charles Sidley of Nuthall, son and heir, who is the present baronet, lately exchanged his family estate of South and Northfleet, with the Rev. Mr. Thomas Sanderson, for his estate at Kirkby Bellas, in Leicestershire, which did belong to Sir John Meers. He was elected representative in parliament for the town of Nottingham, in May, 1747.

296. WEBSTER, of Copthall, Effex.

Cr.atel EARONET, May 21, 1703.

Birt. the only fon and heir of Sir Godfrey Webster, of Nelmes, in the county of Essex, Knt. by his wife, Abigail, daughter and coheir of Thomas Gorden, of the Mere, in Stattordshire, Esq; which Sir Godfrey was a younger son of the Websters, of the county of Derby, who for a long time possesses.

fessed a genteel estate in that county; which was inherited, in 1741, by Peter Webster, Esq; the chief heir male of the family.

Sir Thomas Webster was created a baronet in the second year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, and in the year 1705, was returned a member for the borough of Colchester, to the parliament then called; for which place, he served again, in the first and second parliaments of Great Britain, (after the union,) 1708, and 1710; and also again, in the second parliament of King George II. Also about the year 1717, he was, by the freeholders of the county of Essex, elected verdurer of the ancient forest of Waltham, in the said county.

By his lady, Jane, daughter and sole heir of Edward Cheek, of Stampford-Orcas, in the county of Somerset, Esq; (by his wise, Mary, daughter and coheir of Henry Whistler, of Ehsham, in Surry, Esq;) he had issue two sons, Sir Whistler, his successor; and Godfrey, who married a daughter of Mr. Gilbert; and three daughters, Abigail, married first to William Northey, late of Compton-Basset, in Wiltshire, Esq; son and heir of Sir Edward Northey, Knt, late attorney-general; and is now widow of the late Sir Edmond Thomas, of Wenvoe, in Glamorganshire, Bart, late member of parliament for Chippenham, in Wilts; Jane, married to the Rev. 897. Dolben, of Thingdon, alias Finedon, Northamptonshire.

Created BARONET, April 1, 1704.

THIS family is very ancient in Denbighshire, and has branched into several houses; David Dolben, made bishop of Bangor, 1631, was of this family. John Dolben, of Haverford-west, in the county of Pembroke, descended from those of Segrayd, in Denbighshire, married Alice, fifter to Sir Thomas Myddleton, of Chirk-castle, in Denbighshire, by whom he had a son, William Dolben, D.D. rector of Stanwick in Northamptonshire, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Hugh Williams, of Coghwillan, in Carnarvonshire, Esq; niece to the right rev. Dr. John Williams, lord archbishop of York, and lord-keeper of the great feal, by whom he had three fons and two daughters; 1. John; 2. Sir William Dolben, Knt. one of the judges of the king's-bench, temp. Car. II. who was turned out for being the only judge that gave his opinion against the legality of diffolving corporations, by quo-warrantos; but was reftored again by King William III. 1688; and 3. Rowland, a sea-officer; the two last died unmarried. Of the two daughters, the eldest married Dr. Stephen Luddington, archdeacon of Stow, in the diocese of Lincoln, and had a son, Stephen, a clergyman, who died unmarried, and four daughters; the eldest married to Dr. Nicholas Stratford, late bishop of Chester, by whom she had one son, Dr. William Stratford, late canon of Christchurch, who died unmarried, and one daughter, married to Dr. Antweezle, late dean of Chester, by whom she had two daughters, unmarried in 1741; the second, married to Dr. Dickenson, of St. Martin's lane, by whom she had one only daughter, who was married to Baron Blombergh, a nobleman of Courland, by whom the had feveral fons, the eldest of which, Edmund-Charles, was equerry to his majesty, and the second, rector of Fulham, in Middlesex, and married to a daughter of Dr. Bland, dean of Durham; the third, married to Mr. Wheeler, by whom the had Dr. Wheeler, a physician at Chester, and one daughter; the fourth, married to Mr. Fox, by whom the had a numerous iffue. Dr. Dolben's second daughter married twice; by her first husband, a wealthy citizen of London, she had no iffue; but by her second, Dr. James, warden of All-Soul's college, Oxon, the had a fon, Gilbert, who was captain of a man of war, and died (was cast away at sea) unmarried, and three daughters; the eldest married Mr. Richardion, late merchant in Basinghall-street, and had no issue; the second was married to Mr. Benson, of Salters-hall, late secondary of the compter, by whom she had Mr. Benson, late secondary of the compter, and several other children; the third, Mary, who died unmarried. Dr. William Dolben was nominated to the bishopric of Gloucester, but upon his falling extremely ill, the instruments were suspended till he died; he was so beloved at Stanwick, that his parishioners hearing how ill he was at London, plowed and sowed his glebe lands at their own expence, that his widow might have the benefit of the crop, which she had after his death.

John, the eldest son of the doctor, was born at Stanwick, 20 March 1624. He was educated in Westmister school, and as fifteen years of age, was elected student of Christ-church, Oxon. The civil wars commencing between the King and the parliament, he took arms for the royal cause, and served as ensign at the fiege of York, and battle of Marston-Moor, where he was dangerously wounded in the shoulder with a musket-ball; he was afterwards made captain, (and major, according to Wood,) and had his thigh bone broke, in another battle, by a musketthat likewise. Upon the surrender of Oxford, and the decline of the King's affairs, he went to his college again, and staid there till he was ejected from his student's place, by the visitors appointed by parliament. He then married, and lived privately in Oxford, till the King's restoration, where, with Dr. Fell, and some others of his friends, he kept up a congregation, in which the common-prayer was read, and all other usages of the church of England constantly solemnized. When his royal master was restored, for whose cause and his father's he had so often ventured his life, he was first instituted canon of Christchurch; afterwards, by means of his wife's relation to the then bishop of London, Dr. Sheldon, (who was removed to Canterbury, 1663,) he was defervedly made archdeacon of London, clerk of the closet, and dean of Westminster. In the year 1666, he was confecrated bishop of Rochester, and made the king's almoner; when, fays my author, (Anth. Wood,) that place was managed to the great benefit of the poor, with great justice and integrity. On the 26th of July, 1683, he was, by the King's Congé d'elire, elected archbishop of the diocese of York, and enthronized in person, August 23 sollowing.

This prelate, was a man of a free, generous, and noble difposition, and withal, of a natural, bold, and happy eloquence.

And, adds our Oxford antiquary, by a fort of hereditary right, he succeeded his uncle Williams, in his honours; both in his deanry of Westminster, and archbishopric of York. He died at Bishops-Thorpe, of the small-pox, at a very advanced age for an attack of that distemper, April 11, 1686, aged fixty-two years.

He lies interred in the fouth choir-ifle of the Minster of York.

The archbishop married Catherine, daughter of Ralph Sheldon, of Stanton, in Denbighshire, Esq; and niece to Archbishop Sheldon, by whom he had two fons, Gilbert, of whom hereafter; and John; and a daughter, Catherine, who died unmarried. John, second son of the archbishop, married Elizabeth, second daughter and coheir of Tanfield Mulso, of Thingdon, alias Finedon, in Northamptonshire, Esq; who died 4 March, 1726, and had iffue by her, two fons, William and John, who both died young; and and three daughters, 1. Catherine, married to Samuel Whitlock, of Chilton Foliot, in Wilts, Esq; (grandson and heir to the famous Bulstrode Whitlock, Esq;) by whom she had three sons, John, Samuel, and Gilbert; and nine daughters; (Catherine, Anne, married to the rev. Mr. Gyfford, rector of Nuffield, in Oxon. Elizabeth, Neeltice, Mary, Harriot, Mulso, Charlotte, and Judith, all living in 1741;) 2. Elizabeth; 3. Anne, married to Gilbert Affleck, of Dalham-hall, in Suffolk, Esq; by whom she had twelve fons; John; another John, (married to the only daughter and heir of James Metcalfe, of Roxton-abbey, in Bedfordshire, Esq; and had issue;) Gilbert, Charles, Thomas, James, William, Samuel, Robert, Edmund, Philip, and Jermyn; and fix daughters, Anne, Elizabeth, (married to Robert Trefusis, Esq; and had issue;) Catherine, (married to William Metcalfe, of Fordham, in Cambridgeshire, Esq; and had issue;) Mary, Louisa, and Charlotte. This John Dolben, Esq; was member of parliament for Leskeard, in Cornwall, at the time of his death, which happened at Epsom, in Surry, May 29, 1710.

Sir Gilbert Dolben, eldest son and heir of the archbishop, was the first baronet of this family, and advanced to that dignity by her late majesty Queen Anne. He was one of the justices of the court of common pleas in Ireland, near twenty years, in the reigns of King William III. Queen Anne, and King George I. which post he resigned on account of ill health, 1720; and was a representative in parliament for Rippon in Yorkshire, Peterborough in Northamptonshire, and South-Yarmouth in the Isle of Wight, thirty years: he married Anne, eldest daughter and coheir of Tanfield Mulso, of Thingdon, alias Finedon, in Northamptonshire, Esq; by whom he had only one son, Sir John, his successor, and died Oct. 22, in the fixty sourch year of his age, A. D. 1722, whereupon the dignity and estate devolved upon his only son,

Sir John Dolben, Bart. D. D. and prebendary of Durham, was born at Bishops-Thorpe, near York, Feb. 12, 1683-4,

I married the honourable Elizabeth Digby, second daughter the right honourable William lord Digby, baron of Geashill, the kingdom of Ireland, by whom he had one fon, Sir Wilm. his successor; and three daughters, I. Elizabeth, who, in b. 1744, married John Nicholls Raynsford, of Brixworth, in the anty of Northampton, Esq; by whom she had one daughter, o died young. 2. Frances, and 3. Anne. Sir John had ewise four other sons, John, Gilbert, James, and Gilbert, reased. Lady Dolben died at Aix, in Provence, (where Sig hn went for the recovery of his health) Nov. 4, 1730; Sic hn died Nov. 20, 1756, aged seventy-three, and was sucded by his only furviving fon, Sir William Dolben, the present bart. who, in 1760, was high riff for Northamptonshire. He married, May 17, 1748. dith, only daughter and heiress of Somerset English. Esq: I Judith, his wife, daughter and coheir, with her fifter me, who died unmarried, of Hugh Reason, of Hampnet, in Hex, Esq; by his wife, daughter and heir of Sir Joseph eldon, Knt. Lord Mayor of London) and by her had iffue, dith, who died young; John-English, who was first a ng's scholar at Westminster, (being the fixth generation from her to son on that foundation) and is now student of Christurch, Oxford; Frances, who died young; Anne, now liv-; and William, who died an infant.

299. FLEMMING, of Rydall, Westmoreland.

Created BARONET, Oct. 4, 1705.

HIS family derives its descent from Sir Michael le Fleming, Knt. who being a very stout and active man, related to Baldwin, the fifth, earl of Flanders, was sent by him, with some forces, to affist William the Conqueror, his son-in-law; and, by the Conqueror, was sent, some years after, with some of his countrymen, into Cumberland, to oppose the Scots. For his good services, he had given him, by the said Conqueror, a fair estate, viz. the castle of Gleaston, and manor of Aldingham; and other lands, in Furness, in Lancashire; and also the castle of Caernarvon, and the lordship and manor of Beckermet; with other things, in the county of Cumberland, which have, ever since, continued in this family.

He, and some of his descendants, were often called le Fleming, Flameng, Flamengus, Flandrensis, and sometimes de Furness, from their dwelling at Gleaton-Castle, beforementioned.

This Sir Michael, whose knighthood is proved, by authentick evidences, still in the possession of the family, was a person of that remark, and had such an estate in Furness, besides what he enjoyed essewhere, that Stephen, earl of Bologne and Morton, afterwards King of England, thought sit to take notice of him, and his estate, in his charter made anno Domini 1126, unto the abby of Furness, by which he granted, amongst other things, Quicquid infra Fudernessium continetur, prater terram Michaelis

Michaelis Flameng. To which King Henry I. and others, were witnesses. And, in pope Eugenius's confirmation, it is thus expressed,——Ex dono Comitis Stephani, &c. quicquid infra Furnessam continetur præter terram Michaelis Flamengi.

This occasioned a considerable part of his estate, in Furness, to be, after that, called Michael-Land, to distinguish it from the Abby-Land, as it is to this day.

The faid Sir Michael was likewise a great benefactor to the faid abby of Furness, as appears by authentic deeds.

The said Sir Michael, having lived with great honour and esteem, during the time of King William the Conqueror, of King William Rusus, and of King Henry I. about the close of King Stephen's reign, being then a very old man, died in his castle, of Gleaston, and was buried in Furness-abby, to which he had been, as aforesaid, a benefactor, and wherein most of the nobility and gentry of these parts were interred, as it was anciently very usual in other places.

This Sir Michael le Fleming, had issue, 1. William, his eldest fon and heir, to whom, at his death, he left Gleaston-castle, the manor of Aldingham, and all other his lands in Furness, in Lancashire; 2. Richard, to whom he gave his castle of Caernarvon, and the lordship and manor of Beckermet, with the homage and services, wards, and reliefs, of all the freeholders, of and in Frifington, Rottington, Weddikar, Kelton, Salter, Arloghden, and Brunrigg, in the county of Cumberland; 3. Daniel, who was a clergyman, and had, as in the former of the preceding deeds, the church of Urswic, in Lancashire, referved for him, upon his father's exchange of Ros, and Crimelton, for Bardsey, and Urswic, with the abbot of Furness; 4. Anselm, from whom the barons Fleming, of Slane, in Ireland, derive their descent, and from whom, according to an old tradition in this family, of Rydall, the earls of Wigton, in Scotland, are likewise descended; 5. Jordan, who, and his brother, Anselm, assumed the surname of Furness; 6. Godith, a daughter, with whom her father gave in marriage, to William de Essenby, three carucates of land in Adgaresslith, and who was a benefactor to the priory of St. Bees, in Cumberland.

The faid Sir Michael, and his posterity, had commonly, in records and writings, le, prefixed to their surname, until King Edward IV th's time; which proves the truth of Mr. Camden's observation, that de, and le were religiously observed, in some local names, until about that time.

William le Fleming, eldest son of the said Sir Michael, was a knight, and married Alice, daughter of Thomas, son of Gospatrick, ancestor of the ancient samily of the Curwens of Workington, in Cumberland, and by her had iffue, Michael, William, and Alice.

Michael, eldest son of the said Sir William, and heir of all his lands in Furness, was a knight, and married Agatha, daughter of Henry, son of Hervee, baron of Ravensworth; but dying without issue, and his brother, William, being drowned in Levenpoole, before his death, he lest his whole estate unto Alice, his only sister, who was married to Sir Richard de Canssield, who had issue by her, William, and Agnes, who, by her brother's death without issue, carried those estates to Robert de Harrington, from which samily they afterwards passed to that of the Boyvill's, and from them to the Greys, and lastly, by the attainder of the Duke of Sussolk, 2 Q. Mary, they fell to the Crown.

And now to return to Richard le Fleming, second son of the first Sir Michael, above-named, and next brother to Sir William, to whom the estates in Cumberland were given by his father, as aforesaid.—He was a knight, and was, as were also some of his descendants, stiled, Flandrensis, and Flameng, as well as le Fleming, which appears by divers fair old deeds, still in the custody of this family, many of which are without any date.

Having lived in the reigns of King Henry II. King Richard I. and King John, he died pretty ancient, and was buried with his father and brother in Furnels-abbey, leaving iffue Sir John le Fleming, Knt. his heir.

The faid Sir John le Fleming, died in the reign of K. Hen. III. and was buried in the abby at Calder, near his castle of Caernarvon, in Cumberland, to which abby he had been a confiderable benefactor, and where is yet to be seen a statue, in freestone, of a man in armour, (placed there, as is supposed, in memory of him,) with a fret of fix pieces upon his shield, lying upon his back, with his fword by his fide, his hands elevated in a praying posture, and his legs across, which probably are so placed, from his taking upon him the cross, and being engaged in the holy war. For all those worthy men of the nobility and gentry of England, who, in the reigns of King Henry II. Richard I. Hen. III. and Ed. I. were Cruce fignati, as dedicating and listing themselves to the wars, for the recovery of Jerusalem, and the Holy Land, were fignified under this word, Croises, as well as Pilgrims, from their wearing the fign of the cross upon their garments; and as the knights of St. John of Jerusalem, created for the defence of pilgrims.

This Sir John le Fleming, left issue, Sir Richard le Fleming, Knt. his heir, who married Elizabeth, daughter, and, by the death of her brothers, heir of Adam de Urswick, with whom he had the manor and lordship of Coningston, in Lancashire, with

Coningston,

Coningston, (alias Thurston,) water, as remarkable for the many fine fish, called Charrs, wherewith it abounds, as the mountains in the manor of Coningston are, for the great quantities of their green, grey, brown, and yellow copper-ore, that hath been, and probably may be, got there, with several veins of lead, and other minerals, which occasioned Conningston-hall to be the feat of the family, for feveral generations.

He had iffue, by the faid Elizabeth, John le Fleming, who, after the decease of his father and mother, became possessed of the said lordships or manors of Beckermet and Coningston, and of all the rest of their estate within the counties of Cumberland, and Lancaster, which have continued in the possession of the heirs males of the family, until this day. The faid John le Fleming was, in 28 Ed. I. with that King, in arms, at the fiege of Carlaverake castle, in Scotland, as appears by his protection, now in being, under the great seal of Englend.

This John le Fleming, having helped to take the faid castle of Carlaverake, though then accounted impregnable, died fome time after, leaving iffue, Raynerus, his eldest son and heir, and Hugh, who had a daughter, named Mary, married to Ralph de Frisington.

Raynerus le Fleming, who inherited all his father's estates in Cumberland and Lancashire, gave to the abbot of St. Mary's, of York, two oxgangs of land, in Rottington, and also unum rusticum manentem in eadem villa. He was steward, (Dapifer, being added to his name,) probably of the King's courts, or tevenues. in Cumberland, or Lancashire.

The faid Raynerus, had issue, Sir John Fleming, Knt. who upon his father's decease, became lord of the manors of Beckermet and Coningston, and possessor of all the rest of his estate.

The faid Sir John, had iffue, William, John, and a daughter, named Joan, married to John le Towers.

Whether William, the eldest son was ever married, is a question; for although the pedigree of this family, entered long fince, in the registry of the heralds office at London, doth affirm, that John le Fleming, next following, was fon and heir of this William le Fleming; yet it is found by an old deed; that he was rather his brother, being second fon of Sir John le Fleming, Knt. next aforefaid; and, after the death of this William, also his heir.

This John le Fleming was a knight, as well as his father, as appears by a deed of 7 Edw. III. to which he is witness, and other proofs.

He died about the latter end of the twenty-seventh, or the beginning of the twenty-eighth of Edward III. leaving iffue, Richard his eldest son and heir, and Robert.

Vol. III. Richard Richard le Fleming, it appears, was a knight. Not long after his father's decease, viz. in 31 Edw. III. he married Catherine, the daughter of Sir John de Kirkby, in the county of Lancafter Knt. by whom he had issue, Thomas, his eldest son and heir; John, his second son, who died without issue; James, his third son, who died also without issue; and Joan, a daughter. To these have usually been added, Richard le Fleming, who was bishop of Lincoln, and, A.D. 1427, sounder of Lincoln college, in Oxford, and Robert le Fleming, at the same time dean of Lincoln: these two, indeed, did bear a different coat of arms, from that usually borne by this family which they might do, and yet be two younger sons thereos.

Upon a feal annexed to one of the deeds of this Sir Richard le Fleming, dated 47 Ed. III. are his arms, viz. a Frett, hung corner-ways, within this infeription, S. Ricardi Fleming, all very fair.

The faid Sir Richard le Fleming, having lived many years, died at Coningston-hall, leaving his eldest son, Thomas, his heir, who, long before the death of his said father, was possessed of the manor of Beckermet.

He was a knight, as appears by one of his deeds, of 3 Hen. IV. upon the feal of which are his arms, the fame with his father's, and the fame which are still borne by this family, viz. a Frett, upon a shield, hung corner-ways, in which position, divers of his descendants have since borne them, though some of the heirs males of late years did not, and do not bear them so at this present time.

This Sir Thomas le Fleming, in his father's life-time, took to wife, first, Margaret, daughter of William de Berdsey, then Elayne, daughter of ———, by whom he had no issue: afterwards he married Isabel, daughter of Sir Thomas Layburne, Knt. and by her had issue, Thomas and John, the youngest of whom died without issue.

Thomas le Fleming, eldest son and heir of the aforesaid Sir Thomas, received, as well as his father, the honour of knighthood, and married, 10 Hen. IV. Isabel, one of the four daughters and coheirs of Sir John de Lancaster of Rydall-hall, in Westmorland, Knt. son of Sir Roger de Lancaster, brother of the half blood to William de Lancaster the third baron of Kendal, and had with her, the lordship, manor, and forest of Rydall, (which the said Sir Roger de Lancaster had granted to him by Margaret de Bruce, with the consent of King Edward I. with several extraordinary privileges too long here to recite, as killing of deer, and intercommoning in the forest of Gresmere, &c. and Rydall-hall, the manor-house of this lordship, hath generally been, ever fince the faid marriage, the feat of this Eamily.

The said Sir Thomas le Fleming dying, left the said Isabel, a widow, who, Mar. 2, an. 21 Ed. IV. granted unto John Fleming, Esq; their son and heir, (who had a younger brother, named William, that died without issue,) all her lands and tenements, in Rydall, and Loghrig, and elsewhere, in Westmoreland, by a deed, on the seal of which is the Flemings present coat of arms,

This John Fleming, Esq; who, after the decease of his father and mother, became possessed of the manors of Beckermet, Coningston, and Rydall, and all other their estates in the counties of Cumberland, Lancaster, and Westmoreland, and who is sometimes stilled, John Fleming, senior, to distinguish him from his eldest son, of the same name, being a valiant man, was retained by indenture, to serve Rauff, lord of Greystock, and Wemm, a great baron, living in Cumberland, who was often honourably employed against Scotland.

Which indenture, for its curiofity, is here exhibited verbatim,

THIS indenture, made the 9th day of December, in the seventh year of the reign of King Edw. IV. betwirt Rauff, lord of Greystock, and Wemm, on the ton party, and John Fleming, Esq; of the todir party, witness, that the said John is retained, and be left with the said lord, for term of his life, as well in were as in peace, against all manner of men, except his legeance; the faid John taking yearly of the faid lord four pound of lawful money of England. In witness hereof, ayther party to the partyes of these indentures, enterchangably hath set to their seals. Wretyn the day and the yere aforesaid.

This John Fleming, Esq; married, first, Joan, the daughter of Sir —— Broughton, of Broughton-tower, in Lancashire, Knt. by whom he had issue, John Fleming, his heir: afterwards he married another wise, whose name was Anne, without having by her any issue, and died before 2 Rich. III.

John Fleming, Esq; son and heir of the aforesaid John, sometimes, by way of distinction, stiled junior, passed his accounts in the exchequer, 6 Hen. VIII. as escheator for the counties of Cumberland and Westmorland, (a place of considerable trust in those days,) and married Joan, daughter of Sir Hugh Lowther, of Lowther, in Westmoreland, Knt. by whom he had issue, Hugh, his heir, and five daughters, viz. Agnes, married to Richard Ducket, of Grayrigg, in Westmorland, Esq; another, married to Richard Kirkby, of Kirkby, in Lancashire, Esq; Margaret, married to Thomas Stanley, of Dale Garth, in Cumberland, Esq; another married to William Bardsey, of Bardsey, in Lancashire, Esq; and another, to — Thwaits, of Thwaits, in Cumberland, Esq.

The faid John Fleming, Esq; died before 24 Hen. VIII. and was buried in Gresmere church, in the burying-place belonging to the lords of Rydall, leaving

Hugh Fleming, Esq; his heir, who accordingly enjoyed his whole estate, in the counties of Cumberland, Lancaster, and Westmorland, and married Joan, one of the daughters and heirs of Sir Richard Hodleston, of Millum-castle, in Cumberland, Knt. and by her, had issue, Anthony, his heir apparent; Thomas, and David, from whom proceed two younger branches of this family; Daniel, who died without issue; and Joan, a daughter, married to Lancelot Lowther, of Sewborrows, in Newton-Regney, in Cumberland, Gent. an. 29 Hen. VIII.

The faid Hugh lived till he was a very old man, furviving most of his children, but in 4 Phil. and Mar. was dead; when he was succeeded in his estates by his grandson, William, son of Anthony, above-named.

Which Anthony Fleming, (who died before his father, in, or soon after 29 Hen. VIII.) had three wives, viz. first, the daughter of Sir Geoffery Middleton, of Middleton-hall, in Westmorland, Knt. by whom he had no iffue; secondly, Elizabeth, daughter of William Hoton, of Hoton, in le Forrest, Cumberland, Esq; by whom he had issue, William, just mentioned; and thirdly, Jane, daughter of John Rigmaden, of Weddicre, in Lancashire, Esq, by whom he had issue, Thomas, and Charles, who both died without issue.

William Fleming, Esq; heir both to his father and grandfather, married, first, Margaret, daughter of Sir John Lamplugh, of Lamplugh, in Cumberland, Knt. by whom he had three daughters, viz. 1. Jane, married to Richard Harrison, of Martindale, in Westmorland, Gent. 2. Margaret, married to Nicholas Curwen, of Clifton, in Cumberland, Gent. 2. Elizabeth, married to William Carter, of Broughton, in Lancashire, Gent. The faid William, married to his second wife, Agnes, fister of Sir Robert Bindloss, of Borwick, in Lancashire, Knt. by whomhe had issue, 1. John, his eldest son, and heir apparent; 2. Thomas, who died without issue; 3. William, who was in the ship that first discovered the Spanish armada, in 1588, and behaved very valiantly therein, but died without issue; 4. Daniel, of whom hereafter; 5. Joseph, who died young; 6. Dorothy, married to Jo. Ambrose, of Lowick, in Lancashire, Esq; .7. Mary, married to John Senhouse, of Seascale-hall, in Cumberland, Esq. 8. Grace, married to Anthony Barwise, of Hyldekirk, in Cumberland, Esq; 9. Eleanor, married to Sir John Lowther, of Lowther, in Westmorgland, Knt. one of his Majesty's council, at York, for the northern parts, from whom descended John, the first viscount Lonsdale.

The said William Fleming, proving a wastful man, sold his customary tenants in Loughrigg, near Rydall, free with some other things, but dying June 22, 40 Eliz. was buried in Gresmere church; his widow, Agnes, proved such an extraordinary manager, that she did not only provide for, and married well, as aforesaid, all her daughters, but likewise purchased the manor and lordship of Skirkwith, the lordship of Kirkland, and the demesse of Monk-hall, with other places in Cumberland; all which she settled upon Daniel, her then second son, abovenamed: surviving her husband above thirty-three years, she died a Rydall, Aug. 16, 7 Car. I. and was interred at Gresmere.

John Fleming, Esq; eldest son of the said William and Agnes, who inherited the manors of Beckermet, Coningston, and Rydall, was three times married, viz. first, to Alice, daughter of Sir Francis Ducket, of Grayrigg, in Westmorland, Knt. who died March 23, 14 Jac. I. without issue; secondly, to Bridget, daughter of Sir William Norris, of Speak, in Lancashire, Knt. of the Bath, and widow of Sir Thomas Bold, of Bold, in Lancashire, Knt. who died at Coningston-hall, also without issue; thirdly, to Dorothy, daughter of Sir Thomas Strickland, of Sisergh, in Westmorland, Knight of the Bath, by whom he had issue, William, born Feb. 1, 1628; Bridget, and Agnes.

Ca

This John Fleming, Esq; who was born 17 Eliz. was, in the reign of King James, one of his Majesty's justices of the peace for the counties of Westmorland and Lancaster; and of the latter, in the eighth year of that King's reign, he was high sheriff.

He died Feb. 27, 18 Car. I. his last wife being dead before him, and was buried at Gresmere, in the burying-place of the family; leaving the above-named William, his heir, then a minor, and his two daughters, then unmarried.

The faid William survived his father but a little while, dying unmarried, of the small-pox, in London, May 12, 1649, and interred in St. Giles's church, in the Fields; when above twenty thousand pounds of his rich father's acquired estate fell to his two fisters, Bridget and Agnes; the former of which was married to Sir Jordan Crossland, of Haramhow, near Hemsley, in Yorkshire, Knt. the latter to George Collingwood, of Eslington, in Northumberland, Esq; but most of his father's paternal estate, that is, the lordship of Beckermet, and Carnaryon-castle, with its dependances; the lordship and manor of Coningston, with Coningston-water; the lordship and manor of Rydall, with the advowson of the parish-church of Gresmere, with some other things, went, by an intail, to William, his cousin-german, and the next heir male, being eldest son of Daniel Fleming, who was a younger (viz. the fourth, but before his death, the second,) brother of John, aforesaid.

The said Daniel Fleming, Esq; lived at Skirwith-hall, in Cumberland, having that manor, with some other estates, as was before observed, settled upon him by his mother. He married Isabel, daughter of James Brathwait, of Ambleside, in Westmorland, Esq; by whom he had issue, 1. William, abovenamed, of whom, more hereaster; 2. John, who died without issue; 3. Thomas, who had a son, named William, that died without issue; 4. Joseph, who died without issue; 5. Daniel, lieutenant of a troop of horse in his majesty's service, and engaged therein under the command of the earl of Newcastle, who died also without issue; 6. Agnes, married to Christopher Dudley, of Yanewith, in Westmorland, Esq; 7. Dorothy, married to Andrew Hudleston, of Hutton-John, in Cumberland, Esq; 8. Mary, married to Thomas Brougham, of Scales-hall, in Cumberland, Eig;

This Daniel Fleming died of an imposshume, at Skirwith-hall, Aug. 2, 19 Jac. I. anno 1621, and was interred in the quire of Kirkland, in the parish church. Isabel, his wife, survived him till June 15, A. D. 1639, when, dying at Skirwith-hall, she was buried in Kirkland church, close by her husband.

William

William Fleming, Esq; eldest son and heir of the said Daniel, was born at Coningston-hall, and baptized at Coningston church, Nov. 25, 7 Jac. and having passed through his education at St. John's college, in Cambridge, he married, 7 Car. I. Alice, eldest daughter of Roger Kirkby, of Kirkby, in Lancashire, Esq; by whom he had issue, 1. Daniel, of whom hereafter; 2. Roger, who died without issue; 3. William, who was captain and major of a regiment of train-band soot, lieutenant-colonel, and captain of a company of soot, and deputy-lieutenant of the county-palatine of Lancaster, and died without issue; 4. John, who died young; 5. another John, who was cast away in the port of Santa Cruz, in Africa, without issue; 6. Alexander, who died also without issue; 7. Isabel, a daughter, who died unmarried.

The said William Fleming, in 18 Car. I. was, in behalf of his sovereign, major of a regiment of soot, which he raised amongst his neighbours, at Skirwith, and commanded, in that rank, till the latter end of the year, 1644, when the Scotch army, which came into England to the assistance of the English rebels, subdued the whole counties of Cumberland and Westmorland; and when, upon the deseat of the royal party, his majesty gave leave to many of his saithful subjects to compound with the parliament, this William Fleming, was one, that was forced to make such an unreasonable composition with the commissioners, at Goldsmiths-Hall, in London, 23 Car. I. and pay a great sum of money, for his allegiance and loyalty.

And when afterwards, the loyal inhabitants of Cumberland and Westmorland did heartily appear in arms for the King, under the command of Sir Marmaduke Langdale, the said William Fleming's colonel being dead, and the company of foot which he had in the former war, being disposed of to another, he obtained a commission to be lieutenant-colonel of a regiment of horse; but before the troop could be got raised, Oliver Cromwell, with the parliament forces, routed the English and Scotch armies, near Preston, in Lancashire.

The said William Fleming, Esq; died at Coningston-hall, May 25, 5 Car. II. A. D. 1653, aged 44, having a little before his death become owner of all the ancient samily estates before-mentioned, and that same year obtained an allowance of his title, and the title of his sons, unto them, before the commissioners, for removing of obstructions in the sale of delinquents lands, (as they were then called,) sitting in Worcesterhouse, London. He was buried in Gresmere church, in the burying-place of the lords of Rydall.

The said Daniel Fleming, Esq; eldest son and heir of the said William, was born July 25, A. D. 1633, and having pac-fed through his education at Queen's college, in Oxford, and at Gray's-Inn, London, he intried, Aug. 27, 1655, Barbara, eldest daughter of Sir Henry Fletcher, of Hutton, in Cumberland, Bart. (who was killed, valiantly fighting for King Charles I. at Routon-heath, near Chester, Sept. 24. 1645,) and by her had issue sifteen children, eleven sons and sour daughters, viz. I, William, of whom hereafter; 2. Henry, who was entered, and took the degree of doctor of divinity, as grand compounder, in Queen's college, Oxon, was rector of the two parishes of Gresmere and Ashby, in Westmorland, and in the commission of the peace for the faid county, and married Mary, daughter of John Fletcher, of Hunslet, in Yorkshire, Esq; by whom he had one daughter, Penelope, married to John Keate, Esq; lieutenant in the Scotch horse grenadier guards; 3. Daniel, who died unmarried; 4. John, who died young; 5. George, of whom hereafter; 6. Michael, who entered early into arms at the Revolution, and became an enfign in the regiment of foot, then commanded by the hon. Col. Stanley, (fince earl of Dirby) and afterwards was made major of the fame: he was in most of the battles and sieges in Flanders, during the reigns of King William and Queen Anne; and Feb. 20, 1706, was elected knight of the shire for the county of Westmorland. Upon the conclusion of the peace by Queen Anne, the regiment being ordered to Hull, he there died, having married Dorothy Benson, a Yorkshire gentlewoman, by whom he had a fon, William, an enfign in the hon. general Howard's regiment of foot; and a daughter, Susan, married to Michael Knott, of Rydall, Gent. 7. Richard, who was in the commisfion of the peace for the county of Westmorland, and married Mrs. Isabel Newby, a considerable heiress, of the said county, by whom he had iffue one fon, Daniel, (who married, but left no issue,) and four daughters, Barbara, Anne, Isabel, and Catherine; the last of which married George Compston, of Ambleside, Gent. 8. Roger, who, taking orders, was presented to the vicarage of Brigham, in the county of Cumberland, and diocese of Chester, which he held, during life, without seeking other preferment; he married Mrs. Margaret Moorhouse, a Yorkshire gentlewoman, and lest issue, by her, one daughter, Alice, unmarried in 1741; and a fon, Daniel, land-surveyor of the port of Whitheaven, who married Mary, daughter of Joseph Dixon, of the said town, Gent. by whom he had two sons, Roger and William; and a daughter, Mary; 9. James, who was a captain in the militia, and died unmarried; 10. Thomas, who died young; and, 11. Fletcher, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Brathwaite, of Windermere, Gent. by whom he left a son, of his own name: the daughters were, 1. Catharine, Catharine, married to Edward Wilson, of Dallam Tower, in Westmorland, Esq; mother of Daniel Wilson, Esq; one of the members for the said county; 2. Alice, who died unmarried; 3. Barbara, married to John Tatham, of Overhall, in Lancashire, Esq; from whom descended William Tatham, of Askham, in Westmorland, Esq; barrister at law; and, 4. Mary, married, first, to Anthony Bouch, of Ingleton, in Yorkshire, Esq; afterwards to Edward Wilson, of Casterton, in Westmorland, Esq;

Of Fletcher, the eleventh son, and fifteenth child, his mother Barbara died in childbed, April 13, 1675, and was buried in the burying-place, of the family of Rydall, in the parish church of Gresmere.

Daniel Fleming, Esq; husband of the said lady, inheriting, upon his father's decease, the several ancient estates of the samily, was, as his said father had been, for his loyalty to the crown, subjected to very high annual payments, for compositions with Oliver's sequestrators, under his usurpation; during which scene of iniquity, he chose to live in retirement; and, though much importuned to represent the county of Westmoreland, in the then parliament, would not be invested with that public character, nor with any office of authority, till the happy Restoration of King Charles II. Immediately after which he was appointed, by his majesty, his first high sheriff of the county of Cumberland, and was savoured with his royal licence, under the privy seal, for non-residence; which, as it is the first instrument of this kind that occurs in these parts of the nation, is here exhibited to the public, in its original form, viz.

To our trufty and well-beloved Daniel Fleming, Esq; high sheriff of our county of Cumberland.

Charles R.

TRUSTY and well-beloved, we greet you well. Whereas we have appointed you, to be our high sheriff of our county of Cumberland, and in respect thereof, by the laws of this our realm, you are to make your residence in that county, during the time of that your charge: forasmuch as you have represented unto us, that you have many great occasions to be absent out of the said county, and have therefore humbly desired us to dispense with you for the same; we, being consident, that what savour we shall yield you herein, shall not tend to the neglect of the public service, do hereby licence you to be absent out of the said county, so long as your occasions shall necessarily require: any law, statute, act of parliament, custom, or constitution, to the contrary, in any wise, notwithstanding. And these our letters shall be your sufficient warrant and discharge in this behalf.

Given at our court at Whitehall, the last day of November, in the twelfth year of our reign, 1660.

By his Majesty's command,

Edw. Nicholas.

His said majesty did, afterwards, May 15, 1681, at Windsor, of his own voluntary pleasure, confer the honour of knighthood upon him, who was then the twelsth knight of his samily since the Norman conquest.

The faid Sir Daniel Fleming, Knt. was elected (though quite contrary to his inclination) member of parliament for Cockermouth, in Cumberland, Mar. 27, 1685, and was, befides his military commands in the militia, justice of Oyer and Terminer within the counties of York, Durham, Northumberland, Newcastle upon Tyne, Kingston upon Hull, Cumberland, Westmoreland, and Lancaster; in the commission of the peace for the three last; which office he executed with an extraordinary vigilance, and to the signal service of his country, having possessed himself of such a knowledge of the general laws of the nation, and of the local customs of these northern parts, as to be able, upon the bench, to favour the justices of affize with his opinion, which they did not disdain to ask upon various occasions.

He did not, however, confine his studies wholly to matters of this kind, but made a great proficiency in all branches of human learning; which appears in the judicious observations he has made upon all subjects, and the useful extracts he has lest behind him, from some thousands of volumes, which underwent his attentive perusal.

He had, in particular, a great regard for, and as great skill in, antiquities; and, as by the latter, he was enabled to be, not without a grateful acknowledgment, a considerable assistant to the learned annotator upon Camden's Britannia; so, by the former, he was prompted to be a singular benefactor to the university of Oxford, by procuring for it a donation of an excellent collection of above three hundred Roman coins, (whereof six are of gold, fixty-six of silver, and the rest of copper and brass,) as is there recorded to his honour.

The faid Sir Daniel, died at Rydall-Hall, March 25, 1701, aged fixty-seven, and was interred at Gresmere, in the burying-place of his family.

William Fleming, Esq; eldest son and heir of the aforesaid Sir Daniel, was born at Rydall-Hall, July 26, 1656, and, by an unhappy unhappy fall, about two years after, so sprained or dislocated some bone in one of his ancles, that, notwithstanding all the asfistance that could be had from the physicians and surgeons of the greatest repute at that time, either in the country, at London, or at the Bath, he continued lame after so long as he lived. He was, Nov. 12, 1606, elected one of the representatives for the county of Westmoreland; as also, Aug. 18, 1698, for the new parliament then called. On the 15th of August, 1608, he was made one of the commissioners of Excise, in which post he continued till some months after the death of King William, of glorious memory; when he retired into the country, to look after the estate which came to him upon his father's decease, He was again elected for the said county, Nov. 30, 1704; and was, Oct. 4, 1705, created a baronet, with remainder, for want of issue male of his body, to the issue male of Sir Daniel Fleming, his father.

The said Sir William married, Aug. 1, 1723, Dorothy, daughter of Thomas Rowlandson, of Kirby-Kendal, in West-morland, Gent. by whom he had issue, three daughters, Dorothy, Barbara, and Catharine; and dying without issue male, the title, as well as the paternal estate of the samily, devolved to his brother George, then lord bishop of Carlisse. The said Sir William, died at Rydal-Hall, Aug. 29, 1736, and was buried in the burying-place of the samily, in the parish church of Gresmere.

Sir George Fleming, Bart. was the fifth fon of Sir Daniel Fleming, Knt. and entered commoner of Edmund-Hall, in Oxford, June 1688. In 1690, he, amongst others of the univerfity, printed congratulatory verses upon his majesty's happy return from Ireland: and, in the beginning of March, 1604, took his master's degree. Leaving the university in 1699, he became domestic chaplain to the right rev. Dr. Thomas Smith, then lord bishop of Carlisse, by whom he had been ordained, and also collated to the vicarage of Aspatria, in the said diocese. Mar. 12, 1700, he was installed prebendary of the church of Carliste, and April 12, 1705, arch-deacon of the faid diocese. He was created doctor of laws, by diploma, at Lambeth, March 10, 1726, which was also confirmed under the Great-seal, March 25, 1727, and installed dean of Carlisle, April 27, 1727. On the 30th of October, 1734, he was nominated to the see of Carlisse; elected Dec. 4, confirmed at Bow-church, Jan. 18, and consecrated at Lambeth, the 19th of the same month. He married, Oct. 28, 1708, Catharine, the daughter of Robert Jefferson, (and one of the coheirs of Thomas Jefferson) of the city of Carlisle, Gent. who died in the deanry in the said city, May 1, 1736, and was buried the 4th of the faid month, in 302. LAMBERT, of London.

Created BARONET, Feb. 16, 1710-11.

THIS family is descended from John Lambert, of the isle of Rhee, who lived in good reputation in that country, being bred to the law; though he came originally from the county of Devon, in England.

John Lambert, his son, was a merchant at St. Martin's, in the isle of Rhee, and in good esteem with the governor, and others, the chief of the country; and so well beloved, that, notwithstanding his being a protestant, yet he lived unmolested in the times of the hottest persecution; and, to prevent his children being perverted to the popsish religion, he sent them into England, and continued himself in France, where he died, and was buried in 1702, leaving issue, by Mary le Fever, of St. Martin's, in the isse of Rhee, John James, (who died in Jamaica,) and a daughter, who married in Holland.

John, the eldest son, was born in 1666, and at sourteen years of age, came into England, to be educated and instructed in our language; and, after being at school at Camberwell, for some time, returned to France in 1684; and, upon the persecution breaking out, returned again into England, in 1685; and foon after betook himself to trade and merchandize, and was very ferviceable in promoting our manufactures, and the trade to the plantations, wherein he made great addition to his fortune: and, in the year 1710, in the changes of the ministry, when monied men shut up their cash, sold out their shares in the public funds, and national credit funk apace, Sir John (being then a knight) was the most zealous and forward to supply the new lords commissioners of the treasury, and, in company with some others, made remittances for upwards of four hundred thousand pounds, for the support of her majesty's armies abroad; in confideration of which fervices. Mr. Chancellor of the Exchequer (the late earl of Oxford) introduced him to the Queen, who, with very gracious expressions, bestowed on him the dignity of a baronet, in the ninth of her reign.

He married Madelaine, daughter of Mr. Benjamin Beuzelin, a confiderable merchant of Rouen, in Normandy,) descended from a noble samily; his sather being disinherited on account of his religion,) by whom he had sour sons; Sir John, his successor, Benjamin, Francis, and James; also three daughters, Mary-Madeline, married to Mynheer Hop, envoy from the States-General; Susan, and Judith. Sir John, died Feb. 4,

We do therefore confer upon him a baronetship, and do hereby create him a baronet, and do give him for a coat of augmentation to be born before his own, viz. In a Field, Gules, an armed Right Arm, carrying, upon a sword, a Banner Argent, charged with a Cross between sixteen Shields of the First, and a Lion of England in the Fess Point: And for a Crest, a Chevalier in a fighting Posture, his Scarf red, his Left Arm hanging down useless, and holding his Bridle in his Teeth; his Face, Sword, Armour, and Horse, cruentated: The said baronetship to the said Edward, and his heirs ⁶ male of his body, lawfully begotten; and for want of fuch heirs male, to the heirs male of the said Edward: The said coat of augmentation, and the crest, to him, the said Edward, and his heirs, and to all descending from him, or them, for ever; all this to be put in form in his patent. Given at our court at Oxford, the 30th day of December,

" the 19th year of our reign."

This Sir Edward died without issue, in 1674, and lies buried in the cathedral of Lincoln.

Thomas Lake, brother to Sir Edward, married Mary, daughter of Stephen Goodyer, of London, goldsmith, and had issue, Thomas Lake, of Bishop's Norton, in Lincolnshire, and of the Middle-Temple, Esq; barrister at law, heir to his uncle, Sir Edward; he married Elizabeth, daughter of John Story, of Kniveton, in Derbyshire, Esq; and died May 22, 1711, leaving one son, Bybie, and a daughter, Mary; and lies buried in the Temple church.

Notwithstanding the above grant, none of the heirs of incessors of the above Edward took out the patent, till Sie Riber Lake, in 1711, laid the faid grant before the late carl of ch ford, in order for a patent; but the faid earl (through the the great hurry of affairs) loft the faid grant; though her main being well fatisfied with the fervices of Edward Like .cre₂ a new one, though with precedency only from the .de of Sir Bibye Lake, Bart. 304. CALVERLEY, of Calverley, Yorkshire.

Created BARONET, Dec. 11, 1711.

THE original name of this family was Scott, as appears by great numbers of writings in the archives of this family; the first John Scott (who came in with Mawd, daughter to Malcolm, second King of Scots, married to Hen. I.) married Larderina, second daughter to Alphonsus Gospatrick, lord of the manor of Calverley, and many other manors, and a person of great eminency.

John (son of John Scott), was lord of Calverley, in right of his mother; he was steward of the house to Mawd, the Empress. He was living 1 Steph. 1136, and married the daughter of Sir John Lutterel, of Hooton Pannel, Knt. by whom he had several sons; the eldest son, William, gave the vicarage of Calverley to the chapel of the bleffed Virgin Mary at York, founded by Roger the arch-bishop (whose right surname was Scott) in King Henry the IId's reign. He married Joan, daughter of Sir John Swillington, by whom he had issue, five fons and a daughter; 1. William (of whom hereafter); 2. Roger, was knight, and a person of great eminency; a. Henry, had lands in Pudsey, which he gave to the knights-templars; 4. Thomas, who had Newton, of whom the Scotts, of Newton, descended; (William Scott, a branch of this family, in 1453, gave the vicarage house at Leeds, &c. by deed dated that year, and sealed with an Owl;) and Barnard, the fifth son, died unmarried; Mary, the only daughter, was married to Jeffrey, son of Peter de Arthington, with whom Sir Roger, her brother, gave lands in Calverley; the deeds of the marriage settlement remain in both families.

William,

William, the eldest son of William, lived 1. Hen. III. 1217, and married Mabel, daughter to Sir Nicholas Stapleton, Knt. by whom he was father of several children; Walter, the eldest, living 1 Edw. I. 1273, married the daughter of Sir John Normanville, by whom he had William, and several other sons from one of the younger sons descended the Calverleys, of Hayton, Clareborough, Lound, &c. in Nottinghamshire; the eldest son, William, who was living 19 Edw. III. 1355, was the last that retained the name of Scott; he married the daughter of Sir John Goldsbrough of Goldsbrough, Knight; his son John being stiled John de Calverley.

This John, by Margery, his wife, had iffue, John, Simon, and Elizabeth, married to Thomas Paitfyn, of Hedingley; and she, with her brother John de Calverley's confirmation, gave the manor of Hedingley, to Cristall Abbey; she bequeathed her body to be buried at the priory of Esshewold, or Esholt.

Sir John, son and heir of John, married Johanna, daughters or niece, of Sir Simon Ward, and had issue, John, Walter, Richard, and a daughter, Isabel, who was prioress of Esholt.

John de Calverley, son and heir, was high sheriff of the county of Rutland, and one of the squires to the Queen, in King Richard II's time; and being in the wars, on the King's part, was unfortunately taken by the enemies, and beheaded. He lest no issue, so that Walter, his brother, succeeded to his estate; and, by his first wife daughter of —— Nevile, had no issue; but, by his second wife, Margery, daughter of John de Dineley, he had issue, Sir William, who married Eleanor, daughter of Sir John Thornhill, Knt. and died without issue in his father's life-time; Sir Walter, and John.

Which Sir Walter, the fecond son, but heir to his father, married (temp. Richard II.) Johanna, daughter of Sir John Bygot, of Sterrington, Knt. and had issue two sons, John, and Walter. In Sir Walter's time, Calverley church was rebuilt; his arms, of six Owls, are cut, or plated, in the woodwork there. John, the eldest son was knighted, and killed at the battle of Shrewsbury, fighting for King Henry IV. against Hotspur, his brother.

Walter, his brother and heir, carried on the line, and married Elizabeth, daughter to Sir Thomas Mackingfield, by whom he had issue, three sons, William, Thomas, and Robert; and eleven daughters, of whom, Alice married Gilbert, son and heir of Gilbert del Leigh, of Middlaton, Esq; Isabel, to John, son and heir of William Slingsby, of Scriven, Esq; Margaret, to Thomas, son and heir of Thomas Clapham, of Beamsley, Esq; Beatrice, to Tristram, son and heir of Robert Bollyng, Esq; Amice, to Robert, son and heir of Nicholas Baildon;

Anne, to John Wentworth, of Elmsall, Esq; another to Mr. Richard Kighley; another to Mr. William Scott. of Scotthall, in Newton; another to Mr. Gilbert Topcliffe; and Elizabeth, was nun at Elshot. Thomas, the second son, lived at Park-house, in Byrill, and had that and other lands settled upon him, and married Agnes, daughter and heir of - Skargill, by whom he had a great estate, and from him descended the Calverleys, of Moreley, and those of Cumberland; and Robert. the youngest son, had lands at Baseford and Broxtow, in Nottinghamshire. William, the eldest, married, 20 Hen, VI. Agnes, daughter of Sir John Tempest, and had issue several fons, William, John, Richard, Robert, and Thomas, all living 1488, and Nicholas, who was a priest and vicar of Battley, 1499; and several daughters, of which, Margaret, married Mr. Popelay; Joan, to Mr. Christopher Lister, of Pontefract; Anne, to Mr. Ellis, of Kiddall; Isabella, to Mr. Mearing, of Wherdale; Eleanor, to Mr. Leventhorpe, of Leventhorpe; Alice, a nun at Elsholt, 1488; William, his eldest son and heir, was knighted in the field by the earl of Soney, in the 12th Hen. VII. in the expedition into Scotland; he married Alice. daughter of Sir John Saville, of Thornhill, and left issue, Walter, and three other fons, William, Robert, and Thomas: who lived 21 Hen. VIII. and 10 Eliz. and two daughters, of which, Agnes, married John Vavasor, of Weston, Esq.

Sir Walter, Knt. son and heir, married twice; first, (temp. Hen. VII.) Isabel, daughter and heir of John Drax, Esq; and had iffue, William, and several other sons and daughters, of which, Alice, married Robert Warcupp, of Warcupp, in Westmoreland, Esq; another to Henry Ratcliff, of Surry, Esq; Margery, to Mr. Bollyng, of London; Ellen, to Mr. Hodgson, in Westmorland; and another, to Gilbert Leigh, Esq; His second wife, was Anne, daughter of John Vavasor, Esq; by whom he bad no iffue.

William, his eldest son, was knighted about the 2d of Ed. VI. and the next year, high sheriff for the county of York. He married twice, first, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir William Middleton, of Stockfield, Knt. and had iffue, eight fons, Walter, Thomas, William, Henry, Michael, John, Ralph, and Nicholas; and fix daughters, Isabel, manied to Francis Passelew, of Riddlesden, Esq; Elizabeth, to Robert Beeston, of Beeston, Esq; Anne, to Thomas Ellis, of Kiddall; another to William Wentworth, of Kilnswick, Esq. Dorothy, to Mr. Furnes, of Mirfeild; another, to John Cooper, Alderman of Chester. Thomas, the second son, married Isabel, daughter of Mr. Anderson, of Newcastle, and from him descended the Calverleys, of Ayreholm, in Durham. William, the third son, married the heiress of -Calverley, Calverley, of Park-house, by whom he had estates in Moreley, Carlinghow, Seacrost, Bolton, &c. Sir William Calverley, by his second wife, Elizabeth, daughter of Richard Sneyd, Esq; had three daughters; Beatrice, married to Rob. Hide, of Norbury, in Cheshire, Esq; Jane, to Mr. Anby; and, Elizabeth, to Mr. Hallie.

Walter, succeeded his father, about 13 Eliz. and married Anne, daughter of Sir Christopher Danby, Knt. and had three sons, William, Christopher, and Edmond, living 1568; and, one daughter. William, his eldest son and successor, married Catharine, daughter of Sir John Thornholm, of Haystrope, Knt. by whom he had several sons and daughters. This Catharine was a zealous papist, whereby they suffered very much for recusancy, the estate being sequestered, and some manors sold off.

Walter, the eldeft son, married Philippa, sister to John Brook, lord Cobham, and had three sons, two who died young, and Henry, who succeeded him: (his relict afterwards married Sir Thomas Burton, Knt.) which Henry married twice; first, Elizabeth, daughter of Alexander More, of Grantham, Esq; by whom he had only a daughter, who died young; his second wise was Joyce, daughter of Sir Walter Pye, of the Myne, in Herefordshire, Knt. attorney-general of the court of wards and liveries, by whom he had four sons, Walter, John, a barrister at law, of Gray's-Inne, and two that died young.

Walter, the eldest son, succeeded to his father's estate; and in the time of the civil wars, the family were very great sufferers. He married Frances, daughter of Henry Thompson, of Esholt and Bromsield, Esq; (whose ancestor was one of the gentlemen at arms to K. Henry VIII. at the taking of Boloign) and had issue by her two daughters, Anne and Bridget; the first married to Benjamin Wade, Esq; the latter, first to John Ramsden, Esq; and, secondly, to William Nevile, Esq; and also one son,

Walter Calverley, Esq; (who was the twenty-second generation from John Scott, who came into England with Mawd, daughter to Malcolm, second King of Scots,) who, on the 10th of Queen Anne, was advanced to the dignity of a baronet, and in Jan. 1706, married Julia, eldest daughter of Sir William Blackett, of Newcastle upon Tyne, Bart. by whom he had Sir Walter Claverley Blackett, the present Baronet, and Julia, married to George Trevelyan, Esq; son and heir of Sir John Trevelyan, of Nettlecomb, in Somersetshire, Bart. Lady Calverley died Sept. 1736, and Sir Walter, Oct. 15, 1749. He was succeeded by his only son,

Sir Walter Calverley Blacket, the present baronet. He married Elizabeth, daughter and sole heir of Sir William Blacket, of Newcastle, Bart. who adopted him his heir to most part of his estate. By this lady, who died Sept. 25, 1759, he had a son, born in Feb. 1758. Sir Walter has been constantly elected representative for Newcastle upon Tyne, in every parliament from the year 1734.

305. FREKE, of West Bilney, Norfolk.

Created BARONET, June 4, 1713.

THIS family is descended from Francis Freke, Esq; who was a person of good repute in Somersetshire, whose son, Robert Freke, Esq; was, for many years, auditor of the treasury, in the reigns of King Hen. VIII. and Queen Elizabeth; and died worth upwards of one hundred thousand pounds. He left two sons;

First, Sir Thomas Freke, Knt. a person of considerable note, great trust, and authority, in the county of Dorset, in the reigns of Queen Elizabeth and King James I. ancestor to the Frekes of Hannington, Upway, and Farringdon, in Dorsetshire.

Secondly, William Freke, of Sareen, in Hampshire, Esq; who took to wife the daughter of Arthur Swaine, Esq; and removed with his fon Arthur, to Ireland.

Which Arthur Freke, Esq; his son and heir, lived near the city of Cork, in Ireland, and married Dorothy, daughter of Sir Piercy Smith, of Yohall, in the county of Cork, by whom he had Piercy Freke, Esq; of the city of Cork, in Ireland, who was possessed a fair estate there, and coming into England, he married Elizabeth, daughter of Rause Freke, Esq; (his kinswoman) with whom he had a considerable fortune, and purchased the estate at Bilney, in Norsolk, which he lest to his son and heir.

Sir

Sir Peircy Freke, Bart. eldest son and successor of Sir Rause, was member of parliament for Baltimore, in Ireland; and dying unmarried, at Dublin, April 1728, was succeeded in dignity and estate by his next surviving brother,

Sir John Freke, Bart. who married, 1739, a daughter of —— Broderick, Esq; of the lord viscount Middleton's family, by whom he had several children. Lady Freke died June 20, 1761, and Sir John, who was member of parliament for Cork, April 13, 1764. He was succeeded by Sir John Freke, his eldest son, who is the present Baronet.

306. Evelyn, of Wotton, Surry.

Created BARONET, Aug. 6, 1713.

JOHN EVELYN, Esq; descended from William Evelyn, of Harrow on the Hill, in Middlesex, where his samily had been settled ever since the reign of Hen. IV. removed to Kingston, in Surry, in Hen. VIIIth's time.

His son, George Evelyn, Esq; of Long Ditton, in the same county, had by his first wife, ten sons and six daughters; three of which sons, Thomas, John, and Robert, survived him.

Thomas Evelyn, Esq; the eldest, was the ancestor of Edward Evelyn, of Long Ditton, Esq; (created a baronet in 1682, who died in 1692, without issue male, when that title became extinct;) as John, the second, was of John Evelyn, of Godstone, in the same county, Esq; (created a baronet in 1660, who lest no issue male, and that title became likewise extinct;) and of George Evelyn, Esq; father of the late George Evelyn, Esq; colonel Edward Evelyn, (of Felbridge-water, near Godstone, in Surry, who married a natural daughter of James, duke of Ormond, and had one son, James, and a daughter, Julia,) of Thomas, and William, who, upon his marriage with the daughter and heir of William Glanvil, Esq; took that name, aged 73, at Wotton, in Surry, was there interred.

From the same John Evelyn, by his eldest son, George, was descended Sir John Evelyn, of West Dene, in Wilts, Knt. grand-stather (by Elizabeth, his daughter and coheir) of Evelyn Pierpoint, the late duke of Kingston.

Richard, his youngest, and only surviving son, (by his second wise,) succeeded him in that estate at Wotton, and married Eleanor, only daughter and heir of John Stansield, of Lewes, in Sussex, Esq; by whom he had three sons, George, John, and Richard; and two daughters, Elizabeth, married to Edward Darcy, of Dartford, in Kent, Esq; and Jane, to William Glanvil, Esq; he died 1640, and lies buried at Wotton.

George, his eldest son, served in several parliaments as knight of the shire for Surry; but on failure of his own issue male, setled his estate in Surry, and Sussex, on his brother John; and died 1608, aged eighty-three.

Richard, third son, married the daughter and coheir of George Mynne, of Woodcot, in Surry, Esq; and died in 1669, leaving only a daughter and heir, Anne, married to William Montague, Esq; only son of the lord chief-baron Montague.

John Evelyn, Esq; second son, heir to his brother George, . was the great virtuoso; he gives the following account of his family: 'Wee have not been at Wotton, (purchased of one Owen, s a great rich man,) above 160 years; my great grandfather came from Long Ditton, (the seat now of Sir Edward Eve-' lyn,) where wee had been long before; and to Long Ditton, from Harrow on the Hill; and many years before that, from • Evelyn, near Tower-castle, in Shropshire; at what time there f transmigrated also, (as I have been told,) the Onslows, and Hattons, from feats and places of those names, yet there. There are of our name, both in France, and Italy, written 'Ivelyn, Avelyn: in old deeds, I find Avelyn, alias Evelyn one of our name was taken pritoner at the battle of Agincourt, When the dutchess of Orleans came to Dover to see the King. one of our name, (whose family derives itself from Lusignanus, King of Cyprus,) claimed a relation to us. Wee have in our family, a tradition of a great fum of money that had been given for the ransom of a French lord, with which a great estate was purchased; but these things are all mystical.' This John Evelyn, Eig; was born at Wotton, in Surry, Oct. 31, 1620; he was educated at the free-school, at Lewes, in Sussex, and became a gentleman commoner of Baliol-college, in the university of Oxford, in the beginning of the year 1637, where he continued about three years, in the studies of logic and philosophy; thence he removed to the Middle-Temple, where he resided till the breaking out of the civil wars. In 1644, he, by the express leave of King Charles I. under his own hand, dated at Oxford, travelled seven years into the politer countries of Europe, and in his return through France, in 1647, married Mary, fole daughter and heir of Sir Richard Brown, of Sayes-court, near Deptford, in Kent, Bart. then resident for King Charles II. at the court of France. He settled afterwards at Sayes-court, in Deptford, (the feat of his father-in-law,) which he very much improved by his skill in gardening and planting. After the restoration, he was elected fellow of the royal fociety, being one of the first of those gentlemen who earliest met for the establishment of that fociety. He was likewife one of the commissioners for the taking care of the fick and wounded seamen, in both the Dutch wars, having in the first, Sir Thomas Clifford, afterwards lord-treasurer, for his collegue; and was afterwards appointed one of the council of trade and plantations. In the year 1667, he, by his interest, obtained of the lord Henry Howard, that the Arundelian marbles, standing in the garden belonging to Arundel-house, without Temple-Bar, which had been collected at a vast expence, from different parts of the world, by Thomas, earl of Arundel, grandfather to lord Henry Howard, should be given to the university of Oxford, for which Mr. Evelyn had the thanks of the university sent to him, by the delegates thereof; and, July 15, 1669, had the degree of doctor of civil law conferred upon him. In December, 1685, he, with the lord viscount Tiviot, and colonel Robert Philips, were constituted his majesty's commissioners of the privy-seal, during the absence of Henry, earl of Clarendon, then lord-lieutenant of Ireland, and this office they enjoyed till March 11, 1686, when Henry, lord Arundel of Wardour, was fworn in lord privy-seal. In the reign of King William, he was treasurer of Greenwich-hospital, in Kent. He was a considerable benefactor to the royal fociety, giving to it the table of veins and arteries, which he had brought from Padua, and procuring for it the Arundel library, by his interest with the lord Henry Howard, afterwards duke of Norfolk, whose grandfather, the earl of Arundel, the great collector of pictures and antiquities, he had been well acquainted with in Italy. Mr. Evelyn was the author of Silva, or a Discourse of Forest-trees; of Kalendarium Hortense, or the Gardeners Almanack; of Numismata, or a Discourse of Medals, ancient and modern; of Acetaria, a Discourse upon Sallads; A Parallel of the ancient Architecture with the modern, and several other treatises. Mr. Wood tells us, that he was an ingenious and polite person, affecting a private and studious life. Bishop Burnet stiles him, a most ingenious and virtuous gentleman; and informs us, that he was not fatisfied to have advanced the knowledge of this age, by his most useful labours, about planting, and divers others ways; but he was ready to contribute every thing in his power to perfect other mens endeavours. Mr. Evelyn, by his wife, Mary, fole daughter and heir of Sir Richard Brown, of Sayes-court, near Deptford, in Kent, Knt. and Bart. had five sons, who all died in their infancy, except John; and three daughters, Mary and Elizabeth, who both died unmarried, and Susanna, married to William Draper, of Adgecomb, near Croydon, in Surry, Elq;

John, the author of Silvia, before named, died at London, Feb. 27, 1705-6, in the eighty-fixth year of his age, and was interred at Wotton, in the chancel, on the north side.

John Evelyn, Esq; (son of John, before mentioned,) who died in his father's life-time, became a gentleman-commoner of Trinity-college, in Oxford, in Easter-term, 1668, aged thirteen, and was afterwards one of the commissioners of the revenue in Ireland. He translated into English, Plutarch's life of Alexander, published in the translation of Plutarch's Lives: Rapin's four books of Gardens; the History of the Grand Vifiers; and was author of some copies of verses, published in Dryden's Miscellanies; and by his wife, Martha, daughter and coheir of Richard Spencer, Efq; left one fon, John, and one daughter, Elizabeth, married to the Hon. Simon Harcourt, Esq; son of the late lord viscount Harcourt, and father (by her) of Simon, the present lord viscount Harcourt.

John Evelyn, Esq; son of John, and grandson of John Evelyn, Esq; was created a baronet, 12 Queen Anne, and was one of the commissioners of his majesty's customs, and F. R. S. He married Anne, one of the daughters of Edward Boscawen, Esq. of Wortheval, in Cornwall, and fister of Hugh, the late lord viscount Falmouth, by whom he had fix sons, of whom sour died young. The other four furvived him, viz. 1. Sir John, his successor. 2. Charles, who married Susanna, daughter and heir of Peter Prideaux, Esq; 3. Sidney; 4. William, who is colonel in the Foot Guards. He had likewise two daughters, Anne and Mary. Sir John was succeeded by his eldest son,

Sir John Evelyn, Bart. who married Mary, daughter of Hugh viscount Falmouth. By this lady he left issue, one son, Sir Frederick, his successor, and two daughters, Mary, and Augusta, who are unmarried. He was succeeded by his only son,

Sir Frederick Evelyn, the present baronet, who is lieutenant-colonel of the first troop of horse-grenadier guards,

310. JANSSEN, of Wimbledon, Surry.

Created BARONET, March 11, 1714.

THIS family was originally of Guelderland, and descended from the baron de Heez, who, in the troubles of the Netherlands, headed a party of those who opposed the inquisition, and the tyranny of the duke of Alva, and was made by them, governor of Brussels.

The duke of Parma, some years after, getting the better of the malecontents, the baron de Heez was taken prisoner, and beheaded, and all his estate was confiscated.

His family being dispersed by this accident, his youngest son, Theodore Janssen de Heez, took resuge in France, and settled in Angoulesme; and living there to a very advanced age, lest a great estate, and a numerous issue.

Abraham, his eldest son, had issue, Theodore Janssen, his eldest son, the first baronet, who, in the year 1680, removed into England, with a considerable estate, and, in the reign of King William, had the honour of knighthood conferred on him.

Having in that reign, and the succeeding one, given ample proofs, on several occasions, of his zeal for the interest of Great-Britain, particularly in relation to the commerce with France, when that affair was depending in parliament, after the treaty of Urrecht, he was, at the special request of his then royal highness the prince of Wales, created a baronet, I Geo. I.

In the same year, he was chosen member of parliament for the borough of Yarmouth, in the Isle of Wight.

By forty years success in trade, and with an unquestionable reputation, he had acquired a very great estate: but in the year 1720, having the missortune of being a director of the South-Sea company, he was involved in the common calamity with those unhappy gentlemen; although his innocence was thought to have been sufficiently evident, in as much as it did appear that, far from being a gainer by that fatal project, he had confiderably lessened his estate by it.

By his wife, Williamsa, daughter of Sir Robert Healy, of the Grange, in Hampshire, (who died September, 1731,) he had issue, five sons, Sir Abraham, Sir Henry, successively baronets, and Sir Stephen-Theodore, the present baronet; William, who married a daughter of James Gaultier, Esq; (who died Jan. 1737-8,) and Robert; and three daughters, Henrietta, Barbara, married to Thomas Bladen, Esq; late member of parliament for Ashburton, in Devonshire; and Mary, to the honourable Charles Calvert, lord Baltimore. Sir Theodore Janssen, the first baronet, died in the year 1748, aged 94, and was succeeded by married, in Feb. 1765,

Sir Henry Janssen, Bart. his next brother, succeeded to the title; and he dying likewise unmarried, at Paris, in 1766, the title devolved to

Sir Stephen-Theodore Jamsen, his next brother, the present baronet, who, on account of his many commercial and other public services, particularly in the rebellion of 1745, was elected, in 1747, one of the representatives in parliament for the city of London; in 1748 he was chosen an alderman; in 1750 he was one of the sheriffs of London and Middlesex; in 1755 lord mayor, and in 1765 he was elected chamberlain of the said city. In 1750 he married Catharine, one of the daughters of the late colonel Soulegre, of the island of Antigua; and she dying in 1757, lest one daughter named Henrietta, born 1752, now living.

311. WARRENDER, of Lochend, in the County of East-Lothian, North-Britain.

Created BARONET, June 2, 1715.

THIS family draws its original descent from one De Wardren, of a family of that name, in Durham, or the north-riding of Yorkshire; Robert de Warren settled his family in East-Lothian, or in the county of Haddington; and he, and his descendants, by a certain transposition, came to use the name of Warrender, as at present.

His mother was Margaret Cunninghame, a relation of Sir David Cunninghame's, of Milneraig, Bart. of Scotland, and by her mother descended of the family of Mc. Dowal, of Frewch.

Sir George was put out to business as a merchant, and came to be a very considerable dealer in foreign trade, before the late Revolution, and by his industry in that way, he acquired, with a fair character, an handsome estate.

At the time of the happy Revolution, he struck in with that party that stood for religion and liberty; and as all his life long he had been attached to the true interest of his country, he came early to be distinguished amongst his fellow citizens of Edinburgh, and did advance through the several offices in the magistracy of that city, till he was called to serve as lord provost, or mayor of Edinburgh, and had the honour to represent the city in the first parliament of King George I.

Sir George came to the provost's chair, the last year of Queen Anne, and being firm to the Hanover succession, did all in his station to oppose the violent spirit that then ran so high; and on the fifth of August, when King George I. was proclaimed in Edinburgh, he, as chief magistrate, and high sheriff in the place, discharged that part of his office with the most sincere affection.

in proclaiming the King.

It is above taken notice of, that he represented the city of Edinburgh in parliament, and the time he served was from the year 1715, to the time of his death, at London, in March 1721-2, when attending that service. He is buried in the differenting ground in Bunhill fields.

Sir George, as he had appeared zealous for the interest of his country, in the year 1715, the time of that unnatural rebellion, and opposed the rebels being admitted into the city, when the Vol. III.

attempt was made on it and the castle, and all along firenuously afferted the Hanover succession; it was for these, and his other services to his country, and to his King, he had the honour of his patent from King George I. anno 1715, June 2.

Sir George was twice married, first, to Margaret Lawrie, a worthy merchant's daughter in the city; of this marriage were the present Sir John Warrender, and one daughter. Sir George's second wise, was Grissel Blair, daughter of Hugh Blair, merchant, and one of the magistrates of Edinburgh; by this marriage he had George Warrender, of Brunsfield, Esq. David, of Edinburgh, and Hugh, a counsellor at law, in the Temple, London: the daughters were, Jane, married to Mr. Archibald Stewart, advocate, fon to Sir Thomas Stewart, of Coltness, Bart. who had a son, Thomas, and one-daughter. Sir George had four other daughters of this marriage.

Sir John Warrender, of Lochend, his eldeft fon and successor. the present baronet, married Henrietta Johnston, daughter of Sir Patrick Johnston, late lord-provost, or mayor of Edinburgh, and member of the last Scots parliament, for fundry sessions, from anno 1703, to 1706, when the union was concluded betwixt the two kingdoms; and he was one of the commissioners nominated for, and did attend, that treaty of union, and was a member of the first British parliament.

Sir Patrick was a younger son of the family of Hellon, in the county of Berwick.

Of Sir John Warrender's marriage, were two sons, George, and Patrick, and five daughters.

ARMS: Argent, on a Bend, wavy, between fix Roses, Gules, three Plates.

CREST: On a Wreath, a Hare, passant, proper.

Mотто: Industria.

SEAT: At Lochend, in the county of East Lothian, in Scotland.

319. CHAPMAN, of London.

Created BARONET, June 27, 1720.

F this family, being antiently resident in Shropshire, was Jasper Chapman, of Rubery, near Bridgnorth, in that country; an eminent citizen of London, and grandfather of William, the first baronet.

Sir John Chapman, Knt. and alderman of London, his fonwas likewife an eminent merchant; and, upon King James's restoring the charter to the city, in the year 1688, was made lord mayor, and proclaimed King William and Queen Mary, King and Queen of this realm, in February of the said year; it is remarkable of this Sir John, that he committed to Newgate, one that had been lord-chief-justice of the King's-bench, as the following commitment shews:

London, J. R Eceive into your custody, the body of Sir Robert Wright, Knt. being charged by Sir William Waller, Knt. that hee, being one of the judges of the 6 court of King's-bench, hee had endeavoured the subversion of 5 the established government, by allowing a power to dispence with the lawes; and that hee was one of the commissioners for ecclesiastical affairs, and him keepe, until hee shall be discharged by due course of lawe, and this shall bee your warfant. Dated this 13th day of Feb. 1688-9.

' Je. Chapman, Mayer.

To the keeper of the goale of Newegate.'

Sir John died March 17, 1688-9, leaving behind him a most excellent character. The famous Dr. Scott, rector of St. Giles's in the Fields, who was well acquainted with him, has given this account of him,

That I may not say any thing of this honourable person, that shall look like flattery, or an over-kind partiality, to his memory: I will say nothing of him, but what, I am sure, all that knew him, as I did, will justify; and for those that knew him not, I am sure, it will be highly uncharitable for them to contradic me.

I cannot deny but that, as he was a man, so he had the fraikies of a man, which common charity obliges us to bury in silence and oblivion; but with those fraikies, he had a great many excellent qualities, in which I heartily wish some men would be as forward to imitate him, as they have been to cenfure and traduce him: for I am sure, if they were, it would turn to a much better account to them, both here and hereafter.

As for his religion, I speak upon certain knowledge, he was a firm and steady Protestant of the communion of the church of England; that church, which, however it may be now reproached and vilified by an ungrateful generation, was, not Iong ago, the fence of the English laws and liberties, and the only flanding bank against the inundations of Popery, when it was threatening to overwhelm us all; of this church, was our deceased friend a cordial and affectionate son; he loved its conflitution, frequented its worship and communion, and could his honest zeal to it have permitted him to trincle with Popery, (as some others did, who made the greatest noise against it. when there was no danger in view) and given it but a helping hand to destroy those legal securities that stood in its way, and (under God's providence) were the only infuperable fence against it, he might have been, to my knowledge, lord-mayor foon enough to have out-lived his mayoralty; and how well, and wifely he behaved himself in it, under the most difficult circumstances; how effectually he consulted the city's peace and security, when dangers environed her on every side; how equally ' equally he poised himself amidst all extremes; how prudently he weathered the threatening storm of military force, that hung over it; how happily he stemmed the difficult tide of popular commotion, which, in other parts, bore down all before it; will, perhaps, be remembered to his immortal honour, whenever a more grateful age succeeds.

I know, he has been frequently charged with keeeping fecret correspondence with the enemies of our laws and religion, and therein, of betraying the great trust reposed in him. But this is a calumny, as ridiculous as it is false; for how was it possible for a person of my lord-mayor's figure to convey himself invisibly (as the story pretends Sir John Chapman did) from one end of the town to the other, without the privity of his own numerous family, who knew nothing of the matter, or the cognizance of that populous city between? But this I certainly know, That so far as the laws of civility and duty would admit, he always industriously avoided all secret conversation, and made it the leading principle of his conduct, through the difficult scene of affairs, to act upon no other secret orders or councils, but what were first proposed, and consented to, by his worthy brethren of the court of aldermen.

And as he thus acted upon the square in all his public administrations, so in his private capacity, he was a person of unspotted integrity and justice, in all his intercourses with men: One, who, as I verily believe, did never wilfully wrong any man in the world; of the truth of which, take one inflance for all: he having, many years ago, had great dealings with a certain person, well known in this city, there remained a large account between them, which, at length, was evened, adjusted, and discharged on both sides; but, several years after, he having some occasion to review this account, found there was a great mistake in it, and that there remained a very considerable sum of money due to his correspondent; upon which he immediately goes and acquaints him with it, and pays him to the utmost farthing. An example of justice, which I would to God those men would imitate, that make so bold with his memory.

Nor was he less benign and charitable than he was honest and just; for, as he was a good neighbour, and a hearty friend; fo he was a general lover of mankind; always free and forward to render good offices to all that needed, and craved his affistance.

And then for his alms, I must crave leave of his ashes to do a right to his memory, against his own inclinations; for, in his life-time, he was so severe an observer of our Saviour's caution.

caution, Take heed that you do not alms before men, so utterby abhorrent of that pharifaical humour, of performing his e good works in a clear echo, that might be fure to refound them after him in praises and commendations, that perhaps he too much affected privacy and concealment; and was so far from desiring that his light should glare out in vanity and oftentation, that he would not suffer it to shine out enough before men, to provoke them by the fight of it to glorify our com-6 mon Father in heaven; for his charity ran under ground, in fuch fecret channels, that some, I know, were apt to question whether the spring was not dry, or, at least, very scanty in its communications. But now he is gone, his memory, like the · leaves of roses, smells sweet and fragrant, after the rose is dead; for now that he is out of our hearing, and those few that knew his charities, and those many that were refreshed by them, dare own and attest them, without fear of offending his modest piety: it appears, by feveral hundreds of pounds which he gave in his life, upon several charitable occasions, besides the charitable legacies he bequeathed at his death, that he was, not only in word, but in deed, a true benefactor to mankind. " And then for his relative duties, he was, that which every good man is (and without it it is fulfome hypocrify for any man to pretend to religion), viz. a kind and obliging husband, a tender and provident father, a courteous and benevolent mafter, and in all the degrees of his relation, a ready affiftant, a " useful friend, and a generous benefactor."

The aforesaid Sir John, lest William his son and heir; also a daughter, married to Sir Oliver Ayshcomb, of Lyfford, in Berks, Bart. and Bethia.

Sir William Chapman, his fon, had the honour of knighthood conferred on him by his majesty King George I. in Oct. 1714, being the first year of his majesty's reign; and who some time after further honoured him with the title of Baronet. He married Elizabeth Webb, alias Wood, one of the daughters of Thomas Webb, alias Wood, of Kenfington, Esq; and one of the coheirs of Sir Henry Wood, who was one of the clerks of the board of Green-cloth, to K. Charles II. (and married his only daughter to the duke of Cleveland and Southampton,) by whom he left two fons, Sir John, his successor; and William, of Loundham-Hall, in Suffolk, who married a second wife, August 2, 1767, but has no issue. Lady Chapman died June 1733; and Sir William May 7, 1737, being, at the time of his death, governor of Christ's and St. Bartholomew's hospitals, and chairman of the fociety of treasurers and trustees of all the charity-schools within the bills of mortality.

Sir John Chapman, eldest son and heir, succeeded his father in dignity and estate, is the present baronet, and married, in Nov. 1736, Rachel, daughter and coheir of James Edmonson, by whom he hath no issue.

320. CODRINGTON, of Dodington, Gloucestershire.

Created BARONET, April 21, 1721.

HIS family is a younger branch of the Codringtons of Codrington, in the county of Gloucester; which was a family of good note in this county, in the time of Henry IV. John Codrington, Esq; being standard-bearer to K. Henry V. in his wars in France; and, as it appears by the heralds books, was then armed in a coat with Lions, in the service of the said King in battle, watch and ward, under his banner. And for the good services that the said John Codrington had done, or should do, and to the worship of knighthood, as it is there expressed, a farther addition was made to his arms in the 23d of Hen. VI.

The great grandfather of the present Sir William, was a younger son of this samily, his name Christopher; he went with his sortune into Barbadoes, in the reign of K. Charles I. where he married and died; leaving behind him two sons, Christopher and John.

Christopher became lieutenant-governor of the island of Barbadoes, and afterwards captain-general of the Leeward-Islands; in which post he died, leaving only two sons; one of them of his own name.

John, his brother, was colonel of the life-guards in Barbadoes, treasurer and privy-counsellor. He married a daughter of Col. Bates, of that island, by whom he had two sons; the late Sir William, and John.

Christopher, the son of the aforesaid Christopher, the captaingeneral c: the Leeward-Islands, was bred up at Oxford, and chofen fellow of All-souls college there; but afterwards betaking himself to a martial life, he attended King William in the wars in Flanders; where he so eminently signalized himself at the siege of Huy, that he was particularly taken notice of by that prince, and was soon advanced to be colonel of his guards, and afterwards succeeded his father in the government of the Leeward-Islands.

This gentleman was a person famous in his life for personal merit, and great accomplishments; but he will be always celebrated for his noble benefactions at his death; he having bequeathed to the aforesaid college of All-Souls, in Oxford, the fum of 10,000l. Rerling, for the building of a library, and furnishing it with books; besides his own inestimable library, collected with great skill and expence: as also an estate of 2000l. per ann, to the corporation for the propagation of Christian knowledge, for the building and endowment of a college at Bar-"He died at his seat at Barbadoes, on Good Friday, ' April 7, 1710, and was buried the day following, in the pafrish church of St. Michael, in that island; but his body was afterwards brought over to England, and interred in the chae pel of All-Souls college, in Oxford, where two Latin orations were spoke to his memory by two fellows of that college. "He was a gentleman of great parts, of a quick and piercing comprehension, a strong, solid, and distinguishing judgment, a retentive memory, a warm imagination, a fublime way of ' thinking, a methodical way of reasoning, and a voluble, diflinct utterance; he had his education first at Christ-Church, in Oxford, but afterwards removed to All-Souls college, and was chosen fellow there, and soon acquired the deserved chafracter of an accomplished, well-bred gentleman, and unie versal scholar. He afterwards betook himself to the army, but without quitting his fellowship; where his merit, and im-• pregnable courage, foon recommended him to his prince's fa-4 vour; who rewarded him with the government of the Leeward · Caribbee Islands: after the refignation of which, he led a very fretired life, and applied himself to study, particularly churchhistory, and metaphysics; of the latter, he was esteemed the greatest master in the world. In a word, he had, in his West-India retirement, made so wonderful a progress in his studies, 4 that had Providence spared him to return to his beloved univerfity, he would have been as much the object of their admiration, as he deserved to be the object of their delight.' The remainder of this great man's fortune descended to his nephew, and heir at law.

Sir William Codrington, who was advanced to the dignity of a baronet by his majesty King George I. in the eighth year of his reign.

He married Elizabeth, daughter of the late William Bethel, of Swindon, in the county of York, Esq. by whom he left isfue three sons and three daughters. Sir William, was member of parliament for Minehead, in Somersetshire, at the time of his death, which happened Dec. 17, 1738, at Dodington, and was succeeded by his eldest son.

Sir William Codrington, the present baronet, who is married. He is representative in parliament for Tewkesbury, in Gloucesteishire, and lieutenant-colonel of the militia of that county. Sir William's mother died, Feb. 7, 1761.

321. FREDERICK, of Westminster.

Created BARONET, June 10, 1723.

THIS family is descended from Sir John Frederick, Knt. (son of Christopher Frederick, citizen of London) lord-mayor of the city of London, 1662, who was one of the most considerable traders in the said city. He was a worthy benefactor to Christ's Hospital, and lest issue Thomas Frederick, of Downing-street, Westminster, Esq; who had three sons,

1. Sir John Frederick, Bart, of whom hereafter;

2. Sir Thomas Frederick, Knt. who went to the Indies, acquired a considerable fortune, and there married; and left issue, Thomas Frederick, Esq; member of parliament for Shoreham, in Sussex, who died in 1740; John Frederick, of Burwood, in Walton upon Thames, in Surry, Esq; who succeeded his brother in estate, and as member for Shoreham, and married a daughter of Sir Roger Hudson, Bart. Sir Charles, who has served in several parliaments for Queenborough, in Kent; in 1746, he was appointed clerk of deliveries in the office of Ordnance; in 1750 was made surveyor of the Ordnance, and assistant to the master-general of the Ordnance; in March 1761, he was elected Knight Companion of the noble order of the Bath, and installed May 26 following. He married Lucy, daughter to the Right Hon. Hugh Boscawen, Viscount Falmouth, and has issue. The other children of Sir Thomas were, Marisco, who is a colonel on half pay; and four daughters, of which the eldest married Alexander Hume, Esq. Lady Frederick, surviving Sir Thomas, was remarried to William Pointz, Esq; receiver-general of the excise.

3. Charles Frederick, Eíq; who died unmarried; also three daughters, Mary, the eldest, married Thomas Powell, of Nanteos, in Cardiganshire, Eíq; Leonora, (deceased,) who married Rumney Diggle, of Grays-Inn, Eíq; and Jane, who married, first, James Lannoy, of Hammersmith, in Middlesex, Eíq; and fince, his grace the duke of Athol.

Sir John Frederick, Bart, the eldest son, was advanced to this dignity in the ninth year of King George I. He married, in July, 1727, one of the daughters of — Kinnersley, Esq. by whom he lest two sons, Sir John, his successor, and Sir Thomas, the present Baronet. His lady died Aug. 31, 1749, and Sir John in Oct. 1755. He was succeeded by his eldest son,

Sir John Frederick, who died unmarried, March 24, 1757, and was succeeded by his only brother,

Sir Thomas Frederick, the present baronet, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Peter Bathurst, of Clarendon-Park, in Wiltshire, Esq; by which lady, who died Sept, 11, 1764, he has two daughters.

322. VANDEPUT, of Twickenham, Middlesex.

Created BARONET, Nov. 7, 1723.

HIS family hath been of great eminency in the Netherlands, and the present Sir George Vandeput, Bart. is the seventh in a lineal descent, from Henry Vandeput, of Antwerp, who fled from thence with several wealthy families, anno 1568, the 11th of Eliz. (on the persecution of the duke D'Alva to extirpate the protestant religion in the Netherlands,) and brought over hither a good estate; though several branches of this tamily are still remaining in the Low-Countries. Giles Vandeput, Esq; son of the above Henry, married Sarah, daughter and heir of John Jaupin, Esq; by whom a considerable estate came into this family. He died March 24, 1646, leaving Peter, his son and heir, who married Jane, daughter of Theodoric Hoste, of London, merchant, by whom he had seven children, whereof only two survived him, Sir Peter, his son and heir, and Jane, married to Sir Edward Smyth, in Theydon, in Essex, Bart, the father of these children, died Feb. 1668, aged 57, their mother in 1672, and are buried in St. Margaret Pattens, London.

Sir Peter Vandeput, Knt. son and heir, grandsather of the prefent baronet, held the sheriffalty of London, 1684, by commission, jointly with Sir William Gosselin; which is the only instance of that kind in history. He married Margaret, daughter of Sir John Buckworth, of West-Sheen, in Richmond, in Surry, Knt. by whom he had Sir Peter, and other children, and died April 1708, and was buried with his ancestors, in St. Margaret Pattens; Dr. Brady, minister of Richmond, in Surry, (in whose parish Sir Peter lived some years,) has given this account of him, in a fermon preached in that church, May 2, 1708: 'I am, I confess, no friend to those funeral panegyrics, which are promiseously dispensed to the deserving and undeferving; but fince to rob the dead is a fort of facrilege, fince the righteous should be had in everlasting remembrance, I think myself obliged to do some fort of justice to the extraordinary merit of our lately deceased brother; and I cannot but e avow, that I never met with any one, who had a better title to · a character of distinction. For,

' If, as we ought in the first place, we consider him as a christian, his piety was serious and unaffected; deeply imprinted upon his heart, and decently conspicuous in all his actions: he was a true fon of the church of England, unmov-· able in his adherence to her doctrine and her discipline, a con- Stant frequenter of her worship and her ordinances; and nothing fo much disturbed him in his tedious distemper, as its hindering him from attending on them to constantly as he " would have done; and all this was the refult of a mature judgment, and not owing to the happy prejudice of education; he understood his religion, and therefore he valued it; being determined to persevere in it, both by choice and inclination; and his affection to the church extended also to her ministers, "whom he highly esteemed in love, for their works sake; nay, it even descended to the meanest of her members, by his ex-cmplary beneficence and charity to the poor.

If we look upon him as an Englishman, and as a man of bufiness, he was extremely useful in his generation, having difcharged several offices of great trust and honour, with an unbiassed honesty, and irreproachable integrity; and that, in such times of difficulty and danger, as nothing could have stemmed, but a consummate wisdom, and the dictates of a conscience that was void of offence. He was a hearty friend to our prefent best of governments; into the interest of which, though he entered very early, yet was it without rashness or inconfideration; having first taken the advice, and then followed the opinion, of the most eminent divines and lawyers in the kingdom: but as he was thus cautious in fixing his principles, fo was he steady and unalterable in his practice accordingly; laying hold upon all occasions, and improving all opportunities, to advance and support the great cause he was engaged

If we reflect upon him further, as a gentleman, he was an exact pattern of true good breeding; his conversation was innocent, entertaining, and improving; his behaviour modest and engaging; his notions of things folid, and his reasonings upon them clear; and the fociety of his friends was fo dear and opleasing to him, as would always inspire him with such an air of chearfulness, as made him seem to forget the infirmity he Laboured under; an infirmity which few others would have borne so contentedly; and of which he supported the burthen for feveral years, with a great deal of christian patience, and refignation to the will of God.

What shall I say of him, as a husband, as a father, as a re- lation, as a neighbour, as a friend! How regularly did he goe vern his numerous family, and how happy was he in finding the good effects of his care! How just and faithful was he to his excellent lady! How tender and indulgent to his well-deferving children! How kind and respectful to his other relations! How obliging and ferviceable to all his acquaintances! How fincere and open-hearted to his more intimate friends! These are qualities, of which there are so many wit-' nesses present, that no one can suspect me, in what I have said of him, to have been biaffed by friendship, or by the many obligations, which shall ever make his memory he dear and precious to me, when he is nothing else but dust and ashes,

Let then a due remembrance of his uncommon accomplishments be a pomp more lasting than his funeral solemnity; and instead of those escurcheons which have adorned his hearse, he these the odors to embalm his reputation: and to conclude, let his memory still live in this durable character, of a serious christian, a true churchman, a lover of his country, a com-

323. MITCHEL, of West-shore, Scotland.

Created BARONET, June 19, 1724.

THE present baronet is lineal representative of the Mitchells of Bandeth, the principal family of that name in Scotland.

They were confiderable in the reign of King James VI. who for a reward of their loyalty and good fervices, granted to William Mitchel, (fon of John Mitchell, of Bandeth,) and to his heirs for ever, a charter of the lands of Bandeth, in the county of Sterling, with all the utual privileges, cum curiis mulierum merchetis, aucupationibus, venationilus, &c. And that the faid William's predecessors were very ancient possessor of these lands, is implied by these words in the charter; Dilecto nostro William, Mitchell, veteri native possessor; in the seizin, the said William, is stiled, Vir honorabilis, Willielmus Mitchell, de Bandeth; and the witnesses thereto are, James earl of Arran, and Patrick lord archbishop of St. Andrews, &c. The charter bears date at Holy-Rood-House, Feb. 8, 1584, under the great seal. There was also in the custody of the late Sir Andrew Mitchel, Bart. a presentation to the archdeaconry of Tingwall, in Zetland, granted by King Charles I. to Mr. John Mitchell, of Bandeth, son of James Mitchell, grandson to the aforesaid William; which bears date Nov. 21, 1629; since which time, the family has been settled in the north of Scotland.

This Mr. John Mitchel (eldest son of James Mitchell, of Bandeth, by Grizel, his wife, eldest daughter of —— Colvill, of Cleish, Esq; afterwards lord Colvill,) had, by Margaret, his wife, eldest daughter of Robert Forrester, of Queen's-haugh, one son, John, who married Jean, the only daughter and heir of Andrew Umphray, of Berrie; and had issue by her, sour sond soverel doughters.

fons, and several daughters;

1. John, of whom hereafter.
2. James Mitchel, of Girlesta (who had by Lillias Sinclair, his first wise, one son, John, who died young, and one daughter, Grizel, married to John Scott, of Gibleston, Esq; and by his second wise, Barbara, daughter of —— Sinclair, of House, he had one daughter, Elizabeth, married to Magnus Henderson, of Gardie.)

3. Charles, of Pittadied (who married two wives; first, Jean-Blackwood, sister to Sir Robert Blackwood, Kat. who died without issue; secondly, Margaret, daughter of Henry Wardlaw, of Petrivie, Bart. by whom he had issue, one son, and three daughters.)

And, 4. Andrew Mitchell, apothecary, in London.

74 MITCHELL, of West-shore.

Sir Andrew Mitchell, Bart. who was one of the honourable faculty of advocates, in Scotland. He died in 1764; but by whom he was succeeded we cannot pretend to say, not having been able to procure any account from this family.

324. FERMOR, of Welches, Suffex; and of Seavenoak, Kent.

Created BARONET, May 4, 1725.

SIR Henry Fermor, of Welches, in the county of Sussex, and of Sevenoak, in the county of Kent, Bart. so created by patent, bearing date the fourth day of May, 1725, in the 11th year of his majesty King George I. to him and his issue male, and in case of sailure of such issue, to Charles Eversfeild, jun.

of Denn, in the faid county of Sussex, Esq;

This family of Fermor originally came out of France, in the reign of King Edward III. and are yet remaining in Picardy, in that kingdom. The first that is mentioned in the visitation of Suffex, is John Fermor, probably the same person who settled in that county about the latter end of the said King's reign; who had issue, Walter Fermor, his son and heir, who married Margery, daughter and heir of - Lee; by her he had iffue, John Fermor, his fon and heir, who was the father of John Fermor, who was the father of another John Fermor, who had issue, William Fermor, his son and heir, who was the father of Alexander Fermor, of Welches aforesaid; which said Alexander married Elizabeth, the daughter of William Fowle, of River-hall, in Suffex, Esq; and they had issue, three sons, viz. William, Nicholas, and Henry Fermor, which last died without issue. Nicholas, their second son, married the daughter and heir of - Wood, Esq; by whom he had issue, Herbert Fermor, which Herbert had Nicholas, his fon and heir.

William

William Fermor, the eldeft fon of Alexander, refided at Welches, in the seventeenth year of Queen-Elizabeth. He married three wives; his first was ----, the daughter of ---Fulwar, Efg; by whom he had no iffue; his fecond wife was Elizabeth, the daughter of George Scott, of Congherst, in the parish of Hawkhurst, in the county of Kent, Esq; and by her he had iffue, William, and Anne Fermor; William Fermor married Alice, the daughter of --- Williams, of the city of London, Efg; but died without iffue; and Anne Fermor married Alexander Elliot, of Bibleham, in Mayfeild, in the county of Suffex, Gent. His third wife was Margaret, daughter of William Squire, of the city of London, Efg; by whom he had iffue, Alexander, and Bridget Fermor, which faid Bridget married two husbands; the first was John Olive, of Hastings, in the county of Suffex, Gent, by him the had iffue, Rowland, Judith, and Margaret Olive; the other was, Thomas Higgenfon, clerk, and by him the had iffue, Alexander Higgenson.

The faid Alexander Fermor, fon and heir of William, refided also at Welches, and, anno 1634, was very eminent for his loyalty and fidelity to King Charles I. and raifed a felect band, or company of foldiers, for the service of that prince, during the troubles in that reign; for which instance of his loyalty, he foon after suffered a long and close imprisonment, at Lewes, in Suffex, by order from those who had then usurped the government of this kingdom. The faid Alexander married Mary, eldest daughter of Anthony Fowle, of Rotherfield, in the said county of Suffex, Efg; by whom he had iffue three fons and three daughters, viz. William Fermor, eldest son (of whom hereafter;) Henry Fermor, fecond fon, who married Mary Elfeck, daughter of - Elfeck, of Seaford, in the county of Suffex, by whom he had a fon, who died in his infancy; and Anthony Fermor, third fon, who died unmarried. Elizabeth Fermor, who married Walter Lapp, Gent. Margaret and Mary Fer-

The faid William Fermor, eldest son and heir, was nine years of age, anno 1634, and in the year 1662, was a barrifter at law: he married three wives; the first was Mary, daughter of Robert Pickering, of the county of Suffex, Efq; by whom he had iffue only one fon, named Alexander, who died young; his fecond was Margaret, daughter of Peter Buck, of Rochester, in the county of Kent, Efq; by whom he had iffue William Fermor, who married Elizabeth, the daughter of - Shorthofe, of the city of London, Gent, and by her had iffue Mary, their only daughter, married to Charles Bere, of Devonshire, Esq; His third wife was Martha Thomas, daughter of Triftram Thomas, of the county of Kent, Gent. by whom he had iffue four fons, viz.

First, Sir Henry Fermor, Bart. who married two wives; his first was, Dorothy, daughter of John Thornycroft, Esq; and sister to Sir John Thornycroft, Bart. of Cheshire, by whom he had issue, Pankhurst Fermor, and two daughters, who all died young. His second wise was dame Mary Beckford, widow of Sir Thomas Beckford, of the city of London, merchant; (she was the daughter of William Thomas, Esq; and sister to Sir William Thomas, of Folkston, in the county of Sussex, Bart.) by whom he had no issue.

Second, James Fermor, who married the widow of — Luck, of Wadhurst, in the county of Surry, but died without issue.

Third, Charles Fermor, who married the daughter of Sir Theophilus Jones, and grandfather to general Jones, of the kingdom of Ireland; but he died without issue.

And fourth, colonel John Fermor, a man of great humanity and good-nature; he enjoyed a succession of many honourable commands in the army, due to his merit; for he served his country in many memorable battles abroad, during the late wars with France, in which he always distinguished himself with that courage which became a good soldier. He was member of parliament for the borough of Malmsbury, in the county of Wilts, at the time of his decease. He died unmarried, in the month of December, anno 1722, and was buried in the parish church of Seavenoak, in the county of Kent, to whose memory a monument is there erected.

Sir Henry Fermor, Bart. dying without issue, at Seavenoak, in Kent, June 3, 1734, was succeeded in the dignity, according to the limitation of the patent, by Sir Charles Eversfield, the present Baronet, son and heir of Charles Eversfield of Denn, in the county of Sussex, Esq; who is descended from an ancient family in that county, and represented the borough of Horsham in Sussex, in several parliaments.

325. FARNABY, of Kippington, Kent.

Created BARONET, July 21, 1726.

F this family, (which originally were seated in Cornwall,) was Henry Farnaby Esq; sometime mayor of Truro, in that county; whose son, Thomas Farnaby, married Dorothy, daughter of Thomas Foxcrost, of Bately, in the county of York, Esq; by whom he had one son, Thomas Farnaby, who was the first that settled at Kippington, in the parish of Seven-oak, in the county of Kent.

He was very zealous in defence of his fovereign K. Charles I. and being suspected to have favoured the rising of the county for the King, about Tunbridge, in 1643, was first imprisoned in Newgate, and afterwards at Ely-house, in Holbourn. He is celebrated by several eminent authors, as the chief grammarian, rhetorician, poet, latinist, and grecian of his time; which character, his excellent notes on most of the classicks sufficiently justify. He died June 12, 1647, in the seventy-second year of his age, and lies buried in the chancel of the church, at Sevennote

Which Thomas, by his first wise, daughter of John Peirce, of Lancells, had one son, John Farnaby, Esq; who, being of a martial disposition, heartily engaged in his sovereign's cause, as his father had done, and was very active during the civil wars, personally serving under prince Rupert, prince Maurice, and others; for which he was several times imprisoned, plundered, and sequestered; yet affisted to the utmost of his power in bringing about the Restoration. He married, first, Dorothy, daughter of John Thompson, of Aythorne, in East Kent, clerk, and by her left issue.

The faid Thomas Farnaby also left issue by his second wife, Anne, daughter of John Howson, bishop of Durham, two sone, Francis and Charles, who died without issue.

Francis Farnaby, Esq; his eldest son, succeeded him in his estate at Kippington, and married Judith, daughter of Richard Nicoll, of Highgate, in Middlesex, Esq; by whom he had two sons, Charles, and Francis, who was a student of Lincoln's-Inn, and died in his father's life-time, unmarried.

Which Charles Farnaby, Esq; in the second year of George I. received the honour of knighthood, was high sheriff of the county of Kent in the year 1720; and in the twelsth year of George I. was advanced to the dignity of a baronet of Great Britain. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Nathanael Letten,

3. Robert Hill, of Adderley, who left issue, Humphry Hill. Rowland Hill, of Hawkstone, Esq; eldest son of Humphry, and Alice,) married Mary, daughter of Thomas Dycher, of Muckleton, in Salop, Esq; by whom he had Rowland Hill, of Hawkestone, Esq; who, by Elizabeth his wise, daughter of William Jolisse, of Leek, in Staffordshire, Esq; was father of Rowland Hill, of Hawkestone, Esq; a gentleman remarkable for his great wissom, piety, and charity; who suffered very much by the rebels in the civil wars, temp. Car. I. by coming to the relief of his father, whom they had detained prisoner in the castle, near Hawkestone; and by Margaret, daughter of Richard Whithall, of Whitchurch, in Salop, Esq; had issue seven sons and four daughters; of which,

Rowland, the eldest, died unmarried.

Secondly, the honourable and reverend Richard Hill, LL.D. who died unmarried, at Richmond, in Surry, June 11, 1727, aged 73, and was buried at Hodnet, in Salop. He was in the time of King William III. envoy extraordinary to the court of Brussels; as also in that reign and Queen Anne's, to the courts of Turin, and of all the other Italian princes, except the Roman pontiff. In the time of King William, he was paymafter of his majesty's armies in Flanders, where, by his remarkably punctual and just dealings, he acquired to great credit as to be able by it to subsist the armies there, when remittances came too flow for that purpose from England, which great service gaind him the favour of the King his master, who, soon after the conclusion of the peace, appointed him to be one of the lords commissioners for executing the great office of lord high-treasurer of England. His merit also recommended him to the favour of Queen Anne, who, foon after her accession to the throne, appointed him one of the council to his highness prince George of Denmark, as lord high-admiral of England; and in 1705, fent him to the duke of Savoy, a prince remarkable for his politicks, with whom he succeeded so well as to bring him into the grand alliance.

In the reign of King George I, he retired from civil employments, and became fellow of Eron college, which fellowship he held till the time of his death. He was a statesman of great abilities, and eminent integrity; a man of general knowledge, and remarkable for his exceeding fine address and good-breeding. He added much to his own private estate and fortune, which was of itlelf confiderable, great part of which he gave among his relations in his life-time, and the rest at his death: he augmented many poor livings, and was, a confiderable benefactor to St. John's coilege, Cambridge, (where he had his education,) and an ornament to that society; he left them five rectories, viz. Ditchingham; South and North Lopham, united; the two Forncetts, ditto; Sturston; and Alborough; his heir to prefent, but always a fellow of that college, He subscribed largely to public works of charity, and did a great many private ones, in a wife and well-chose manner. Not long before he died, by the favour of his Majesty K. George I. anno regni 13, he obtained for his family this creation, to the dignity of a baronet of this kingdom, in the person of his nephew, and heir at law. Rowland Hill, of Hawkestone, Esq; to him, and to the heirs male of his body; in default of fuch, to his nephew, Samuel Hal, or Shendton park, in Staffordshire, Esq; and the heirs rule of his body; in default of fuch, to his nephew, Thomas Hill, of Tern-hall, in Salop, Efg; (who married Mary, daughter of William Noel, Eig;) and the heirs male of his body; and in default of fuch, to his nephew, the rev. Mr. Rowland il, rector of Francett, in Norfolk, and the heirs male of his body; which Rowland was afterwards rector of Hodnet, in Salop, and died unmarried, July 11, 1733.

John Hill, of Leighteich, E'q; (third son of Rowland, by Margaret, daughter of Richard Whitall, asoresaid,) took to wise—, daughter of —— Stubbs, of Shaw, in Staffordshire, Esq; by whom he had one son, Sir Rowland Hill, the first Baronet; and five daughters, viz. 327. TURNER, of Warham, Norfolk.

Created BARONET, April 27, 1727.

F this family, which for a confiderable time hath been refident in the county of Norfolk, was, Sir Charles Turner, Knt. who was chosen a representative in parliament for the borough of Lynn, as soon as qualified by age, and served without interruption in every parliament from the Revolution, till his Vol. III.

death; in the three first, with Sir John Turner, of Lynn-Regis, Knt. his uncle. In his youth, he spent spent several years in France, during which time the edict of Nantz was revoked. and the unhappy Protestants were persecuted in the most savage and cruel manner; from the fad spectacles he daily saw of ruin. milery, and death, wrought by popish zealots, upon persons of all ages, ranks and professions, convicted of no other crime than the keeping of a good conscience, in the worship of God, and from the observtions he had frequent occasion to make upon the abject slavery and wretched poverty to which the arbitrary power of the Grand Monarch had reduced his other subjects, he contracted so just a sense of true religion and liberty, as created an equal abhorrence of all the principles of popery and tyranny, and determined him, in every station, and in every season, to oppose with vigour all the subtle schemes set on foot for the introduction of both into these kingdoms: but, as his manner was, to refult the attempts of craft and malice, without any returns of rude affronts, or cruel revenge, fo, his uncommon civility, and generous behaviour, to men of all parties and conditions, was found to extort, if not love, yet respect, even from those who affected to stand in opposition to him. He was a commissioner of trade, and one of the lords of the admiralty, in the reign of Queen Anne, and in the reigns of King George L. and King George II. a commissioner of the treasury, and in the latter reign one of the tellers of the exchequer. In the 13th of King George I. he was advanced to the dignity of a baronet, and to the heirs male of his body, lawfully begotten; and for want of fuch issue, to (his brother,) William Turner, of Crostwight, in the county of Norfolk, Esq; and the heirs male of his body lawfully begotten; and for want of fuch issue, to (another brother,) John Turner, of Lynn-Regis, in the faid county. Esq; and the heirs-male of his body, lawfully begotten.

Sir Charles was twice married; first, (in 1689,) to Mary, daughter of Robert Walpole, of Houghton, in the county of Norfolk, Esq; (sister to the right hon. Sir Robert Walpole, knight of the most noble order of the garter, chancellor of the exchequer, and first lord-commissioner of the treasury,) by whom he had one son, John, and two daughters, Anne, married to the rev. Maurice Suckling, D. D. late prebendary of Westminster; and Elizabeth, to John Fowle, of Brome, of Norfolk, Esq; one of the commissioners of the excise. John Turner, Esq; only son of Sir Charles, died in his father's lifetime, leaving issue, by a daughter of Mr. Emerton, three daughters only, viz. Maria; Anne-Carolina, married to John massa, Esq; son and heir of Sir John Playters, of Sotterley, is, Bart. and Dorothy-Walpole.

Sir Charles married fecondly, Mary, daughter of Sir William Blois, of Cockfield-Hall, in Yoxford, in Suffolk, Knt. relict of Sir Neville Catlyn, of Kirby Kane, in Norfolk, Knt. by whom he had no iffue; she died Aug. 30, 1738, and he Nov. 24, following, and was succeeded in dignity and estate, according to the entail in the patent; (William Turner, Esq; his brother, dying without issue-male, June, 1735) by his next surviving brother,

Sir John Turner, Bart. who represented the corporation of Lynn, in the last parliament of Queen Anne, and had served the office of mayor of that corporation three times, and was, at his death, an alderman thereof; and customer and collector of that port. He died Jan. 7, 1738-9, leaving Sir John, his successor, and several daughters, one of which married Mr. Taylor; and was succeeded in dignity and estate by his only son,

Sir John Turner, the present baronet, who was elected member of parliament for Lynn, in the room of Sir Charles Turner, Bart. his uncle, and has ever fince been successively re-elected for that place, of which he is also an alderman. He married the daughter of Mr. Stonehouse, who died in 1749.

ARMS: Sable, a Cheveron, Ermine, between three Fer de Molines, Or; on a Chief, Argent, a Lion, passant, Gules.

SEAT: At Warham, in Norfolk.

KING GEORGE II.

328. Gough, of Edgbaston, Warwickshire.

Created BARONET, April 6, 1728.

Stafford; of which, John Gough, of Wolverhampton, made several purchases in the said county, and died in 1596, having issue Henry-John, (who died 1562,) and Anne, married first to Richard Jackson, and, secondly, to Ralph Flyer.

Henry Gough, of Wolverhampton, his son and heir, purchased, 6 Jac. I. a capital messuage, called Old Fallings, with the lands thereunto belonging, which afterwards became the seat of his son; he married Elizabeth, daughter and heir of John Leigh, of Wolverhampton, and died 1655, having had issue John and Richard.

John Gough, of Oldfallings, Esq; purchased, in 1656, of John Knight, Esq; the manor and lordship of Bessecat, and in 1659, the manor and grange of Walton, both in the county of Stafford; he had two wives, first, Bridget, daughter of John Assection, of Staffordshire, Esq; secondly, Margaret, daughter of Wedgwood, of the same county, Esq; and died 1665; by the latter marriage he had two daughters, Elizabeth, married to Woodhouse; and Mary, to Huntbach, but by his first wise he had four sons and four daughters; I. Sir

1. Sir Henry Gough, of Perry-Hall, in Staffordshire, who was knighted by King Charles II. and purchased of Sir Edward Coney, Knt. Edward Grey, and Richard Best, Esqrs. the moiety of the manor of Perry-Barr, in the said county of Stafford, to which he removed, and has fince continued the feat of this branch of the family; he married Mary, daughter of Sir Edward Littleton, of Pillaton-Hall, in Staffordshire, Bart. (by whom he had issue, Anne, married to John Roberts, of London, merchant; Walter, of Oldfallings, who married Martha, daughter of Thomas Harwood, of Shrewsbury, Esq. Harry, of Sollyhull, in Warwickshire, married to Elizabeth, daughter of Morgan Hind, of London, Esq; Bridget, married to John Hunt, of Winsden-green, in Staffordshire, Esq. Jane, wife of . William Vernon, Esq; Isabella, married to Lancelot Lee, of Coton, in Shropshire, Esq. and Charles Gough, of London, merchant;) 2. Dorothy, married to - Arnold, of Westminster; 3. John, who died unmarried; 4. Anne, of Wolverhampton, who died unmarried; 5. Bridget, married to John Newbury, of London; 6. Richard, of whom hereafter; 7. Thomas, who died a batchelor; and 8. Judith, married to William Dugdale, of Blythe-Hall, in Warwickshire, Esq; son of Sir John Dugdale, Knt. and grandson of the famous Sir William Dugdale, Knt.

Sir Richard Gough, Knt. younger brother to Sir Henry Gough, of Perry-Hall, Knt. raised a considerable estate from the small stock of a younger brother's fortune, by the India and China trade. He was remarkable for his great industry and application to business, and exact justice in his dealings: he was reckoned to be well skilled in the knowledge of the British trade, and commerce in general, and in that particular branch of it to the East Indies equal to any in his time: he was brought up under that eminent merchant, Sir James Houblon; and had, even whilst a youth, the advice and assistance of the great Sir Josiah Child; he travelled through most of the trading towns in the Mediterranean and Levant seas, and drew his observations from the men of business of all countries: he afterwards made four several voyages to India and China, with unparalleled succels and reputation; and thus wound up the series of his fortune. He was knighted by King George I. and in the year 1717, purchased the lordship of Edgbaston, with the appurtenances, of the lord viscount Faulconbridge, and lady Bridget his wife, who was one of the daughters and coheirs of -Middlemore, Esq; and came to the sole right of Edgbaston, by a deed of partition with her fifter, who was afterwards married to Sir John Shelly, Bart. and had for her share, among other lands, the manor of Sollyhull, in Warwickshire, with its appurcensaces.

purtenances, which was afterwards purchased by Harry Gough. Eig; son of Sir Henry Gough, Knt. and nephew to Sir Richard Gough, of Edgbaston. About the year 1725, Sir Richard having obtained a royal contribution of 600l. towards finishing the church at Birmingham, determined to do something in fayour of his own parish church of Edgbaston; and having before put the church into very good repair, the greatest part of which was at his own expence, there rested little to do on that account; so he resolved to augment the living, by obtaining the Queen's bounty, and accordingly gave his bond in due form to the commissioners to secure the payment of 2001. so soon as they should appropriate the like sum, according to the flatute. In confideration of which charity and benevolence to the church, the dean and chapter of Litchfield, by consent of the bishop, agreed to grant the perpetual advowson of the curacy of Edgbaston, to Sir Richard Gough, and his heirs for ever. He married Anne, daughter and one of the coheirs of Nicholas Crifpe. of London, Esq; by whom he had issue three sons, and four daughters; Anne, married to John Bussiere, of St. James's, Westminster, Esq; Mary, married to Edward Barker, of London, merchant, who died 1724; Bridget, who died unmarried, 1720; Richard, who died also unmarried, 1710; Sir Henry, of whom hereafter; Charlotte, married to Sir William Saunderson, of Greenwich, in Kent, Bart. and John Gough, Esq; comptroller of the excise, in Scotland, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. Cocks. Sir Richard died Feb. 0, 1727-8, and his lady, Dec. 31, 1731.

Sir Henry Gough, eldest surviving son and successor to his father, was advanced to the dignity of a baronet, I Geo. II. and to the heirs male of his body, lawfully begotten; and for want of such issue, to John Gough, of Chelsea, in the county of Middlesex, Esq; (his brother,) and the heirs male of his body. lawfully begotten. Sir Henry is the present baronet, and was member for Totness, in the seventh, and for Bamber, in the eighth, parliaments of Great Britain, (for which corporation his father, Sir Richard, served in the two parliaments of King King George I, and in the first of King George II, till his death.) He married, first, Catharine, second daughter of Sir John Harpur, of Calke, in Derbyshire, Bart. (by Catharine, his wife, fourth daughter and coheir of Thomas, lord Crewe, of Stene, in Northamptonshire,) by whom he had no issue; she died at Edgbaston, June 22, 1740. Sir Henry married to his second lady, July 2, 1741, Barbara, only daughter of Reynolds Calthorp, of Elvetham, in the county of Southampton, Eig; by Barbara, his wife, eldest daughter (and the only one who married) of Henry lord viscount Longueville, by Barbara, his wife, fecond second daughter, and one of the coheirs of Sir John Talbot, of Laycock, in the county of Wilts, Knt. This lady was as remarkable for her piety and good sense, as she was for her great age. The said viscountess Longueville died in Jan. 1763, in the ninety-fifth year of her age, and fifty-ninth of her widow-hood, leaving an example to posterity of the happy effects of a well-spent life, as she perfectly retained all her senses to the last, and selt no pain or infirmity. Sir Henry Gough, by Barbara, his wife, has three sons, Henry, Richard-Thomas, and John-Calthorpe; also three daughters; Barbara, married, Jan. 9, 1770, to Isaac Spooner, son of Isaac Spooner, of Elmdon, near Birmingham, Esq; Charlotte, married in July, 1768, to Sir John Palmer, of Carlton, Bart. and Elizabeth.

329. WYCHE.

His Majesty's, Resident at the Hans Towns.

Created BARONET, Dec. 20, 1729.

POR the name, there was anciently a province in Mercia, called Wiccia, and the people Wiccii; the capital of which province was Worcester.

The word wie, in German, is said to signify a bay, a creek, or winding of a sea, or river; in Saxon, sometimes a bay, and sometimes a castle; and the salt-pits in Worcestershire and Cheshire were, by the old English, called wiches, or salt-holes.

And in both these shires we find many considerable persons of the name of Wyche.

Of these, the first is, Peter de Wycha, who, in 1159, (temp. Hen. II.) was one of the witnesses to the convention between Roger, prior of Malverne, in Worcestershire, and William Burdet, founder of Waucot abby, in Warwickshire, which he made a cell to Malvern.

The next is, Saint Richard de la Wiche, some time lord bi-

This Richard was born at Wiche, (i. e. Droitwiche,) in Worcestershire, educated first at Oxon, then at Paris, then at Bonoria, then at Orleans. At his return made chancellor to saint Edmund, archbishop of Canterbury, and at length chancellor of the university of Oxford. Afterwards provided to the bishopric of Chichester, by the pope, and confectated by the holy father himself, on the first Sunday in Lent, anno 1247.

He so governed the charge committed to him, that all men reverenced him very greatly, not only for his great learning, but much more for his diligence in preaching; and, above all, for his integrity of life and conversation. He died the second or third or April, 1253, in the 56th year of his age, and was busied in his own cathedral. He was canonized in 1262, the form whereof, with the office appointed to be used on his sestional, may be seen among the MSS. in the library of Corpus Chiffi coll. Oxon. No. 154; and on the sixteenth of the kalends of July, 1276, his body was taken up from the place where it was first buried, and put into a rich shrine. The ceremony of this translation was performed by Robert, archbishop of Canterbury, in the presence of King Edward I. and of all the nobility and prelates of England.

His life was written by Ralph Bocking, a Dominican; an abridgment whereof, by Mr. Elmer, (as also his last will,) may be seen among the MSS. in the library of Trinity coll. Camb. No. 262.

The next of this family whom I read of, is another Richard, called Richard the Lollard, a cotemporary, and, in all probability, a companion of the famous John Wicliff. The answer of this Richard, to the articles objected against him, may be seen among Sir Thomas Bodley's MSS. at Oxon, and his recantation, among the MSS. of the King's library, at St. James's, No. 349.

The next is another Richard, called Richard Wyche, of

The next is another Richard, called Richard Wyche, of Wico-Maibano, that is, Wyche Malbanc, (so named from William Malbedeng, or Malbanc, who had that place given him by the Conqueror, now Nantwiche, in Cheshire; he had issue,

Sir Hugh Wyche, mercer, sheriff of London in 1444, (23 Hen. VI.) and lord-mayor in 1461, (1 Ed. IV.)

This Sir Hugh Wyche died in 1466, and was buried at St. Margaret's. Lothbury, where, before the fire, he had a fair monument, fignifying, that he gave to his third wife 3000l. and to poor maids marriages 500 marks.

After his death, the lady Wyche brought an action in the King's Bench, against the parion of St. Margaret's, for that the said parson parson had taken away a coat of arms, and certain senons, with the arms of Sir Hugh Wyche, her late husband, and a sword, forth of the chapel, where the said Hugh was biried. The parson pleaded, that these arms, penons, and sword were matters of offerings and oblations, and therefore did, o' right, belong to him. But justice Yelverton, (ancestor of iir Christopher Yelverton, Knt.) then one of the justices of the King's Bench, (who giveth the rule in the case,) holdeth t no plea; and that these are not intended either as offerings or oblations, but hung up in honour of the deceased; and therefor do not belong to the parson.

This lady Wyche, (relict of Sir Hugh,) was burid in St. Dionis Backchurch, to which she gave lands for sermos, &c.

The next of this family, whom I read of, is fatherRichard Wyche, a Cystercian monk, of Whalley abby, in Lacashire, which Richard, in 1521, (12 Hen. VIII.) then studying in St. Bernard's college, Oxon, went out bachelor of divinity in that university.

The next I read of, is, John, a secular, sometime raster of St. Peter's college, at Lingfield, in Surrey, who die at that place, May 22, 1545, where he lies buried.

The next is Richard Wyche, of Davenham, in Chesire; he had iffue.

Richard Wyche, of London, merchant, who marrie Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Richard Saltingstall, Knt. lord-1ayor of London, by whom he had twelve fons and fix daughts, and died Nov. 20, 1621, and lies buried at St. Dunstan' in the east, where, before the fire, he had a fair monumen in the north aile of the chancel.

Peter, fixth fon of Richard aforefaid, was a merchar, afterwards knighted, made one of the gentlemen of the priv-chamber to King Charles I. and for twelve years his ambiador at Constantinople, being the eighth in number of thos English gentlemen who had been vested with that character.

This Sir Peter married Jane, daughter of Sir Wilam Meredith, of Wrexham, in Denbighshire, Knt. paymastr in the reigns of Queen Elizabeth and King James I. of theirnajesties army.

In 1633, while Sir Peter was ambassador, happied that dreadful fire at Constantinople, which consumed 70,00 houses.

Sultan Amurath IV. in his letters to King Charles according to the flourishing way of the East, stiles this Sir Per one of the chief of your most esteemed, Sir Peter Wyche. Ad again. your ambassador, the honoured amongst the people of Mesfiah, the esteemed and famous lord, and your trustisir Peter Wyche; whose end be happy. And again, the mohonourable among the christian lords. Sir Peter Wyche, your ambef-

The faid Sultan, at the inftance of Sir Peter, for a while, took off the Narge, or custom on all English cloth brought into Turky. How it came afterwards to be laid on again, those who then beganto make up two forts of Colchester baize, would, (if alive) be best able to relate.

While Sir Peter was thus ambassador at the Porte, his lady being thre with him, the favourite Sultana Queen defired one day to se her, whom she had heard so much talk of. Whereupon lady Wiche, (accompanied with her waiting-women, all neatly dressed is their great verdingals, which was then the court fashion,) ttended her highness. The Sultana received and entertainec her very respectfully; but, withal, wondering at her great an spacious hips, asked whether all English women were so made and shaped about those parts? To which lady Wyche answere, that they were all made as other women; and withat shewed her the fallacy of her apparel: at which the Sultana, who verly believed it had been her natural and real shape, was hardly onvinced of the truth.

Afternis return, Sir Peter was made comptroller of the houfhold, ad a privy-counsellor; and, as such, figned the King's declaration, bearing date 15 June, 1642, disavowing any intent of war. He was a very honest, plain man, (saith the noble historian, and gratified Sir Thomas Jermyn very liberally for his white fiff, when the court was very low. The plain English whereof as I am told by a descendant of his, is, that he lent the Kin 30,000! and dying foon after, thereby much hurt himfelf ad family.

This ir Peter died at Oxon, in the beginning of December, and was reried on the 7th of the same month, 1643, in the fouth aile, adjusing to the choir of Christ-church there; leaving then behind Im, Jane, a daughter, (married to Sir John Greenville, earl of Bth, by whom the had iffue five fons and eleven daughters; whreof Jane was married to William, second son of Sir Thomas Bower; and Grace, to George, eldest son of Philip, fon and hir of Sir George Carteret; and Peter and Cyrill, both afterward knighted.

I comenow to his eldest son, Peter, and his descendants, the fenior brach of this family.

This Iter was born in London, admitted a gentleman commoner of Exeter coll. Oxon. 29 April, 1643, aged fifteen years; left the said house in Oct. 1644, went to Trinity-hall, in Cambridge, aid there took the degree of master of arts; and afterwards traelled. About the time of the restoration of King Charles II he received the honour of knighthood; was incorporated master of arts of Oxon, 1663, (being then also F. R. S.) and afterwards employed in feveral embaffies; as envoy to the court of Muscovy, in 1669, and arrived at Riga on the first of May, (on his way to which place he was complimented by the magistrates of Dantzick; entertained at Coningsberg, by the elector of Brandenburgh; and honourably treated through the territories of the duke of Courland;) resident at Hamburgh, &c. from which last he returned in 1681.

This Sir Peter first invented the geographical cards, in 52 copper-plates. He also translated the life of Don John de Castro, vice-roy of India, wherein are feen the Portuguese voyages, discoveries, and conquests, in the East-Indies; by Jacintho Freire, of Andrada, into English; Lond. 1664, fol. Likewise a short relation of the river Nile; from a Portuguese MS. (at the defire of the Royal Society,) Lond. 1669, 8vo.

He married Isabella, daughter of Sir Robert Bolles, of Scampton, in Lincolnshire, Bart. (by Mary, daughter of Sir Edward Hussey, of Hunington, in Lincolnshire, Bart.) and had issue, 1. John; 2. Barnard, a merchant; 3. Peter, who died at Cambray, unmarried; 4. George, a merchant, who died at Pondicherry, unmarried.

Of these, John, the eldest, was envoy extraordinary at Hamborough, and married Bethesda, daughter of Mr. Savage, and had iffue, Cyrill, and a daughter, Sophia, the wife of Dr. Thomas Thomas, some time preacher to the English merchants at Hamborough, and afterwards rector of St. Vedaft, Forster-lane, and dean of Peterborough.

Cyrill Wyche, Esq; only son and heir, was, at the age of nineteen, appointed resident at Hamburgh, by Q. Anne, and fent by the late King, his minister to the Circle of Lower Saxony, and afterwards his envoy extraordinary to the faid Circle, and by his late majesty advanced to the dignity of a baronet; he continued resident to the Hans Towns many years, and was afterwards his majefty's envoy extraordinary to the court of Russia.

Sir Cyrill married Anne, daughter of Mr. Magnus Wedderkop, first minister to the late duke of Holstein, by whom he had issue two sons, Magnus, who was an ensign in the army, and died unmarried in the twenty-second year of his age, 1740; and John, who died young; and two daughters, Frederica and Amelia; the eldest of which married to Mr. Holmer, counsellor of state to the duke of Holstein.

Bernard, second son of the second Sir Peter Wyche, was an East-India merchant, and settled at Surat, where he married Elizabeth, daughter of -, an English merchant of the same place; place; which Elizabeth was the relict of Mr. John Robinson, another English merchant there. They had issue,

Peter, born at Surat, 25 Dec. 1709, educated first at the Charter-house school, in London; then at Jesus coll. Camb. after which he travelled. He settled afterwards at Godeby Maureward, in Leicestershire, (the lordship of which town he purchased of the heirs of Samuel Lowe, Esq; late of that place,) where he had a handsome seat, (for the most part of his own building,) and was, in 1741, high sheriff of the county.

This Peter married Elizabeth, only daughter of Mr. John Browne, merchant, (by Mary his wife,) of Boston, in Lincolnshire, and had issue, Peter, born March 3, 1740.

I come now to Cyrill, fecond fon of the first Sir Peter Wyche, abovementioned, and his descendants, the junior branch of this family.

This Cyrill was born at Constantinople, when his father was ambassador there, and had his name from his godfather, Cyrill, the patriarch of that city, whom the Jesuits murdered.

This Cyrill, the patriarch, by the way, was a good man, who employed one Mataxa, a caloyer, of Cephalonia, to buy a fount of Greek types, in England, and therewith set up a Greek press at Constantinople for the benefit of his own nation. There they printed Bishop Jewel's Apology, translated into Greek, and divers other pieces; which (with a famous MS. of Phocius, some time patriarch of Constantinople, and the only copy of that book in the world, given the English ambassador by a Greek bishop, as the greatest rarity of the East, and by him intrusted with Mataxa, to be transcribed by his deacons, that, having double copies, such great riches might not perish in one bottom,) were, by the contrivance of the jesuits, all seized by the vizir; and though the printed books and types were afterwards restored, yet this MS. (which consisted of lectures, determinations, and other discourses against the church of Rome) could never be recovered. The ambassador moved the vizir, who used all his power; and the patriarch published an excommunication for many months, if perchance any Greek had bought it of the foldiers, to return it, but in vain. But I return to Cyrill his godson.

This Cyrill went out M. A. of Christ-church, Oxon, in the times of the usurpation; was afterwards knighted, secretary to the lieutenancy in Ireland, F. R. S. and created LL. D. 1665, at which time he was a burgess in parliament for Kellington, in Cornwall, as he was afterwards in divers other parliaments.

In the beginning of July, 1693, (5 W. & M.) the lord Capel, this Sir Cyrill Wyche, and William Duncomb, Esq; were conflicuted constituted lords justices of Ireland, in the room of the lord Sydney. And,

In 1700, the said Sir Cyrill was, by the then English house of commons, appointed one of the thirteen trustees to see to the refumption of the forfeited estates in Ireland.

This Sir Cyrill purchased Poyning's manor, in the parish of Hockwold, in Norfolk, as also divers other manors there, and dying Dec. 29, 1707, was buried in St. James's church, Westminster. He had three ladies, viz. 1.——, daughter of Sir Thomas Jermyn; 2.——, relict of Sir —— Perrot, Bart. (I think, Sir Herbert;) 3.——, daughter of ——— Evelyn, of ——, in Surry, Esq;

Sir Cyrill Wyche, had issue,

Jermyn Wyche, Esq, who married Mary, only daughter of John and Mary Hungerford, He died Jan. 7, 1719, and was buried at Hockwold. The issue of Jermyn Wyche, were,

Cyrill Wyche, of Hockwold, Esq; high sheriff of Norfolk, anno 1729; and two daughters, Catharine, married to the rev. Robert Wright, rector of Herling, in Norfolk; and Mary, to Robert Clough, of Feltwell, in the same county, Esq.

N. B. The reason why so many persons of this family were called by the name of Richard, as I take it, was, because some fancied Richard the saint; and some, Richard the Lollard. Richard, the saint, bath, at this day, a wake observed in honour of his memory, at Droitwiche.

330. Robinson, of Rookby, Yorkshire.

Created BARONET, March 10, 1730.

THE Robinsons now of Rookby-park, in the North Riding of the county of York, are originally descended from the Robertsons of Strouan in the shire of Perth, in the Highlands of Scotland, where, to this day, there is a considerable and numerous clan of that name.

1. The first of this branch was William Robinson, who settled at Kendall in Westmoreland, in the reign of King Henry VIII. This William had issue, two sons and one daughter, Ralph, Henry, and Ursula; this daughter Ursula married Thomas More, of London, merchant; Henry, the younger son, was a citizen of London, whose descendant asterwards settled at Cransord, in Northamptonshire, and had the title of Baronet conserved on him, June 22, 1660, by King Charles II. His descendant, Sir George, the present baronet, continues there to this day.

2. Raiph, the eldest son, settled at Brignall, near Rookby, and married Anne, daughter and heir of William Philips, Esq. by whom he had iffue William, his only son and heir.

3. This William was the first that resided at Rookby, which in the reign of Queen Elizabeth he purchased of Sir Thomas Rookby, it having, till then, been the seat of that family, from the Conquest. He married Mary, daughter of Thomas Hill, Lsq; leaving issue two sons and one daughter, Thomas, John, and Catharine; his daughter, Catharine, was first married to Percival Philips, of Wensley, in the county of York, Esq; by whom she had issue three daughters, Mary, Lucy, and Anne, coheirs; and secondly, to Richard Smith, of Cottingham, in the said county, Esq; by whom she had no issue. John, the second son, was rector of Burniston, in the county of York, and married Catharine, daughter of doctor Wilson, by whom he had issue, William, his only son and heir. He was buried in the chancel in Rookby church.

4. Thomas the eldeft fon, was killed in the civil wars, and buried at Leeds, in the county of York, June 20, 1643, where an elegant monument is erected to his memory. He married Frances, daughter of Leonard Smelt, of Kirby-Hetham, in Yorkshire, Esq; by whom he had four sons and two daughters, William, Thomas, Matthew, and Leonard; Mary, and Frances. His fecond daughter, Frances, married Goorge Grey, of Sudwick, in the bishoprick of Durham, Esq; and Mary, his eldest daughter, married Christopher Blenco, of Blenco, in the county of Cumberland, Esq; by whom she had Henry Blenco, of Blenco, Esq; Thomas, the second son of this Thomas, was a merchant at York, and died unmarried. Matthew, the third son of this Thomas, was rector of Burniston, in the county of York, and married Jane, daughter of William Pickering, of Thornborough, but died without iffue. Leonard, fourth for of this Thomas, was chamberlain of the city of London, and was knighted by King William, Oct. 29, 1692. He married Deborah, Daughter of Sir James Collet, Knt. then one of the Sheriffs theriffs of London, and had issue one son, Thomas, and six daughters. His ion Thomas married, and left three ions, Matthew, Thomas, and Leonard, of which the two last died without iffue. The eldest son, Matthew, of Edgeley, in the county, and of the city of York, and who is now living, married Elizabeth Drake, grand-daughter of Thonas Morris, of Mount-Morris, in the county of Kent, by whom he has five sons and two daughters, Matthew, Morris, William, John, and Charles; Elizabeth, and Sarah; Elizabeth narried Edward Montague, of Allethy, in Yorkshire, and Sandysord, in Berkthire, (member of parliament for Huntingdon, and a near relation to the earl of Sandwich, and related also to the various other branches of the illustrious house of Montague). The youngest daughter, Sarah, married George Lewis Scot, Efg; commilfioner of excise, but neither of them have had any issue. Matthew, the eldest son, is settled at Mount-Morns, in the county of Kent, and is still unmarried; and was, in several parliaments, member for Canterbury. Morris is one of the Six Clerks, and a Sollicitor in Chancery; William is a clergyman; John, a Fellow of Trinity college, in Cambridge, and Charles, is a Barrifter at law.

6. Thomas,

The eldest daughter of Sir Leonard, married —— Baker, Esq; consul at Algiers, who lest a daughter and heir, married to the late lord Chetwynd, and had two sons and three daughters. The youngest daughter married —— Spinks, Esq; who lest a numerous issue, and very valuable possessions in Northamptonshire. The other sour daughters were also married, and lest numerous issues.

5. William, eldest son and heir of Thomas, was called the Justice, from his acting in that station, during a long course of years, in the North Riding of Yorkshire, and county of Durham, where he was so universally esteemed for his warm zeal, distinguished honour, and strict impartiality, that his samily's name became absorbed in the merit of the magistrate; and he is, to this moment, generally mentioned, even among his countrymen, by the respectable appellation of the Justice.

He married Mary, the eldest daughter, and one of the coheirs of Francis Layton, of Layton and Rawdon, in the county of York, Esq; one of the masters of the jewel office to King Charles I. and II. by whom he had issue one son two daughters, Thomas, Frances, and Anne; his second daughter, Anne, died young, and his eldest daughter, Frances, married Michael Pickering, of Thornborough, in the county of York, Esq; by whom she had one daughter, who died young: he lived to a great old age, and was buried at Rookby church, where there is a handsome inscription on his monumental stone.

- 6. Thomas, the only son and heir of William, died in June, 1719, aged seventy-two, and was also buried in Rookby church. He married Grace, eldest daughter of Sir Henry Stapleton, of M-ton, in the county of York, Bart. by Elizabeth, the second daighter of Conyers Darcy, earl of Holderness; he lest one son, William, and one daughter, Elizabeth, who died unmarried, amo 1739, aged sixty-five, and was buried at Martin-abbey, in he county of Surry, where many of this family are interred.
- 7. William, the only son and Heir of Thomas, died Feb. 24, 1719, aged fory sour, and was also buried at Martin-abby, in the county of surry. He married, in the year 1699, Anne, daughter and her of Robert Walters, of Cundall, in the North Riding of Yorkhire, who died in July, 1730, aged fifty-three, and was buried near her husband, at Martin-abbey, aforesaid: in memory of whom, the under-mentioned Sir Thomas, her eldest son, erecled an obelist, in the old Roman highway, passing by Rookby-park wall; upon which there is this inscription:

Quisquis es, et quoquo properas, Viator, Confifte paululum, Et lege quæ brevem pensabunt moram, In memoriam, nempe diuturnam Mihique, semper honoratam, Anne Robinson. Antiquæ et generolæ familiæ de Walters, (Quæ in Villa de Cundall, in com. Ebor. Obiit 26 Jul. 1730. Ætatis suæ 53.

Of this marriage of William and Anne, there were feven fons and two daughters, Sir Thomas, the present baronet, Robert, William, Henry, John, Richard, and Septimus, (so christened, being a seventh son, without a daughter intervening;) Grace, the youngest daughter, was born at Stockwell, in the country of Surry; anno 1718, and married in April, 1739, to the rev. Mr. William Freind, of Whitney, in the county of York, only fon and heir of Dr. Robert Freind, prebendary of Westminster, and canon of Christ-church, in Oxford; by which marriage there were three fons, Robert, William, and John, and one daughter. He died Nov. 26, 1766, being then dean of Canterbury, and rector of Whitney, and also of Islip, both in the county of Oxford, aged fifty-one. Anne, the eldest child and daughter, was born at York, Nov. 4, 1700, and was married at Paris, anno 1730, (being then abroad with Sir Thomas and lady Lechmere) to Robert Knight, Esq; father of the present earl of Catherlough. By Mr. Knight she had one son, who died at Rhemes, in France, anno 1767, aged thirty-fix, without issue. Her first husband dying in Nov. 1744, she married, secondly, in March, 1752, James Cressel, Esq. secretary to the Dowager Princess of Wales, and comptroller of the accounts of the army, and is now living. Mrs. Cressel died June 5, 1750, aged fifty-nine, and was buried at Martin-abby aforefaid.

Robert, the second son, died at the age of sourteen.

Henry, the fourth son, was bred to the law, but was some time after in the royal navy, from whence he went into the army; and, being sent by general Wentworth, and admiral Vernon, on the most dangerous attack of St. Lazare, near Carthagena, he was killed on that command, in 1741, being then a major, and sell universally lamented.

John, the fifth fon, died young.

Septimus, the seventh son, was educated at Westminster school, went through the King's college there, and was elected from thence to Christ-church, Oxford. He afterwards went into the army, and served as aid-de-camp to general Wade, during the rebellion in 1745; as also to that general and lord Ligonier, respectively, in the late war on the continent, but quitted the army on his being appointed gentleman usher of the Black rod to his Majesty, on which occasion he was knighted. He died in Nov. 1754, at Brough, in Westmoreland, of an apoplexy, in his way to Rookby, aged sifty-sive, and was buried in the family vault there.

William, the third son, was bred to the law; is now living, and unmarried.

Richard, the fixth son, was educated at Westminster school, and went, as a King's scholar, through the college there, and was elected from thence to Christ-church, Oxford. He went into orders, and was preferred by archbishop Herring to the rectories of Etton and —, near Beverly, and was also by his Grace made Prebendary of York, and had another rectory given him in the West-riding of Yorkshire, by the late Marquis of York. III.

Rock-

Rockingham. In the year 1751, he went with the dake of Duit into Ireland, as his first chaplain, and was that year, by he grace, made bishop of Killala; and afterwards, by the Duited Bedind, in 1759, when lord lieutenant of Ireland, permetel to the bishopricks of Leighlin and Ferns. He was allo, by the same lord lieutenant, translated, in 1761, to the fee of Kitae. ()n the 11th of January, 1765, he was advanced by the dise of Northumberland, then lord lieutenant of Ireland, to the mimany of that kingdom, in the room of primate flome, deceased, and afterwards conflicted lord almoner and vice chancelor of the university of Dublin. He is now living, and uneversit, and has rebuilt the palace of Armagh.

4. We now come to Sir Thomas, the eldeft fon of the fail William, and the eighth in descent since the family came for England. He was advanced to the dignity of a baroner of Gree Britain, in 1730, (being the third made by his late Magely) by the name of Thomas Robinson, of Rookby-park, in the county of York, Esq; and to the heirs male of his body lawfally begenten; and, for want of such issue, to William Robinson. Ele happened of the faid Thomas Robinson, and the heirs male of his hopely lawfully begotten; and, for want of fuch male iffice, w Henry Robinson, Esq; another brother of the said Thomas Konnion, and the heirs male of his body lawfully begottes; and, for default of such issue, to Richard Robinson, Esq. anther brother of the said Thomas Robinson, and the heirs mak of his body lawfully begotten; and, for default of fuch iffice, to Septimus Robinson, Esq; another brother of the said Thomas Robinson, and the heirs male of his body, lawfully begotten; and for default of such issue, to Matthew Robinson, of Edgeley, in the county of York, and city of York, Elq; (being the grandion of Sir Leonard Robinson, beforementioned) and the herrs male of his body lawfully begotten; which patent was dated March 10, 1730.

Sir Thomas, early in life, went into the army, but foon after religned his commission in favour of his brother Sir Septimus. On the 21st of August, 1727, he was elected, at the beginning of the eighth parliament of Great Britain, member for Morpeth, in the county of Northumberland, together with Henry lord viscount Morpeth, then heir apparent to Charles, third earl of Carlisle. His conduct, as a member, may be easily scen in the parliamentary debates of that period, which have long fince been printed, and read with public approbation, Soon after the expiration of that parliament, Nov. 6, 1735, he was made one of the commissioners of excise; and on the rith of January, 1741-2, he was appointed governor of Barbadoes, and continued in that government till April 14, 1747, when he quitted nuitted it on the arrival of Henry Grenville, Esq; his successor. Sir Thomas, during his administration in that illand, married the widow of Samuel Salmon, Esq; whose maiden name was Booth, of the family of the late earl of Warrington; but had no issue. Before his departure from thence, he built (during a French and Spanish war) an armory, arsenal, and other public works, on which the fafety of the island depended. These works cost him above 4400l, and continue a just monument of his attention to national utility. On the 22d of September, 1761, he was appointed by his majesty to represent the duke of Normandy, at his coronation, and was then knighted; Sir William Breton representing the duke of Aquitaine, on the same occasion. Sir Thomas has travelled through most parts of Europe, and, having a taste for architecture, visited and studied all the works of Palladio that were then remaining. While abroad, he became acquainted with the earl of Burlington, the restorer of that science, with whom he was closely connected in friendship, till his death, which happened Dec. 3, 1753. The knowledge Sir Thomas acquired abroad in this science, added to his own practice at home, is fufficiently demonstrated in the works he has done at Castle-Howard, and other sumptuous edifices in different parts of the kingdom: several bridges are likewise testimonies of his taste in architecture, particularly that over the Tees, between Richmond and Raby-castle, which is 100 seet wide; and the Gothick gateway which he built at Bishop-Auckland, in the county of Durham, for the bishop's palace.

The said Sir Thomas married to his first wise, Oct. 25, 1728, Elizabeth, eldest danghter of the said Charles, the third earl of Carlisle, and widow of Nicholas, lord Lechmere. She died without issue, April 10, 1739, aged forty-sour, and was buried in the samily vault at Rookby. Sir Thomas rebuilt his seat at Rookby, and erected several other edifices there, as also an elegant parish church and mausoleum. He enclosed the park with a stone wall, and planted it with a great variety of fruit-trees, (and also vast quantities of wood on the estate:) In meanory of which the following inscriptions are engraven on two marble tables, fixed in the two stone peers, (after the model of the right hon, the earl of Burlington's in Chiswick) erected at each side of the entrance into the Park, from Greta-Bridge,

Created BARONET, Jan. 13, 1731-2.

F this family, which is descended from the Claytons in Northamptonshire, was Sir Robert Clayton, Knt. a gentleman, not more remarkable for his application to business, than his integrity in the discharge of it: qualities that equally procured him success and honour. For, in 1670, he was nominated to serve the office of sheriff for the city of London, and the same year had the honour of knighthood conserved upon him by King Charles II. who, besides many other instances of his royal Favour, even admitted him to some share of his considence and friendship; but he willingly relinquished that honour, when it was no longer consistent with the safety of the religion and rights of his country.

In 1679, he was elected lord mayor, and discharged that high office agreeably to the trust reposed in him; supporting the character of a magistrate, with a form suitable to the dignity; and, at the same time, preserved such an unalterable steadiness, as was not to be shaken by threats, or moved by pro-

He ferved in feveral parliaments for the borough of Blechingley, but was, for near thirty years, one of the representatives for the city of London, being often returned without either the charge or trouble of canvassing. And about the year 1681, many, who were in the real interest of their country, being of opinion, that a bill to exclude a popish successor was the only means to preserve it, he readily went into those measures, and not only voted for the bill in the parliament then held at Westminster, but also seconded the motion for it in that held the February following at Oxford: an attempt that drew on the hasty dissolution of both those parliaments, and proved satal to the lord Russel, by whom the bill was brought in.

The King dying soon after, and the duke, his brother, notwithstanding all the efforts made for his exclusion or limitation, succeeded to his crown and kingdoms: Sir Robert, who knew him to have an inclination equal to his power of resenting injuries, prudently retired from a public life, and filled up this interval from business with building and planting upon his estate at Marden; which, from a naked and uncultivated soil, he, by much labour and expence, converted into the beautiful and plea-fing form it now wears.

This retreat proved his security: for, most of those who had rendered themselves obnoxious, by their former behaviour, being now become objects of the royal displeasure, his then peaceful retirement was successfully urged in his savour, by one, who had a large share both in the design and execution of those black counsels.

Having happily escaped this danger, he enjoyed his rural solitude with as much tranquillity as the convulsions of the times would permit; till, finding that the arbitrary proceedings of the government tended to nothing less than the enslaving the consciences as well as persons of the people, he readily joined with those great men who appeared in desence of their civil and religious liberties; and, as he had ventured the greatest part of his personal estate in support of those measures, he was judged a fit person to compliment his Royal Highness the prince of Orange, (who was then at Henly upon Thames) in the name of the city of London, on his happy arrival in this kingdom. But while he was thus contributing to the security of other people's fortunes, he saw himself in danger of losing part of his own. For, being attainted in Ireland, during the residence of the unfortunate King in that kingdom, a large estate, which he was there possessed in consequence of that attainder, seized upon, and put into hands from which it was impossible ever after to recover it.

When the tranquillity of the nation was happily settled, he again took his share in the public transactions; and their Majesties, in approbation of his conduct, appointed him one of the commissioners of the customs; which post he held till his decline of life made a quiet retreat more desirable than public employments. This he spent in several well-judged acts of charity and benevolence, contributing not only to the relief of particulars, but to the distresses of mankind in general; a noble instance of which was his benefaction to the hospital of St. Thomas, in Southwark.

He married Martha, the daughter of Mr. Perient Trott, of London, merchant, by whom he had iffue only one son, christened Robert, who died an infant.

He died at Marden, in Surry, the 16th of July, 1707, in the 78th year of his age, and was buried in the vault of the chancel belonging to the family, in the parish church of Blechingly, under a stately monument of white marble of the Corinthian order, with suitable decorations; the figures of himself, in his habit of lord mayor, and his lady, standing upon the projection of the base, with that of an infant lying between.

Sir Robert leaving no issue, was succeeded in his estate by his nephew,

William, (the only surviving son of William Clayton, of Hambledon, in Bucks, Esq; for many years in the commission of peace for that county;) who, in the first parliament of King George I. was elected for the borough of Blechingly, for which he was returned in all the succeeding elections, till his death, He was also president of Guy's hospital; and in the fifth year of his late majesty, had the grant of a baronet's patent, according

348. FEATHER-

348. FETHERSTONHAUGH, of Fetherstonhaugh, Northumberland.

Created BARONET, Jan. 3, 1747.

THIS Family is of Saxon origin, and were seated at Fetherston, after the Conquest; that part of the country having been allotted to their ancestor, a Saxon officer, for his gallant behaviour against the Britons. They had large possessions, and bore honourable offices, in the county of Northumberland: They were * sheriffs, deputy-lieutenants, &c. as appears from records and chronicles; and are registered in King Stephen's reign, as gentlemen of coat-armour, resident at Fetherstonhaugh Castle. It appears from various deeds and writings, that they were, for some centuries, the owners of several manors and estates near this castle; but none of these remain to the prefent baronet, who only inherits the castle itself, and its domains.

This family has, in process of time, been subdivided into kveral branches; particularly two, of Fetherstonhaugh, and Fetherstonhalge.

The tradition is, that some hundred years ago, Albany Fetherston married two wives, and had a son by each of them. The elder son inherited the Northumberland estate. younger son, whose mother was an heiress of a confiderable estate in and near Stanhope, in the county palatine of Durham, inherited (in right of his mother) the Stanhope estate. The two brothers being thus separated, they thought proper to distinguish their families in case they should happen to grow anmerous: in pursuance of which intention, to preserve a distinction between them, the elder added Haugh to the end of his name, and the younger added Halge; the former word fignifying a low lituation, the later, a high one; which answered (as may yet be seen) to the real situation of their respective + mansions.

Albany Fetherston-haugh, the descendant of the elder branch, had a second son, named Henry, who, in the beginning of King James the First's reign, was made receiver of all the King's revenues in Cumberland and Westmoreland, and had a son named

* They were sheriffs the second and thirty-second of Queen Elizabeth.

⁺ William de Monte, so called from his house at Stanhope, situated on Craighill, lived in the time of King Stephen; and in 48 Edward III. this family took the supsme of Fetherston-halge. Vide the account in the Heralds office,

FETHERSTON-HAUGH. 123

Timothy: which * Timothy, in the next reign, espoused the royal party, raised a troop of horse at his own expence, and was knighted under the King's banner, and sought bravely and successfully, till the battle of Worcester, when he was taken prisoner (with the Earl of Derby) and beheaded at Bolton, in Lancashire. This event hurt the estate of this particular line; but not irretrievably: for the descendants of this gentleman are still very respectable, both in character and fortune.

The last-mentioned Albany Fetherston-haugh (father of Henry, and grandfather of Timothy) had opulent manors and posseffions; but they became, in process of time, reduced to the fingle castle, with its domains, which is now inherited. as beforementioned, by the present Sir Matthew Fetherston-haugh. from his late father, was lineally descended from this branch of the family; his great-grandfather possessing an estate at Altonmoor, in Northumberland, which was a part of the estate belonging to Fetherston-haugh, and given to his ancestors as a younger brother's fortune. He left a son, who was married to the daughter of Matthew Whitfield, Esq; of Whitfield-hall, in the county of Northumberland, by whom he had a son, named Matthew, who was father to the present baronet, was twice mayor of Newcastle, and married, in 1710, the daughter of Robert Brown, Esq; who, upon the death of her only brother, became heirefs to a large fortune, and died, anno 1767; the present baronet's father died anno 1761. Of the fecond branch, the Stanhope family, who were distinguished by the addition of Halge, were Sir Heneage and Sir Fetherston, Baronets (first so created in 1660.)

So also was Colonel Fetherston-halge, (killed at the battle of Blenheim) the last possession of the Stanhope estate; which was, after his decease, sold to the earl of Carlisse, and put a period to the name there: He had twice represented the county pala-time of Durham in parliament.

† Cuthbert Fetherston, Esq; great-grandfather of the late Sir Henry Fetherston, Baronet, came from Stanhope to London, in the year 1550.

The late Sir Henry Fetherston dying without issue, in O&. 1746, bequeathed the greatest part of his possessions and fortune to the present Sir Matthew Fetherston-haugh, and wished him to obtain a continuation of the title also; whereupon he accordingly obtained a patent as abovementioned, dated the third of January following.

[•] Vide Lloyd in his Memoirs of excellent persons, page 559: and also the extinct paronetage relating to this family.

124 FETHERSTON-HAUGH.

Sir Matthew Fetherston-haugh married, on the 24th of December, 1746, Sarah Lethieullier, only daughter of Christopher Lethieullier, Esq; of Belmont, in the county of Middlesex, by whom he has an only son, Henry, born at Uppark, in Sussex, on the 22d of December, 1754. Sir Matthew is a Fellow of the Royal Society, and one of the representatives in parliament for Portsmouth.

354. Knollys, of Thame, Oxfordshire.

Created BARONET April 1, 1754.

IMIS family, which, by the name, is plainly of Saxon origin, it being the plural of Knoll, which in the Saxon language, signifies an Hill, and the letter Y is used as E or I, in this language, has long flourished in the counties of Oxon and Berks, and is lineally descended from Sir Robert Knollys, the famous general under Edward the Third, who arrived at the highest pitch of military glory. He was one of the thirty English, who, for the honour of their country, undertook to encounter the same number of Bretons, and came off triumphant. In 1350, he was sent into France with an army, where he drove the French before him like sheep, overwhelming their towns and cities in such a number, that years afterwards the sharp points, and gable-ends of overthrown houses, cloven asunder with instruments of war, were commonly called Knolles's Mitres. The French styled him Le veritable Demon de Guerre; or, the thunderbolt of war. He was made seneschal of Guienne by Edward the Third, who commissioned him to assist John de Montfort, in the recovery of his duchy of Bretagne, wherein he acquitted himself so nobly, that he only was esteemed a fit parallel to Bertrand du Gaeselin, the French commander. He was appointed, by John de Montford, lieutenant of Bretain; and his fervices were rewarded, by the faid duke, with a fair estate in the duchy. Paulus Emilius, in his reign of Charles the Fifth, mentioning Sir Robert Knollys, says, Qui amplissimum patrimonium in Britannia babebat, ac gloria belli sanguinisque nobilitate præstabat. After the conquest of Aquitaine by the Black Prince, in which he had affifted, Sir Robert offered his services to this Prince, and was retained by him; but, as he was no stranger to the treachery of the French, he resolved to serve the prince with all his power, at his own expence, and therefore equipped four stout ships, and, leaving his castle of Derval, drew near to the port, with fixty men at arms, and as many archers, with whom he fafely reached the port of Rochelle. Sir John Devereux, the governor, under the Prince, gave him a fincere welcome; but, the citizens being no friends to the English, his men were not so well received, though they were overawed by the English garrison. After two days stay here, Sir Robert went to Angoulesme, to the Prince, who received him very graciously, and, for his bravery and experience, constituted him general of all the forces then ready to march. The Prince fummoned the chief commanders, and ordered them to pay the fame obedience to Sir Robert as to himself, which they promised to observe most punctually; but though the Prince, on this occasion, paid an impartial regard to merit, yet some of the young nobility envying him this honour, at the instigation of one Sir John Menstreworth, who had been raised by Sir Robert, who proposed calling him to an account for embezzling the public money, and was afterwards executed for treason. caused such divisions in the army, as defeated the enterprizes of this great man, after having marched to the very gates of Paris. For the lord Grandison, taking the opportunity of Sir Robert's absence, who had absolutely forbid his giving battle, engaged the French, and was entirely defeated. Sir Robert returned from Guyenne soon afterwards, but gave himself no trouble to revenge the defeat of Grandison, not designing even to collect those who had escaped, but went to spend the winter quietly in his castle of Derval, in Bretagne; either not sorry for the disgrace of Grandison, whom he knew to be his secret enemy, or to acquire greater honour, by repairing it the enfuing campaign. The worthless Sir John Minstreworth, knowing accusers have the advantage, repaired to England, and imputed the defeat to the misconduct of his patron. But Sir Alan Roxhull easily convinced King Edward of the falsity of the charge, and the sequel shewed how little credit this traitor deserved. On the accession of Richard the Second, he was honoured wirh the order of the Garter. The last piece of service he performed was suppressing Wat Tyler, and his rebellious crew. When old, Sir Robert appeared buckling on his armour, like old Priam, at the taking of Troy, but with far better success; and the city of London enfranchised him a member thereof in expression of their gratitude.

His pious charity was equal to his valour; and he was equally beloved by the English and feared by the French. He was the chief founder of Rochester-bridge, founding a chapel and chauntry at the east end thereof. He likewise built a college at Pomfret in Yorkshire, where his lady Constance was born, endowing it with an estate of 180 l. per annum.

He died at his manor of Sconethorp, in Norsolk, full of honour and years, being at least ninety years of age, on the 15th of August 1407, and was buried with his lady in the church of the White Friers, in London, to which he had been a great benefactor. Hetest issue, a daughter, Emma, married to Anthony Babington, and a son, Thomas, seated at North Mymms, ter married Henry Fordwick, of Weley, and had iffue a daughter, who conveyed this estate in marriage to John Coningsby. But from Thomas descended Robert Knollys, who left iffue, by his wife, Margaret D'Oyley, Robert Knollys, gentleman of the privy chamber of Henry the VIIIth, who married Lettice, daughter of Sir Thomas Penyston, Lord of Haurege, and Marshal, in Bucks, lineally descended from Thomas de Penyston, in Cornwall, whose great grandson, Sir Geosfry, built Penyston. This Lettice married, secondly, Sir Robert Lee, of Quarendon, Bucks; and thirdly, Sir Thomas Tresham, lord prior of St. John. She had iffue, by Robert Knollys, Jane, married to Charles Wingsield, of Kimbolton Castle, son of Sir Richard Wingsield, Knight of the Garter; and one son, Francis Knollys, who was educated in Magdalen college, Oxford, from whence he retired to his paternal seat at Rothersield-greys, in Oxfordshire. At length he appeared at Court, and was appointed one of the band of gentlemen pensioners, towards the end of Henry the VIIIth.

He was so zealous a friend of the Reformation, under Edward the VIth, that he thought proper to retire, on the accession of Queen Mary, and accordingly went into Germany, where he lived and conversed with those English divines, who, like him. were exiles for conscience sake. At Frankfort, he appeared in behalf of the schism, and, on that account, retired with Knox and Whettingham, to Geneva. On the death of Queen Mary, he returned home, and became so highly esteemed by Queen Elizabeth, that he was immediately appointed one of her privy council, and foon afterwards vice-chamberlain of her houshold. and employed in several important negociations abroad. In 1566, he was created a Master of Arts, in a convocation held in Christ-church Hall, in the presence of the earl of Leicester, chancellor of the university, just before her Majesty left Oxford; he being then vice-chamberlain, captain of the guard, high fleward of the city of Oxford, and lieutenant of the county, which he represented in parliament till his death.

In 1566, he succeeded Sir John Mason, as treasurer of the Queen's chamber. In 1568, he was sent by her Majesty to receive the Queen of Scots at Carlisse, and had, jointly with Lord Scroop, the custody of her during her confinement in Bolton castle. In the 29th of Elizabeth, he was one of the judges commissioned to it in judgment on the said Queen, in Fotheringay castle, but did not appear. At last he was appointed treasurer of the houshold, and knight of the most noble order of the Garter. He died in the summer 1596, and was esteemed, generally, a faithful subject, and an honest, learned, and prudent man. Some, indeed, thought him no friend to episcopacy, having strongly embraced the principles of Calvin, at Geneva; and, perhaps, his great zeal for the Reformation might carry him to the contrary extreme. He was the author of a treatile against the Usurpation of Papal Bishops, a General Survey of the Isle of Wight, of several Speeches in Parliament, and Letters of State; sew of which have been published. He left a numerous issue by his lady, Catharine, sister of Henry, lord Hunsdon, cousin german of Queen Elizabeth, her mother being the lady Mary Bullen, daughter of Thomas, earl of Wiltshire and Ormond, and lister of Queen Anne Bullen.

Lady Knollys died at Hampton-court, on the 15th of January, 1568, and was buried in Westminster abbey, with great pomp. Her memory was perpetuated by a handsome monument, on which were some curious Latin verses; but it not being consistent with our plan to insert monumental inscriptions, we hope the omiffing will be excused.

Henry Knollys, the first fon, died in his father's life-time. He was educated in Magdalen-school, Oxford, under the care of Thomas Robertson, and went with his father into Germany. On his return he was entered a member of Magdalen college, Oxford, where he acquired so much learning, by a close application to his studies, as procured him, by the greatest writers of those times, the following character: Home wirtute 😝 animi dotibus non infimus, & liberatissimå literaturå egregie ditatus. He and his brothers were all admired by some, and envied by others, for their great virtue and towardliness. Henry represented the borough of Reading in the first parliament of Queen Elizabeth, and married Marga: et, daughter and heires of Sir Ambrose Cave, chancellor of the ducky of Lancaster, with whom he had the lordships of Kingsberry and Nuneaton, in the county of Warwick. She died on the 15th of August, 1600, leaving issue by him, two daughters, Elizabeth, married to Henry, fon and heir of Sir John Willoughby, of Rifley, in Derbyshire, and Lettice, to William, lord Paget, ancestor to the earl of Uxbridge.

Sir William Knollys, the fecond fon, was a privy counfellor, and comptroller of the houshold of Queen Elizabeth. While a commoner; he represented the county of Oxford in parliament, in 1603; on the accession of James the First, was appointed treasurer of his houshold, and created Baron Knollys of Grey's-Court, in the county of Oxford; in April, 1615, he was honoured with the order of the Garter; on the 7th of November, 2616, created Viscount Wallingford, and was likewise made master of the court of wards, by the same King; on the 18th of August, 1726, he was created, by Charles the First, earl of Bambury, with express precedency next to the earl of Westmoreland. He married, first, Dorothy, daughter of Edmund, lord Bray, and relict of the lord Chandois, by whom he had a daughter, who died an infant; and, secondly, when advanced in years, lady Elizabeth Howard, eldest daughter of Thomas, earl of Suffolk, and lord high treasurer of England, by whom he lest no issue, as she administered to his will, and declared in a certificate signed by herself upon oath.

This noble lord was interred in the family aile of the parish church of Rotherfield-greys, Oxfordshire, where a magnificent monument is erected in memory of the family. The counters of Banbury re-married with Nicholas, lord Vaux, and produced two sons, as the legal issue of her former husband. Charles, the eldest, was murdered in France; the younger, Nicholas, assumed the title of earl of Banbury, but was never summoned to parliament.

Richard Knollys, the fourth son, whose son Francis married, first, the daughter of Sir Charles Wiseman, and, secondly, Alice, daughter of Sir William Beecher, of Middlesex, by whom he left issue, one daughter, and two sons. This Francis was interred at Sainford, Berks, August the 4th, 1640, where a handsome monument is erected to his memory. This line failed in these sons.

Sir Francis Knollys was the fifth son, of whom hereafter.

Sir Thomas Knollys, the fixth fon, was a commander in the Low Countries, under Maurice, Prince of Orange. He married Odelia de Moroda, daughter of John de Moroda, a Marquis of Bergen, and left issue only one daughter, Penelope Kn. llys, wife of William Le Hunt.

The four daughters of Sir Francis Knollys, Knight of the Garter, were, 1. Lettice Knollys, who married, first, Walter Devereux, earl of Essex, by whom she had issue, Robert, earl of Essex, beheaded by Queen Elizabeth, and two daughters, Per elope, married, first, to Robert, lord Rich, and, secondly, to Blount, earl of Devonshire, and Dorothy, married, first, to Sir Thomas Perrott, and, secondly, to Henry Percy, earl of Northumberland. Lady Leicester married, secondly, Robert Dudley, earl of Leicester, and had issue, one son, lord Denbigh, who died an infant. She married, thirdly, Sir Christopher Blount, brother of the lord Mountjoy; he was beheaded on Tower-hill, as an accomplice of his fon-in-law, the earl of Effex. This counters of Effex and Leicester is buried with her second husband, at Warwick, under a sumptuous monument she erected to his memory. She lived to see the grandehildren of her grandchildren; 2. Anne Knollys, married to Thomas, lord de la War, ancestor of the present earl de la War; 3. Cecilia Knollys, maid of honour to Queen Elizabeth, married Sir Thomas Leighton, of Feckenham, in Wilts, governor of Guernsey and Jersey, and constable of the Tower of London; he was the younger brother of Sir Edward Leighton, of Wattlesborough, in Shropshire; by him she left issue, one son, Thomas Leighton, whose two heiresses married into the families of Talbot and St. John, ancestors of the lords Bolingbroke and Talbot; 4. Catherine Knollys, married to Gerard, lord Ophaly, son and heir of the earl of Kildare: he died in his father's life time, and was buried in the abbey church of St. Alban, June 30, 1580, leaving issue by his wife (who remarried with Sir Philip Boteler, of Watton Woodhall, in the county of Hertford) one daughter, married to Robert, lord Digby, of Coleshill, in the county of Warwick, ancestor of the present lord Digby.

We must now return to Sir Francis, sisth son of Sir Francis Knollys, and Catharine Carey. This Sir Francis first represented the city of Oxford, then the county of Berks, and inherited, by his father's will, the manor of Battel, and other estates in and about the borough of Reading. He was styled of Reading. Abbey, and married Lettice, daughter of John Barret, of Hanham, in the county of Gloucester, by whom he had issue, Sir Robert Knollys, who died without issue, Sir Francis, member for Reading; and four daughters, Anne, Lettice, Elizabeth, and Frances. Sir Francis married Ellen, daughter and heir of Richard Milles, of Lower Winchendon, Bucks, and had ifsue, William, who died an infant, of nine years old, in 1623, Francis, who had no issue, and Richard Knollys, who married Mary Bellingham of Everingham, in the county of Sussex, fifter and heir of Henry Bellingham, lineally deteended from Alan de Bellingham, of Northumberland; he had issue by her, one son, Francis Knollys, who married Anne, daughter and coheir of. Bateman, of the county of Berks, and left issue, Elizabeth, first wife of Sir Francis Curson, of Water-ferry, in the county of Oxon, by whom the had one fon, who died at St. Omers, aged fourteen, and Francis Knollys, member for Reading, who died of the small-pox in 1701; he married Elizabeth, youngest daughter and coheir of John Striblehill, of Thame, in the county of Oxford, who died a few days after him, of the They had iffue, Francis, Richard, Cecilia, and. I hn: the two latter died young. Francis served for the city of Oxford, in the last parliament of George the First, and the first partiament of George the Second; and dying a bachelor, on the 24th of June, 1754, was succeeded in his estate by his brother, Richard Knollys, who married, first, Elizabeth, daughter and coneir of Humphry Thayer, one of the commissioners of excite; recordly, Hannah, daughter of Theophilus Salwey, of Woutford, Esq; and, thirdly, Anne, daughter of John Taylor, treasurer of Bethlehem and Bridewell hospitals; by the two last he had no issue, but by his first wife one only son, Francis Knoiles, created a baronet, April 1, 1754; he ferved the office of high sheriff of Oxfordshire, in 1757, and was elected member for Reading on the 24th of March, 1761; in 1756, he married March, daughter and heiress of Sir Robert Kendall Cater, of Kempston, in the county of Bedford, third son of John Kendall, Esq; of Bassingbourn-Hall, in Takely, Essen.

355. WINNINGTON, of Stanferd-Court, Worcestershire.

Created BARONET, Feb. 15, 175;

HIS family is undoubtedly of great antiquity in the county of Cheshire; for we find, in the reign of Edward I. anno 3275, they were lords of the manor of Winnington, near Maptwich, in Cheshire, where they continued to reside till the beginning of the last century, and intermarried with many of the principal families in that county.

In the reign of Edward III. Richard Winnington, Efq; fon of Richard Winnington, Esq; married Emma, eldek daughter. of William Manwaring, Esq; who was lineally descended from Ranulphus Manwaring, who came over with the Norman conqueror.

This Richard Winnington had issue, one son, Richard, who married Catharine, third daughter, and one of the coheiresses, of Robert le Grosvenor, lord of Hulme, by which marriage he obtained the lordship of Pulford, and several other lands in Chethire.

Their eldest son, Richard Winnington, married Joan Smith, and had issue, two daughters: Catharine, who died without issue, 23 Hen. VII. and Elizabeth, who married Sir Piers Warburton, of Orley, anno 1511, being then fole daughter and heiress of Richard Winnington, who died 19 Henry VII. By this match, the Warburtons of Arley became possessed of the manors of Winnington and Putford, and all the estates belonging to the Winningtons, which they continued in possession of till the marriage of the fole daughter and heiress of general Warburton, to Samuel Pennant, Esq; who now resides there, and is member in the present, as he was in the last, parliament for Leverpoole.

One of the younger branches of this family having fettled at Powick, near Worcester, married, and had issue, one son, Francis, who was an officer in the army in the reign of King Charles I. He married, and had iffue, one son, Francis, born at Worcester, Nov. 7, 1634. This Francis was bred to the: law, and had the honour of knighthood conferred on him by K. Charles II. to whom, as well as to King James II. he was folicitor-general.

Sir Francis married, first, Elizabeth, daughter of — Herbert, Esq; and had issue one daughter, Elizabeth, who married William Dodeswell, of Pull-Court, Esq; He mairied, second-K 4

ly, Elizabeth, third sister and coheir of Edward Salway, of Stanford-Court, Worcestershire, Esq; By this lady he had issue four sons; 1. Solway, who married, July 24, 1690, Anne, fifter to Thomas, lord Foley *, of Great Whitby, in the county of Worcester, by whom he had iffue eight children; 1. Elizabeth, born Oct. 18, 1692, who died the same year, and was buried at St. Giles's in the Fields, in the county of Middlesex; 2. Francis, born Jan. 15, 1693, who died on his travels, at Vienna, Aug. 19, 1718, and was interred in the burial-place of the protestants of that city: he was a youth of great hopes, and beloved and admired by all that knew him; 3. Thomas, born Dec. 31, 1696, who, Aug. 6, 1719, married Love, the fourth daughter of Sir James Read, of Brocket-Hall, in the county of Hertford, Bart. fifter and coheir of Sir John Read, Bart, by whom he had iffue, one fon, Francis Read, born July 16, 1720, who died in his infancy; 4. Anne, married John Wheeler, of Wooton-Lodge, in Staffordshire, Esq; 5. Mary, who died April 18, 1730, unmarried; 6. Edward, born April 10, 1704, and died April 18, 1711, and was buried at St. James's, in the county of Middlelex; 7. Helena, born in May, 1705, died Aug. 10, 1724, unmarried; 8. Henrietta, married Samuel, the present lord Masham. The second son of Sir Francis Winnington, Knt. was Francis, (ancestor to the present baroner) of whom hereafter. The third son was John, who died unmarried; and the fourth, Edward, married to mis Jefferies. of Ham-Castle, and had several children, who all died in their infancy. This gentleman was bred to the law, in the knowledge of which none of his cotemporaries excelled him, in his practice none equalled him; for, having by his marriage acquired a very considerable estate, he often pleaded the cause of the oppressed and indigent, without fee or reward: he for many years reprefented the borough of Droitwich.

Sir Francis had likewise, by his second lady, two daughters; Honora, married to —— Bruen, of Bruen Stapelsord, in Chechire, Esq; and Mary, married to John Calvert, of Albury-Hall, Hertsfordshire, Esq;

Sir Francis was eminent for his knowledge in the laws of England, was a great mafter of eloquence, and a most zealous defender of the liberties of his country: he, for some time, represented the country of Worcester, and afterwards that city, as also the boroughs of Tewkesbury and Windsor, in parliament, where he gave a remarkable instance of his zeal for the protestant religion, by resigning his office of solicitor-general to King James II. that he might act consistent with his conscience, by supporting the Exclusion Bill. The share this gendeman had in the education of Lord Somers, adds much to the honour of his memory.

Sir Francis died May 1, 1700, and was buried in the chancel of the parish-church of Stamford, in Worcestershire, where a monument is erected to perpetuate his name. On the South side of the said church is another handsome monument, erected to the memory of the right hon. Thomas Winnington, second son of Solwey Winnington asoresaid, who was member of parliament for Droitwich, from the year 1725 to the year 1741, at which time he was chosen to represent the city of Worcester; he was likewise appointed one of the lords of the admiralty, in 1730; of the treasury, in 1736; cosserer, and of his Majesty's privy council, in 1740; and, lastly, in 1743, paymastergeneral of the forces, in which place he died, April 23, 1746.

On this gentleman's monument are the following verses:

Near his paternal feat, here buried lies The grave, the gay, the witty, and the wife: Equal to ev'ry part, in all he shin'd Variously great, a genius unconfin'd ! In converse bright, judicious in debate; In private amiable, in public great. With all the statesman's knowledge, prudence, art, With friendship's open, undesigning heart. The friend and heir, here join their duty: one Erects the busto, one inscribes the stone. Not that they hope by these his same should live; That claims a longer date than they can give. False to their trusts the mould'ring busts decay, And foon th' effac'd inscription wears away: But England's annals shall their place supply; And, while they live, his name can never die.

We now return to Francis, (second son of Sir Francis Winnington, Knt.) who settled at Broadway, in the county of Worcester, and married Anne, the daughter of Thomas Jackson, of London, Esq. by whom he had sour daughters: 1. Martha, married to the rev, Dr, Turner, of Newcastle, in Northumberland; 2. Elizabeth, married to Reginald Wyniat, of Stanton-Hall, Worcestershire, Esq. 3. Anne, married to John Ingram, of Bewdley, in the same county, Esq. and, 4. Mary, who died unmarried, This Francis Winnington, Esq. had likewise two sons: Francis, who married Susanna Courteney.

Created BARONET, March 1, 1755.

SIR Charles Sheffield is the natural fen of John Sheffield, duke of Buckinghamshire, a nobleman of distinguished abilities, whose character is in the second volume of his works, edit. 1740, 8vo.

His grace was first married to Ursula, daughter of colonel Stanwell, and widow of earl Conway; his second, was lady Catharine, eldest daughter to Fulk Grevill, lord Brook, widow of Baptist Noel, earl of Gainsborough; she died in 1703-4; his grace had no iffue by either of these ladies. His third, was Catharine, eldest daughter of King James II. (by Catharine, the daughter of Sir Charles Sidley, Bart. whom that prince created counters of Dorchester;) she was born in the year 1681, and in 1699 was first married to the earl of Anglesea, but being divorced from that nobleman, his grace's great tenderness compensated for all the injuries she had suffered under the earl. By his grace she had several children, who died young, among whom was the marquis of Normanby, who departed this life, February 1, 1714, aged seventeen. She survived the duke herhusband, husband, but had the missortune to be deprived of her son and heir, Edmund, the last duke of Buckinghan shere, who, being of a weakly conflitution, was obliged to ende a great part of his time out of his native country, and the duchels constantly attended him; but for abou half a year he resided at Oxford, and was admitted, 1732, at Queen's college, and was put under the care of Dr. Smith, then provoll, whom her grace had placed a great confidence in; but, tender as he was, yet fired with the example of his ancestors, many of whom had signalized themselves in the wars, he went, in 1734, a volunteer under the command of his uncle the duke of Berwick, in Germany, whom he served as aid-de-camp at the siege of fort Kehl and Philipsburgh, till the marshal lost his head by a cannon ball from the walls of the latter. This catafrophe put an end to his grace's campaign. The next year intending to try the air of Naples, he advanced as far as Rome, where he died Oct. 30, 1735, of a hasty consumption, and his body being brought to Eng and, was conveyed to Westminster-abbey, with the like funeral folemnity as that of his father, by whose side he was interred; and, in 1742, her grace the duchels died, upon whole death that noble house (now the Queen's palace) in St. James's park, which was built by the old duke, came into the possession. of Charles Herbert, together with his father's whole estate, in pursuance of his will, on his surviving his grace's heir, who should die without issue, and of his taking the name of Sheffield; his grace likewife left, upon the death of the duchefs, one thousand pounds to Mr. Herbert's mother (Mrs. Lambert) by whom his grace had not only this fon, now Sir Charles Shetfield, but also two natural daughters, Sophia and Charlotte, to whom he left one thousand pounds each, to be raised to five thousand pounds, in case Mr. Herbert should succeed to the On his grace's death, the duchess took great care of their education; one of them married Dr. Walker, dean of Burien, and afterwards to Jeremiah Griffith, Esq; counsellor at law, and the other to the rev. Joseph Hunt, D. D. and mafter of Baliol college, in Oxford, and, at his death, first, to -Cole, and then to ——— Cox, of Stanford, in Berks, Esq. by whom the has iffue two fons, in the army, and two daughters, one of them married to the hon. William Digby, canon of Christ church, Oxford, who was son of lord Digby.

Sir Charles Sheffield, the present baronet, was advanced to this dignity by letters patent, bearing date March 1, 1755, 28 Geo. II. He married, April 29, 1741, to the daughter of general Sabine, by whom he had issue two sons and a daughter?

359. JOHNSON, of New-York, North-America.

Created BARONET, Nov. 27, 1755.

IR William Johnson is descended from a good family in the kingdom of Ireland, and went to America under the care of his nucle the late Sir Peter Warren, Knight of the Bath. In the year 1755, the expedition against Crown-Point; in America, was conducted by this gentleman, who was then a colonel, and afterwards a general. He had settled on the Mohawk river, and not only acquired a considerable estate, but was universally beloved, both by the inhabitants and the neighbouring Indians, whose language he had learned, and whose affections he had gained, by his faithful and humane behaviour rowards them. The honour this gentleman acquired in the battle against the French general, the baron de Dieskau, is too recent to be soon forgotten, or to stand in need of being mentioned here.

The activity of Sir William in negociations was no less remarkable than his valour in the field; and it is much to be doubted whether his moderation, and the general good estem in which he was held, had not a greater share in reducing the rebellious savages to reason than the force of his arms. He brought the Senecas (one of the revolted tribes of the Iroquois, and the most inveterate enomies to the English) to a treaty, at his house, at Johnson's Hall, where Sir William appeared, April 3, 1764, in the character of his Majesty's sole agent, and superintendant of Indian affairs, for the northern parts of America, and colonel of the six united nations, their allies and dependants.

Neither the Family Pedigree, or Arms, of Sir William; are yet entered in the Heralds office: so that we have no certain information of his marriage issue.

360. RIDLEY, of Heaton, in Northumberland, Baronet,

By virtue of the limitation in the Patent of

Created BARONET, May 6, 1756.

HE family of White was originally of the county of Dutham. Matthew White, Elq; grandfather of the late Sir Matthew White, Bart, was an eminent merchant at Newcastleupon-Tyne, and alderman and governor of the Merchants and Hoastmans companies. He married Jane, daughter of Nicholas Fenwick, Esq; an alderman of that town, by whom he had several children, who lived to maturity. Margaret, the eldest daughter, married Richard Ridley, of Newcastle, aforesaid, and of Heaton, in the county of Northumberland, Esq; by whom the had several children, of whom hereaster:; Elizabeth, the second daughter, married Robert Douglas, of Newcafile-upon-Tyne, Eig; who died without iffue; Martha, the third daughter, died unmarried; and Isabella, the fourth daughter, married Thomas Waters, of Newcastle, asoresaid, Esq; and left issue, Matthew Waters, of Walls-End, in Northumberland, Esq; and Isabella, both unmarried; Jane, blied unmarried.

Matthew White, of Blagdon, in the county of Northumberland, Esq; only surviving son, married Elizabeth, daughter and coheir of John Johnson, of Newcastle, and of Bebride, in the county of Northumberland, Esq; by whom he had issue, Matthew, John, (Elizabeth, the eldest daughter, married to Matthew Ridley, of Heaton, in the said county, Esq; son of Richard Ridley, aforesaid, Esq; by whom she had several children, as will appear hereafter,) Nicholas, George, another Matthew, Jane, Charles, and Mary. These all died (except Elizabeth, abovementioned) unmarried.

The last-named Matthew White, of Blagdon, Esq.; was high sheriff of the county of Northumberland, in the year 1756, and was, on presenting an address to his Majesty from the said county, created a baronet of this kingdom, with limitation in the patent, on failure of his issue male, to the heire state of his fister Elizabeth, wife of the said Matthew Ridley. Sir Matthew White, baronet, died March 21, 1763, and was buried at All-Saints church, in Newcastle upon Tyne; on whose death the title, according to the said limitation, descended to Matthew White Ridley, the present baronet, eldest son of the said Matthew and Elizabeth Ridley.

We shall now give an account of the family of Ridley, as we find it recorded in the Heralds office; and it is much to be wished that every family of distinction would be as careful in entering their pedigree in the college of Arms, as the Ridleys have been, whom we are now to treat of: many inconveniencies, even to the families themselves, would be thereby avoided.

We there find that the family of Ridley has been of very long flanding in Northumberland, and possessed of several considerable estates in that county, (where they still continue,) as appears from divers antient evidences. The principal family seat was at Willymondswyke, on the banks of the river Tyne, which, with the estate, during the troubles in King Charles the First's time, were lost, and are now in the possession of Sir Edward Blacket, Bart. They are supposed to be descended from the Ridleys of Ridley, in Cheshire: the Arms antiently used by both families, were alike.

The first mentioned of this family, in the pedigree recorded in the Heralds office, begins about the year 1400, with Nicholas Ridley, of Willymondswyke, in the county of Northumberland, Esq; who married Alice, daughter and coheir of

- Skelton, of Bramford.

Their son, Nicholas, married Anne, daughter of Eglessield, of Cumberland, by whom he had issue, Sir Nicholas; and Thomasin, the wife of Thomas Carnaby, of Halton-Castle, in the county of Northumberland, Esq;

Sir Nicholas Ridley, Knt. married Mary, the daughter of Curwen, of Workington, in the county of Cumberland, Eq; and had iffue, Nicholas Ridley, Eq; his eldeft fon; Christopher Ridley, of Unthank, second son; and Jane, who was the wife of Gilbert Errington, of Errington, in the county of Northumberland, Esq.

Christopher Ridley, of Unthank, aforesaid, in the county of Northumberland, was father of Nicholas Ridley, bishop of London, who was born at Willymondswyke, and suffered for the Protestant faith, at Oxford, on the 16th of October, 1555. He was a person, says Anthony Wood, great in learning, and prosoundly read in divinity; but, as a more sull account is already written of him by John Fox, in his acts and monuments of the church, I shall refer the reader to that work. The bishop had a brother, named Hugh, and a sister, Elizabeth, who married John Ridley, of Wall-Town, in the county of Northumberland, Esq; which John is supposed to be a collateral branch of the same family. He died anno 1562, and was buried at Haltwhistle, in the county of Northumberland, where his monument and inscription still remain, a copy of which inscription is preserved in the Heralds office *, London. Their daughter Elizabeth, and sole heir, married Thomas Ridley, one of the great grandsons of Sir Nicholas Ridley, beforementioned, and had issue, John Ridley, of Wall-Town, son and heir, who was living in 1615, and married to Anne, the daughter and executrix of ———— Charleton, of Hessessde, in Northumberland, Esq.

This John had two sons and sour daughters; 1. John, his eldest son and heir, married Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Charlton, of Charlton-Hall, in the county of Cumberland, Esq; (and had issue four sons and sour daughters;) 2. William Ridley, was of London, and of Wall-Town, and married Anne, the daughter of — Woodman, (by whom he had issue three sons, and one daughter;) Elizabeth, the eldest daughter, married to William of the Morrelee; 2. Margaret, married to Ralph Thurlway; 3. Thomasin, to Daniel Stoughton; and, 4. Mary, to Thomas Ridley, of Hardriding, in Northumberland, Esq; which Thomas was great great grandson of Nicholas Ridley, Esq; son of the first-mentioned Sir Nicholas Ridley.

Having given an account of the descendants from Christopher Ridley, the second son of the said Sir Nicholas, I shall now return to Nicholas Ridley, Esq; the eldest son of the said Sir Nicholas; which Nicholas Ridley married Mary, the daughter of — Musgrave, and had issue two sons and sour daughters; William, and Sir Hugh Ridley, Knt. Jane, wise of John Heren, of Chipchase, in Northumberland, Esq; Anne, wise of William Wallis, of Knaresdale; Margaret, wise of John Fetherstonhaugh, of Stanhope, in the county of Durham; and Mabil, first married to —— Fenwick, of Little Harle, in Northumberland, and afterwards to Sir John Lumley, Knt.

Sir Hugh Ridley, aforesaid, married Isabel, daughter of Sir John Heron, of Chipchase, aforesaid, Knt. and had issue sour sons, and one daughter, Dorothy, the wife of Henry Jackson; John Ridley, the second son, married Jane, the daughter of John Errington, brother to Gilbert Errington, of Errington, Esq; Cuthbert, the third son; Thomas, the fourth son, married his cousin Elizabeth, sole daughter and heir of John Ridley, of Wall-Town, beforementioned.

Sir Nicholas Ridley, Knt. the eldest son of Sir Hugh, was of Willymondswyke, aforesaid, and married Mabil, daughter of Sir Philip Dacres, of Morpeth, Knt. third son to lord Dacres, and had issue, three sons and six daughters, viz. Nicholas, his eldest son; and William, his second son, who was of Battersley, in the county of York; and Alexander, the third son; the daughters names were Jane, Margery, Elizabeth, Anne, Mabil, and Isabel.

Nicholas Ridley, of Willymondswyke, Esq; (the eldest son of Sir Nicholas and Mabil Dacres,) had issue, three fons, viz-Nicholas Ridley, of Willymondswyke, from whom were descended the Ridleys of Crawhall; Lancelot Ridley, who had issue, Sir Thomas Ridley, Knt. Doctor of the Civil Law, who died Jan. 23, 1628, and was buried in St. Benet's church, near Paul's wharf, London. (This Sir Thomas married Margaret, daughter and heir of William Boleyn, the son of William, the son of William, who was the son of William, second son of Thomas Boleyn, Esq; father of Sir Geoffry Boleyn, Knt. lord mayor of London, 1458, the father of Sir William Boleyn, Knt. the father of Thomas Boleyn, earl of Wiltshire and Ormond, who was the father of Queen Anne Boleyn, mother to Queen Elizabeth, by whom the faid Sir Thomas Ridley had two daughters and heirs: Anne, the eldeft, married Sir Leonard Bosvile, Knt. son and heir of Sir Ralph Bosvile, of Bradborne, in the county of Kent, Knt. Elizabeth, the second daughter and coheir of Sir Thomas Ridley, LL. D. married Mark Cottle, Registrer of the prerogative court of Canterbury.) And Thomas Ridley, of Hardriding, in the county of Northumberland, Esq; who married Mary, daughter of John Ridley, of Wall-Town, beforementioned.

This Thomas Ridley died about the beginning of the reign of King James, and by Mary, his wife, aforesaid, left issue three sons: John, the eldest, died without issue; Cuthbert, was of Tickett, in Northumberland; and Nicholas Ridley was of Hardriding, aforesaid, and died about the year 1618. He married, to his first wife, Anne, the daughter of —— Heron, of Birtley, in the county of Northumberland, by whom he had Elizabeth, and Barbara, who died young; and, by Barbara, his second wise, the daughter of —— Errington, of West-Denton, in Northumberland, Esq. he had issue two sons, and one daughter; Albany, a merchant in London, who died without issue; and Susanna, wise of Michael Stokoe, of Heddon-Bridge, in the county of Northumberland; and John Ridley, of Hardriding, Esq; one of his Majesty's justices of the peace of the county of Northumberland. He was aged 51 years; Sept. 1, 1666; and major of a regiment in the army of the right hon. William -----, marquis of Newcastle, for the service of King Charles I. as also major in the garrison of Carlisle, Sir Philip Musgrave being then governor; and afterwards major to Sir Marmaduke Langdale, Knt. afterwards lord Langdale. He married to his first wife, Anne, the daughter of Ralph Fetherston-halgh, of Stanhope, in the county palatine of Durham, Esq; by whom he had issue, two sons, viz. John, who died unmarried, and Nicholas, of whom hereafter; and one daughter, Barbara, married to John Bradwood, of Carlifle; by his fecond wife, Mary, daughter of Edward Lawson, of Brunton, in the county of Northumberland, Esq; he had five fons and four daughters: Elizabeth, married to Edward Stokoe, of Carlisle; Mary, married to Thomas Pate, clerk, vicar of Haltwissle; Jane; Anne, wife of Christopher Barrow, of Shankfoot, in Northumberland, gent. The fons were, Nevile, Wilfred, Godfrey, John, and Edward Ridley, of Lincolns-Inn, Esq; who was fourteen years old in 1666: he married Dorothy, daughter of —— Chamberlayne, Esq; and had issue Richard Ridley, Esq; a colonel of the guards, who died unmarried, and was buried at St. Margaret's church, Westminster; and four daughters, Mary, Eleanor, Dorothy, and Anne.

Nicholas Ridley, of Hardriding, Esq; beforementioned, was of Newcastle upon Tyne, and also of Heaton, in the county of Northumberland. He died Jan. 22, 1710, and by Martha his wife, daughter of Richard March, of Newcastle upon Tyne, merchant, who died April 13, 1728, he had iffue, five fons: John, the eldest son, died young, in April, 1686, and was buried in St. Nicholas church, in Newcastle upon Tyne; Richard, of whom hereafter; Nicholas, Edward, and John; and four daughters, viz. Mary, wife of Gawen Ansley, of Little Harle, in the county of Northumberland, Esq; Anne; and another Anne, wife of Joshua Douglas, of Newcastle upon Tyne, Esq; and Martha, who died unmarried.

Richard Ridley, Esq; eldest surviving son and heir, was of Newcastle upon Tyne, and also of Heaton, in the county of Northumberland. He died Nov. 2, 1739, and was buried in St. Nicholas church, aforesaid; and, by Margaret his wife, daughter of Matthew White, of Newcastle upon Tyne, and of Blagdon, in the county of Northumberland, Esq; had iffue four sons and five daughters: Matthew Ridley, his eldest son, of whom hereafter; Richard Ridley, the second son, was a captain of foot: he married Anne, daughter of George Roach, of Portsmouth, merchant, and died without issue. 361. SMITH.

361. SMITH, of Nottingham, and East-Stoke, in Nottinghamshire.

Created BARONET Oct. 31, 1757.

THOMAS SMITH, of Nottingham, Esq; grandfather of the late Baronet, was possessed, long before the year 1698, of his manor of Keyworth, in Nottinghamshire, with several lands and tenements, and other valuable estates, in the counties of Nottingham and Leicester, one of which appears to be purchased by his ancestor, in 1622.

Thomas, his eldest son, served the office of high sheriff for the county of Leicester, in the year 1718, by the name of Thomas Smith, of Broxtow, in the county of Nottingham, and of Gadesby, in the county of Leicester, Esq.

Abel Smith, Esq; a banker, of Nottingham, and of East-Stoke, in the county of Nottingham, was another son of the first-named Thomas Smith. He married Jane, the daughter of George Beaumont, of Chapelthorp, in Yorkshire, Esq; whose eldest son,

George Smith, Esq; was advanced to the dignity of a baroner, Oct. 31, 1757, 31 George II. He served the office of high sheriff for the county of Nottingham in 1758, was one of his Majesty's deputy lieutenants for the same county, also for the town and county of the town of Nottingham; likewise one of his Majesty's commissioners of the sewers, and in the commission of the peace for the above county.

He married, first, Aug. 18, 1747, Mary, daughter and sole heir of William Howe Esq; a major in the King's troops, by Elizabeth, his wife, who was daughter and coheir of William Pauncesote, of Carswall-Hall, in the county of Gloucester.—This William Howe was eldest son of Emanuel-Scroop Howe, Esq; by Ruperta, his wife, who was a natural daughter of Prince Rupert; which said Emanuel-Scroop Howe was one of the grooms of the bedchamber to King William, and was, by Queen Anne, promoted to be lieutenant general of her forces, and sent by her Majesty envoy extraordinary to the elector of Hanover.—Vide Collins's Peerage, vol. V. p. 406.

Sir George had issue, by this lady, two sons and two daughters: Howe, born June 26, 1749, who died young; and Sir George, his successor, born Aug. 18, 1753. The daughters were, Mary, born May 3, 1751, and Jane, born July 27, 150 SMITH, of Nottingham.

1760, both which died young. Lady Smith died May 18, 1761, and was buried in the church of East-Stoke, in the county of Nottingham.

363. WILMOT, of Chaddesden, Derbyshire.

Created BARONET, Feb. 15, 1759.

THIS family hath been refident in the county of Derby many generations, as appears, as well from Sir William Dugdale's visitation of that county, in the Heralds office, as from divers curious ancient deeds, now in the possession of Sir Robert Wilmot, Knt. In consequence of which, we were in hopes of being able to have given a more general account of the different branches of this flourishing family, of which there are several persons of eminence; but the desired account not coming to hand in due time, we begin with Sir Edward Wilmot, who is the first of this family advanced to the dignity of a baronet, by letters patent, bearing date as above, 32 George II. to him and his heirs male.

He was born Oct. 17, 1693, applied himself to the study of physic, took his doctor's degree in the university of Cambridge, was physician in ordinary to the late Queen Caroline; to his royal highness, Frederick, late Prince of Wales, and to his late Majesty King George the Second, is physician-general to the King's armies, and has the honour of being physician in ordinary to his present Majesty.

He married Sarah-Marsh, daughter of Richard Mead, M. D. physician in ordinary to his late Majesty, by Ruth, his wife, daughter of William Marsh, Esq; merchant of London, and by her hath had issue, one son and two daughters, viz.

Anne, married, Feb. 5, 1760, to Thomas Heron, of New-ark, in the county of Nottingham, Esq; she died on the 30th of April, 1767.

364. CUNLIFFE, of Leverpoole, in Lancashire.

Created BARONET, March 26, 1759.

HIS family is undoubtedly of very great antiquity, and it is probable they were among the first Saxons who settled themselves in the North of England. Their name seems to corroborate this conjecture, as the word Cunlive, or Cunlisse, in the Saxon language, imports a gift or grant for life, or a competent maintenance, according to the military customs of those times; and certain it is, that a house and lands, bearing the name of Cunlive, or Cunlisse, were granted them in the early times we are speaking of, at Billington, near Whalley, in Lancashire. This became afterwards the surname of the family; for in the year 1282, being the eleventh of the reign of Edward the First, a writ of inquisition was issued, concerning the extent of the manor of Manchester, in which a jury of twelve principal persons were sworn, among whom was Adam de Cunlive.

The family of Cunliffe continued in the possession of the lands and hall of Cunliffe, till the civil wars between the houses of York and Lancaster: but it appears that, in the reign of Henry the Seventh, they had lost their possessions there, and were seated either at Wicollar, or at Hastings, in the same county.

The family is still possessed of Wicollar; but the civil wars between King Charles the First and his parliament, like thecivil wars of earlier date, were again prejudicial to, and lessened their possessions.

Nicholas Cunliffe, of Hollings, and Robert, his brother, were at first engaged on the side of the parliament; and it appears from the journals of the house of commons, that they were employed in the year 1643, by the parliament, to execute an important trust in Lancashire.

Robert Cunliffe was summoned to Cromwell's parliament, in 1653, as one of the representatives of the county of Lancaster;

but

Vid. 5th D. 14. folio 92, in the Heralds office, London, where the different branches of this family are more particularly fet forth.

but as this parliament was not sufficiently subservient to the views of Cromwell, they were haftily disfolved.

However, John Cunliffe, son of the beforementioned Nicholas, very soon after was active in opposing the ruling power; for which his house at Hollings was plundered, and a garrison put into it, by those who acted under the arbitrary and despotic government that succeeded the Protectorship. He also suffered much by sequesteration, as appears by written evidences now in being, which obliged him to mortgage his estate at Hollings, and settle his residence entirely at Wicollar.

This John Cunliffe had many daughters, and two fons, Nicholas, and Ellis. From Nicholas, the elder, is descended Henry Cunliffe, now living at, and possessed of, the family estate at Wicollar, near Colne, in the county of Lancaster.

Ellis, the second son of John Cunlisse, studied Divinity at the university of Cambridge, of which he continued a member, being a Fellow of Jesus college, till he had taken the degree of Batchelor of Divinity. He was several years rector of Newmarket, which he resigned for that of Etwall, in the county of Derby, and was so much in favour with King Charles the Second, that he did him the honour of standing sponsor to his son, Foster. At his death he lest two daughters, and one son, Foster, (before mentioned) who was so christened, that being the samily name of his mother, who was coheires to an estate belonging to a samily at Airton, in Yorkshire.

This Foster was brought up a merchant at Leverpoole, whose honesty, diligence, and knowledge in mercantile affairs, procured wealth and credit to himself and his country; a magisfrate, who administered justice with discernment, candour, and impartiality; a Christian, devout and exemplary in the exercise of every private duty; a friend to merit, a patron to distress; an enemy only to vice and sloth; and lived esteemed by all who knew him, though sew have been so extensively known. His life was a scene of business: he sought after no personal honour; but he had the pleasure, some time before his death, to see his son unanimously returned member of parliament for Leverpoole. He died, lamented by the wise and good, the 11th of April, 1758, in the seventy-third year of his age.

Foster Cunliffe, of whom we have been now speaking, left two sons, Sir Ellis, his successor, and Sir Robert, the present baronet; also two daughters; the eldest married to William Shawe, of Preston, Esq; the younger, Mary, is yet unmarried. The eldest son, Ellis, was chosen member of parliament for Leverpoole, as before mentioned, in the lifetime of his father, and was first knighted, and afterwards created a baronet, by his late Májesty, George the IId, in the year 1759. No man did his duty better as a member of the house of commons, and representative of a free commercial town, being always ready to promote every honest scheme for the good of trade. As a proof of this, he presented a memorial to those at the helm of state, pointing out the great benefit of inland navigations, and the probability of joining the Trent to the Mersey, by a canal, which has since been effected, and from which many salutary consequences are derived. He also obtained the extension of the Post-office, by which the communication of correspondence is quickened, and a daily post established, much to the facilitating of business, between Leverpoole and London. He was a second time elected member of parliament for Leverpoole, in the year 1761. Sir Ellis was steadily attached to the service of his King, and the liberties of his country, and ferved his constituents with integrity, affiduity, and success; for he was neither venal nor factious: his fortune in life placed him above the temptation of a bribe, and he had too much discernment to be hurried away by every torrent of opposition. Hence it is no wonder we saw him a fecond time returned to affift in the grand council of the nation. Though Providence had bestowed on him almost every earthly bleffing, yet he wanted, what neither honours nor riches can procure, health of body. He was obliged, on this account, to remove, for some years, into the milder climates of Europe, from whence he returned with health much improved, his understanding untainted with folly, his morals uncorrupted by vice, and his religious principles undebased by the libertine or superflitious notions of the countries he had passed through. After some years, finding his health again declining, he was advised by his physicians to go to Naples; but he died at Lostwithiel, in his road to Falmouth, where he designed to embark. happened on the 16th of October, 1767, in the fifty-first year of his age; and he was interred in the chapel at Cherton-Heath, in Cheshire *.

Sir Ellis, leaving only two daughters, his title and paternal estate devolved upon his only brother,

Sir Robert Cunliffe, the present baronet, who is high sheriff of the county of Cheshire, for this present year, 1770. He married Miss Mary, daughter of Ichabod Wright, of Nottingham, Esq; by whom he has issue, one son, Foster, born Feb. 8, 1755, and three daughters, Elizabeth, Mary, and Margaret, all in their minority. Sir Robert had likewise a son, Ellis, who died in his insancy.

368. Colebrooke, of Gatton, Surry.

Created BARONET, Oct. 12, 1759.

THIS family is probably of very great antiquity, as we find the name prevails in many places: but we need mention only the following: the parish of Colebrook, in Dorsetshire, Colebrook-Castle, in Monmouthshire; Colebrook-Dale, in Shropshire; the town of Colebrook, in Middlesex; and Colebrook, in the county of Fermanagh; in the kingdom of Ireland. There is a chapel still in being, in the town of Colebrook, (part of which town is in Buckinghamshire, and part in Middlesex) said to have been sounded by King Edward III.

We shall begin this pedigree with Thomas Colebrooke, who settled at Arundel, and died there Jan. 6, 1690, leaving issue feveral fons; the eldest of whom was,

James Colebrooke, born at Arundel, May 12, 1680; and by Mary Hudson, his wife, whom he married Jan. 2, 1706, he had iffue three sons and seven daughters. He died Nov. 18, 1752, and lies buried in a mausoleum, at Chilham, in the county of Kent, with a Latin inscription over him.

His brother, John Colebrook, was appointed deputy-pay-master to the American expedition under Lord Cathcart, in the year 1740. His spirited conduct, in saving the public money, appeared in the House of Commons, in the further report from the secret committee, in 1742. In 1748, he was appointed his Majesty's consul at Cadiz, from which he was dismissed in 1752, and died in Oct. 1760. His issue were:

1. Dionysia, married to John Walker, or Lyncham, in the county of Wilts, hereditary usher of the Exchequer, whose eldest, and only surviving son, married Arabella, sister of Sir Charles Cope, of Brewern, in Oxfordshire, Bart.

2. Mary,

2. Mary, died unmarried.

3. Anne, married to John Symons, of the Munde, in Herefordshire, and member for the city of Hereford, in the parliament summoned to meet May 21, 1754, and also in the parliament which met May 19, 1761.

4. Anna-Maria, married, first, to William-Paine King. Esq; of Fineshade-Abbey, in the county of Northampton; and afterwards to the hon. Edwin Sandys, Esq; then member for Westminster, who, on the death of his father, in April, 1770, succeeded to the title of Lord Sandys.

5. Sarah, married to Jeremiah Cray, of Ibsley, in the New-

Forest, Esq;

6. Charlotte, married to John Wicker, of Horsham, in the county of Sussex, Esq. He lest one daughter, Mary, married to Sir Thomas Broughton, of Broughton, in Staffordshire, Bart.

7. Rachael, unmarried. The fons were, 1. Robert Colebrooke, of Chilham-Castle, who married Henrietta, eldest daughter of Harry Powlet, afterwards duke of Bolton. This lady dying, Dec. 22, 1753, he married to his second lady, Anne, one of the coheirs of -Thrusher, of Pottern, in the county of Wilts, Esq; and sister to the lady of Sir Bouchier Wray, Bart. He served in three parliaments, from the year 1741 to the year 1761, for the borough of Malden; and, in the year 1762, he was appointed his Majesty's minister to the Swiss cantons.

2. James Colebrooke, of Gatton, in Surry, Esq; was advanced to the dignity of a baronet, by letters patent, dated O&. 12, 1750, 33 George II. and, on failure of male issue, with remainder to his brother George. He married Mary, one of the coheirs of Stephen Skynner, of Walthamstow, in Essex, Esq. He died, May 10, 1761, aged thirty-seven, aster having been chose for three parliaments in the borough of Gatton, and, leaving only two daughters, Mary, born March 12, 1750, and Emma, born Dec. 22, 1752, he was succeeded in title,

Sir George Colebrooke, the present baronet, who married, July 23, 1754, Mary, heir of Patrick Gayner, of Antigua, Esq; by whom he has issue, Mary, born Oct. 26, 1757; George, born Aug. 9, 1759; James-Edward, born July 7, 1761; Harriet, born Sept. 19, 1762; Louisa, born San. 3, 1764; and Henry-Thomas, born June 15, 1765. Sir George has been elected to serve in three parliaments for the borough of Arundel; he was appointed deputy-chairman of the East-India company, in 1768, and made chairman of the faid company in 1769, and was re-elected to that honour this present year, 1770.

369. FLUDYER, of London.

Created BARONET, Nov 14, 1759.

R. Samuel Fludyer, grandfather of the present Sir Samuel Fludyer, Bart. followed the clothing business in London, and, at his death, lest two sons, Samuel, and Thomas.

Thomas Fludyer, the younger Brother, of the city of London, Esq; was knighted in the Council-chamber of Guildhall, Nov. 9, 1761, when his present Majesty, and several of the Royal Family, honoured his brother, Sir Samuel, (who was then lord mayor,) with their presence, at a feast provided there on the occasion. He was first member of parliament for Great Bedwin, and afterwards for Chippenham, in Wilts, and Fellow of the Royal and Antiquary Societies. Sir Thomas married Mary, one of the daughters of the late Sir George Champion, Knight, and alderman of London; he died, March 19, 1769, aged fifty-seven, and was buried at Lee, in Kent, leaving a very considerable fortune to his only daughter and heir, Mary, born June 10, 1755.

His elder brother, Samuel Fludyer, Esq; alderman and sheriff of the city of London, was knighted at Kensington, Sept. 19, 1755, on presenting an address from the lord mayor, aldermen, and common council of the said city, on his late Majesty's safe arrival from his German dominions.

This Sir Samuel Fludyer, Knt. was created a baronet of Great Britain, to him and his heirs male; and, in default of such issue, to his brother, Thomas Fludyer, of the city of London, Esq; and his heirs male, by patent, bearing date, Nov. 14, 1759.

Sir Samuel represented in parliament the borough of Chippenham, and was lord mayor of the city of London, in the year 1761. He married, first, Jane, daughter of — Clarke, of Westminster, by whom it does not appear he had any issue. He married, secondly, Caroline, daughter of Samuel Brudenell,

Esq; master of the jewel office, and commissioner of trade, and brother to the late George Brudenell, earl of Cardigan. By this lady, who is now living, he had two sons, Sir Samuel, his successfor, and George. He died, Jan. 18, 1768, aged sixty-three, and was buried at Lee, in Kent. He was succeeded by his eldest son,

Sir Samuel Fludyer, the present baronet, who is a minor,

CREST: On a Wreath, an Escalop, as in the Arms, between

SEAT: At Lee, in the county of Kent.

370. W A T S O N.

Created BARONET, March 22, 1760.

HE present Sir Charles Watson, who was advanced to the dignity of a baronet in the last year of the reign of his late Majesty, is the only son of Admiral Charles Watson, Esq. deceased, who was bred to the sea, and so distinguished himself by his courage and prudence in his Majesty's navy, that, in the year 1743, he was appointed to the command of the Northumberland man of war, a seventy-four gun ship; in 1748, he was appointed commodore of a squadron sent to Newsoundland, of which place he was appointed governor, as also of the forts and garrisons of Placentia, with all the other forts in that island. He was the same year appointed rear-admiral of the Blue; in 1755, he was made vice-admiral of the Red, and in that capacity affisted at the reduction of Chandenagore, in the East-Indies, in 1757, and died there the same year, Aug. 16. The East-India Company, sensible of his signal services, erected a monument to his memory in Westminster-Abbey; and his late Majesty, to do honour to his name, created his son a baronet, who was the last made in that reign.

There are, as yet, no Arms settled for the family; and sorry we are to tell our readers, that we know not even the place of residence of this Baronet, the son of such an illustrious hero.

373. DELAYAL,

373. DELAVAL, of Seaton-Delaval, in Northumberland.

Created BARONET, July 1, 1761.

THERE is in the Heralds office a very particular pedigree of this family, entered in Sir William Dugdale's Vifitation of Northumberland, c. 41. fol. 27 and 28, which commences at the time of the Norman conqueft; but, as we have been favoured with particulars of a more early date, we shall begin the account of this family with a genealogy, found in the works of Thomas Challock, (formerly bishop of Orcades, and steward to Margaret, princess of Denmark, Norway, and Sweden, wife to James third, King of Scotland,) a learned and ingenious genealogist, who left behind him authentic accounts of many great families in the kingdom of Norway and dukedom of Normandy.

This pedigree bears the title of "An exact and true genealogy of the most noble and ancient Lords of Gouldbransdall, in the kingdom of Norway, from the Heathens time, progenitors of the most noble and ancient name of Delaval."

The first mentioned is Harold, born in the year 846, surnamed Hairsauger, on account of his hair turning sair before the usual time. At this æra, Norway, like England, and other kingdoms, was divided into many states; and, when this Harold arrived at maturity, he made war upon all the other kings, of whom some sell by his sword, others were banished, and the rest, dreading the power of his arms, submitted to the yoke, joined him, and called themselves by the name of Iarl, which signifies an earl. Some of these conquered princes assumed the name of Hersa, which the Scotch formerly called Thenne, who were, in point of dignity, considered as illustrious barons. This Harold was crowned, anno 858, and became the first so-vereign prince over all those kingdoms.

At the same time lived Gouldbrand, king of Dall, a dale, lying between extensive mountains and hills, under the spacious sield of Dowrre, bordering on Walders, Solloer, and Hedmark, which land is to this day called Gouldbransdale; because the lords thereof were called after that name for many generations, and were the descendants of the most mighty heathenish prince, Woden, and his lady Freya, from whom, being worshiped as deities, (says my author) two days in the week, Wednesday and Friday, derived their name. When England was divided into seven M 4 kingdoms, all the kings at that time were descended from this Woden and Freya; and it is observable, that all their descendants were honoured and esteemed in preserence to every other family. This Gouldbrand, who was a dignified baron, was one of the King's principal counsellors, and married Signielda, daughter of Sigefrid, or Sigrichk, King of Sogon, in Norway.

They had islue one son, Gouldbrand, and three daughters: Assalina, the eldest daughter, married Ralph Neffcot, a nobleman, and grandfather to Ralph, the first duke of Normandy. Eldrida, the second daughter, married a noble lord, of what place the pedigree does not mention, but fays his name was Helgeland, predecessor of Harreck, earl of Tiodoe, &c. Osfa, the third daughter, was second wife to the aforesaid King Harold, from whom descended all the Kings of Norway.

Gouldbrand, the second Heria of Gouldbrandsdall, married Raganhilda, daughter of Earling of Quidme, in Walders, a nobleman of illustrious birth. Their issue were, Gouldebrand, and two daughters. Gouldborig, the eldest daughter, married Hafftord, of Skierdingstad, a noble lord. Sigridda, the second daughter, married a nobleman, who was grandfather of Kicktillcalf, of Ringennes, a nobleman of illustrious birth.

Gouldbrand, the third and great Hersa of Gouldbrandsdall, was the first we find mentioned as a Christian, who was converted to that Faith by Ollaus, the Saint, or pious King of Norway. When this Gouldbrand perceived that this good King was endeavouring to establish the Christian religion, he made all the opposition in his power, and raised an army against him. However, (fays my author,) the night before they were to engage, his wife dreamed that the God of the King was more mighty and powerful than the idol of her husband, and that the King's God would certainly destroy him, should he venture to give him battle. She related this dream to her husband, and admonished him to make peace with the Kinz. While they were thus talking together, a messenger came to acquaint him, that the King defired a conference with him before their armies engaged; to which, through the persuasion of his wife, he at last consented. When they met, the King saluting him in a friendly manner, thus addressed him: " I am forry, " my lord, that a man possessed of so much understanding, " courage, and power, and nobly descended from our own 66 blood, should be involved in eternal blindness, and the groffest 66 ignorance of the Supreme Being, a God who created Heaven and Earth! Why will you rely on a false god; who cannot 46 affift you in adversity, nor preserve your soul from the torff tures of everlasting punishments? Let me therefore beseech you to turn from your idolatry, and trust in that God only,

His lordship replied, "The same god my ancestors relied on will protect me, as he has them: I will have no other." The King said, "May I not have a sight of him?" "You may go into the temple, (answered his lordship) where you will see them all." The King's piety would not permit him to enter this idolatrous temple; but desired it might be brought into the field that the sun might shine upon it. The heathens were at first unwilling to expose their idol; but, at last, through the intreaty of his lordship, it was brought forth.

The King then hoped, that the only omnipotent Being, whom he served, would declare, by some miracle, that he alone was the true God. Nor were his hopes in vain; for, as foon as they had placed this rotten image, their idol god, in the fight of the fun, that beautiful luminary withdrew his light, at noon day, though not a fingle cloud was feen in the skies. Fear and dread then fuddenly feized the infidels, which being perceived by one of the King's servants, he ran hastily to their god, and. having uttered these words, "As long as this cursed god stands 46 here, the sun will never shine forth;" he then, with a club, the weapon of those times, struck the wooden idol so violent a blow, as at once beat it to pieces. This rotten image was no sooner broken, than there issued from it a number of serpents, rats, and other venomous creatures. At this moment, the fun broke out with its usual splendor, to the utmost confusion of the affrighted and aftonished heathens. "You now see (said the King) in what a god you have believed: see where he lies, 46 and cannot help himself: the God whom I obey, would not " fuffer the fun to shine upon him."

His lordship, having then caused his god to be burnt, he, and his three sons, embraced the Christian religion, and were instantly baptized. His person was majestic, tall, strong, and, like his ancestors, of a brown complexion. Their coat of arms was an emblem of their ferocity, being a rampant Wolf; but Ollaus, as soon as he had converted him to Christianity, gave him for arms, an Etoile, Or, between three Hearts, Gules, on a Field, Argent, signifying, that he and his three sons were converted to the Christian Faith. His descendants bore it after him, and the name of Dall, in Norway, use it to this day. We were tempted to make this digression from the main purpose of our work, to give the reader so striking an instance of the superstition of those barbarous and uncultivated times.

He kept his court at Frown, where the minister of that parish now resides, and where he built a church. He married

170 DELAVAL, of Seaton-Delaval

Oila, daughter of Suend, the first earl of Orkney and Hetland, by whom he had three sons, Gouldbrand, Forbrand, and Colbrand, who were always with the King, and followed his court. His eldest daughter, Wilfhilda, married Finkol, a distinguished nobleman of Sliva, in Walders. Broghilda, the second daughter, matried Erling, of Gierda, a noble lord of Sogn, and grandsather of Magnus Erlingson, King of Norway.

It is to be observed, that this Gouldbrand the Great had a brother called Wlsver, or Wolf, who married Astrida, a daughter of one of the Kings of Sweden, from whom descended the ancient family of the name of Wolf, or Wlf, in Sweden, viz. the lords of Forstina, from whom the great earl Leonard Forstenson, late general of Sweden, was descended.

Gouldbrand, the fourth Hersa of Gouldbrandsdall, married Ingrida, daughter of Sir Steen Arnison, of Storkrim, an eminent knight, and progenitor of the most noble family of Sparre, in Denmark and Sweden. They had issue, only one daughter, who married Hagen, the illustrious earl of Laden, and protector of the kingdom of Norway; from whom descended three sons, Errick, Suend, and Heming, and from these the noble princes of Simmern, in Germany; the barons of the noble name of Grant, of Frenckei and Ballowcastle, in Scotland; and the barons of Wakuiot, in Lissland.

The second son, Forbrand, was a warlike and valiant man, who always followed St. Ollaus, the beforementioned King, in his wars against the heathens, till he was killed at Stickelstad, in the bishoprick of Frundhim, in Norway, by Kalfarnison, a renowned knight, anno 1035. Going into Normandy to his cousins, the dukes of those territories, they gave him some lands and possessions there, when he entered into their service. On his journey thither, he married Ingrida, daughter of Brussa, earl of Orcadus and Hetland, a progenitor of the most noble family of Brussa, from whom King Robert Brussa, of Scotland, and his brother, King Edward, of Ireland, were descended. Her mother was the daughter of a duke of Muscovia, in Ruffia; and their children, a fon, Philip, and two daughters. the eldest daughter, married Arnfind Goos, son of Breiste, of Sandoe, in the island of Ferroi. Her mother, Gunhill, was daughter of Giffor Galde, earl of Island, whose mother, Astrida, daughter of Bragde the Old, a distinguished nobleman of Island, from whom the noble earls of Wisingsborig, in Sweden, and all the noble lords and knights of the name of Bradge, of Denmark, Norway, and Sweden, are descended. The aforesaid Attridas, mother of Wifhilda, was daughter of Harold, the Black Prince of Island, whose son was Godrid, King of Man and Dublin, from whom are descended the barons of the most noble name of Mackclouid, of Horris and Lewis, in Scotland, and the Aplouds, in Wales. Mabilia, second daughter of Forbrand, married William Fitzosbert, King of the Isle of Wight, and earl of Hertford.

Colebrand, the third fon of Gouldbrand, was a valiant champion, and attended Ollaus, the Saint, into England, where he was flain by Hugh, earl of Warwick, as the history relates. He married Raugnhilda, daughter of Sigurd, of Leirollen, in Walders, who was an illustrious nobleman, descended from the blood of King Asmar. From this Colbrand were descended the knights of Gouldbrandsdal, and the gentlemen of that name, of Dallapiel, of Strom, and Rusdurf, in Norway; also the gentlemen of that name, of Dallison, Esquires; and of Hanlein, in the county of Kent, in England.

Philip, son of Forbrand, was surnamed Dalle-Philip: he was a great courtier, and resided at the court of Richard, the second duke of Normandy, who gave him his daughter, Adalicia, to his wife. They had iffue, Richard, and Forbrand, and a daughter, Violetta, who married Joselin, third son of the earl of Luxenburgh.

Richard, eldeft son of Dalle-Philip, was a valiant man, and went with Geofrei de Bullion to the Holy Wars, where he conquered Jerusalem, anno 1142, and was barbarously murdered by the Sarazins, as was his brother Forbrand, who died unmarried. They were both buried with great funeral pomp, near the Holy Grave.

Richard married Maria, daughter of Guido, duke of Lorrain. She was, as is well known, related to all the Kings and Princes in Alropia. They had iffue, William and Guido, and two daughters: Juleta, the eldest, married Eustace, earl of Bessin. Sisberta, the second daughter, married Eudo, viscount Neele, both great men of Normandy. William, the eldest son of Richard, was made earl of Vernon, in Normandy, and likewise of Devon, in England. He married Mabilia, daughter of Robert Earl of Millent, from whom descended the noble name of Vernon.

Guido, fecond fon of Richard, furnamed Dalle-Richard, married Emma, only daughter and heir of Inquerin, lord of Delaval, younger brother to Allan, earl of Little-Britain. Their children were, Guido, and Isabella; which last married Robert de Hastings, a progenitor of the earls of Huntingdon, and of the most antient family of the name of Hastings.

vein, de Counte Ville, by Arletta, mother of King Williams the Conqueror. Their children were Guiofrei, Henric, and Hovisia; which last married Amery, viscount Towar, the progenitor of the noble family of Towars, barons of Interlied, in Scotland.

Guiofrei, the eldest son, lord of Delaval, married Euodocia, daughter of Voldonius, earl of Sanct-Claro, progenitor of the most noble and antient family of Sanct-Clairs, formerly princes of Orcadus, from whom descended the present earls of Caithnes, and lords and barons of many antient houses in the kingdom of Scotland at this day. From this Guiofrei, and his lady, descended all the families of the noble house of Delaval, in Normandy.

Sir Henrick Delaval, second son of Guido, lord of Delaval, was of the number of those knights who carried the head banners, when his cousin William, Duke of Normandy, conquered England, and was made King, anno 1066. He married Gunnirilla, daughter of Roger de Beamont, or Bellamonte, who was commonly called Roger with the Beard. He was descended from the earls of Millent, and was one of the greatest counsellors and generals King William had. From him descended the former earls of Leicester, who gave birth to the dukes and other dignified titles of the name of Hamilton, in Scotland; and also all the noble viscounts, banners, &c. of the ancient name of Beamont, here in England.

The children of this Henrick were, one son, Henrick, or Henry, and one daughter, Lydia, who married Regnald, earl of Cornwell, natural fon of King Henry I.

Henry, the second son of Delaval, Knight Banneret, of Seaton, married Anna, daughter of Lewis de Longe Ville, an illustrious lord, likewise descended from the Norman blood. They had issue, Isaac, Lewis, and William; Rochesia, their eldest daughter, married Bertram de Vernon, baron of Farnham, who died in Joppa, in the Holy Land, anno 1199. Gunnirilla, their second daughter, married Sir Valdonius de Sanct Claro, second son of William, the first, of Roslin, in Scotland, from whom descended the barons of Hermiston, now lords Sanct Clair.

Lewis Delaval, of Seaton Delaval, Knight Banneret, eldeft fon of Henry, married Emma, daughter of Sir John Gubion, a renowned knight. They had iffue, Robert, and Gunnirilla, who married Sir Randolf de Marley, of Morpeth-Castle, in Northumberland.

William Delaval, second son of Henry, died likewise at Joppa, with his brother-in-law, Bartram de Vernon, and lest no issue.

Sir Robert Delaval, of Seaton-Delaval, Knight-Banneret, fon of Lewis, married Anna, daughter of Sir Robert Darsey, Knt. They had issue, one son, Guido, and three daughters, Anna, Emma, and Johanna. Anna, the eldest daughter, married Sir Richard Cumin, an illustrious Knight and Banneret, in Northumberland, from whom descended the earls of Buckon, lords of Badsenoch, and other great families of that name, in Scotland. Emma, the second daughter, married Robert de Montauld, an illustrious baron, and steward to the earl of Chester. Johanna, the third daughter, married Brussa, a renowned Knight.

Sir Guido Delaval, Knight Banneret, of Seaton-Delaval, fon of Sir Robert, married Beatrix, daughter of Sir Anthony Bulmar, a renowned Knight. They had iffue, Sir William Delaval, of Seaton-Delaval, Knight Banneret; and Henry Delaval, who died without iffue; also three daughters, Elizabeth, Sybilla, and Mary: Elizabeth, the eldest daughter, married Sir Walter Tyrole, governor of the Borders, and a renowned Knight Banneret, who was descended from the dukes of Tyrole, in Germany. Sybilla, the second daughter, married Robert Delalander, Esq; and Mary, the third daughter, became a Nun.

Here ends the pedigree of this family, as collected from the writings of Thomas Challack, bishop of Orcades. We shall now proceed to the account of the Delavals, as we find it in the college of Arms, attested by Mr. Dugdale, and Mr. Bigland.

This pedigree begins with Sir Henry Delaval, Knt. temp. W. Conq. and then, after a fuccession of sour other Knights Bannerets, already mentioned, in the beforementioned pedigree, and also in this, comes down to the above Sir William, eldest son of Sir Guido Delaval, by Beatrix, daughter of Sir Anthony Bulmer, Knight. Robert Delaval, Esq; eldest son of the above Sir Raphe, died in his father's lifetime, and left, by Barbara, daughter of Sir George Selby, of Whitehouse, in Durham, Knt. one son,

Sir Raphe Delaval, of Seaton-Delaval, Northumberland, who was created a baronet, 12 Car. II. He married Anne, daughter of Alexander Leslie, earl of Leven, premier earl of Scotland, by whom he had seven sons and six daughters: Robert, the eldest fon, died Aug. 1, 1682, and was buried in St. George's chapel, at Windsor, aged thirty-six; Sir John, his fifth son, was his fuccessor. His other sons were, Alexander, Raphe, Thomas, Lefley, and Charles, who all died unmarried, or without male issue. The daughters of Sir Raphe, were, Barbara, who died young; Anne, Margaret, Mary, Barbara, and Dorothy. One of these daughters married William Blount, of Maple-Durham, in the county of Oxford, Esq; son and heir of Sir Richard Blount, by Cicilia, his wife, daughter of Sir Richard Baker, of Siffinghurst, in Kent. Sir Raphe married, secondly * Diana. daughter of George lord Delamer, grandfather of the late earl of Warrington, (who furviving Sir Ralph, married Sir Edward Blacket, Bart.) by whom he had iffue one daughter, Diana, who married William, second son of Sir Edward Blacket, Bart. and had one daughter, Diana, married to Henry Mainwaring, of Over-Peover, in Cheshire, Esq; and had issue the present Sir Henry Mainwaring, Bart. Sir Ralph was succeeded by,

Sir John Delaval, Bart. his fifth son. This Sir John was the father of Sir Thomas, his successor, whose son afterwards enjoyed the title, on the death of his father; when, the male is-fue failing, the title became extinct in this family.

We now return to Sir John Delaval, of Dishington, in Northumberland, Knt. (second son of Sir Robert, by Dorothy, daughter of Ralph Grey) from whom the present Sir John Hussey Delaval, Bart. is descended. This Sir John married two wives: first, Anne, daughter of Sir George Bowes, Knt. by whom he had issue one son, Sir Robert, of Dishington, Knt. living anno 1666. His second lady was Elizabeth, daughter of

Sir George Selby, Knt. by whom he had four fons: 1. John, who died unmarried. 2. William, whose wise was Mary, daughter of Sir Henry Widdrington, of Black Heddon, in the county of Northumberland, Knt. 3. Raphe, died unmarried. 4. George, who married Margaret, daughter of Edward Grey, of Morpeth, in the county of Northumberland, Esq. by whom he had issue, one son, Edward, who married Mary, daughter of Sir Francis Blake, of Coggs, in Oxfordshire, Knt. The issue of this marriage was Francis Blake Delaval, of Seaton-Delaval, Esq. who married Rhoda, daughter of Robert Apreece, of Washingley, in the county of Huntingdon, Esq.

As this lady was descended from the family of Husseys, of which we have a very particular and authentic pedigree in our possession, we hope to be excused, at least, in departing from our plan, in order to present it to our readers:

The family of Hussey came from Normandy, at the Conquest, and derived their descent, by marriage, from the Dukes of Normandy. They had great possessions in many parts of this kingdom, and have produced no less than four different branches, which arrived to the Peerage of England.

The following account of this family is principally taken from a pedigree, painted on vellum, which bears this title: "The pedigree of his Excellency Sir William Hussey, Knt. ambassiador from their Majesties, King William and Queen Mary, anno 1690, to the present Grand Signior Soliman Han, descended of the antient and noble family of Hussey, in the county of Lincoln, collected from the books in the college of Arms, and other authentic registers and records."

Of this family was Sir William Hussey, (the first mentioned in this pedigree) whose son, John, by a daughter of — Lumley, Esq; was of Old Sleeford, in Lincolnshire, and married Elizabeth, daughter of — Shessield, Esq; by whom he had issue, Sir William, who was burges in parliament for Grantham, 7 Edw. IV. and constituted attorney general, the eleventh of the same reign; also lord chief Justice of the King's Bench, 21 Edw. IV. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Maurice Berkley, of Wymondham, in the county of Leicester, by whom he had issue two sons, John, and Sir Robert. Sir William died Sept. 8. 11 Henry VII.

John, the eldest son, was summoned to parliament as lord Hussey, of Sleeford, 22 Henry VIII. He married, first, Anne, daughter of George Grey, earl of Kent. His second wife was Margaret, daughter of Simon Blant, Esq. He died without issue by either.

Sir Robert Huffey, (the third fon) of Blankney, in the county of Lincoln, Knt. was high theriff of that county, 34 Hen. Vol. III.

178 DELAVAL, of Seaton-Delaval.

Sir Charles Hussey, of Honington, in the county of Lincoln, high sheriff, 33 Eliz. and knighted by that Queen. He married Ellen, daughter of the lord chief baron Birch, and was father of two sons, Sir Edward, and Sir Charles, which last died unmarried.

Sir Edward, the eldest son, was created a baronet by King James I. He was high sheriff of Lincoln, 16 James I. and 12 Charles I. and ferved in parliament, 1640. He was a great fufferer for King Charles I. in the civil wars, and fo obnoxious to the usurped authority, that in the propositions at Uxbridge, 1644, he was one to be removed from his Majesty's councils. He married Elizabeth, daughter of George Auton, niece and heir of Thomas Taylor, of Dodington Pigott, in Lincolnshire, Esq; and died, 1648, leaving issue five daughters: 1. Jane, married to Sir Thomas Williamson, of Markham, in Nottinghamshire, Bart. 2. Mary, wife of Sir Robert Bolles, of Scampton, in Lincolnshire, Bart. 3. Rebecca, wife of Robert Markham, of Sedgbroke, in Lincolnshire, Esq. 4. Bridget, wik of Sir Thomas Clifton, of Lytham, Bart. and, 5. Anne, wife of Charles Pelham, of Brocklesby, in Lincolnshire, Esq. Allo four fons: Thomas; John, a captain, flain at Gainsborough, in defence of the royal cause; Charles, who was created a baronet by King Charles II. July 21, 1661, and died in 1666, leaving issue, by Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Brownlow, of Humby, in Lincolnshire, Batt, three sons, and three daughters: 1. Sir Charles, of Cathorp, in Lincolnshire, his successor, who died unmarried, and was succeeded in title, by, 2. Sir Edward, (who married two wives: first, Charlotte, only daughter of Dr. Brevint, dean of Lincoln, by whom he had a numerous iffue, whereof only two daughters, Charlotte and Sarah, furvived him. By his second wife, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Charles Devee, Bart. he had iffue, Sir Henry, his fucceffor, and Edward. In one of these sons, I apprehend, the title became extinct.) 3. John, aged twenty-two, anno 1687, and died unmarried. unmarried. The daughters were, Elizabeth, Jane, and Anne-The other fon of the above Sir Edward, was Edward, who died unmarried, anno 1650.

Thomas, eldest son of the above Sir Edward, the first baronet, died in his father's life-time, having had issue by Rhoda, daughter and coheir of Thomas Chapman, of London, Gent. (which lady, after the death of her first husband, married Ferdinando, lord Fairsax) three daughters: Rhoda, married to John Amcoats, of Astrop, in Lincolnshire, Esq. Jane, who died unmarried; and Mary, who married Thomas Ball, of Minehead, in Devonshire, Esq. Also two sons, Sir William, and Sir Thomas.

Sir William Hussey, Knt. the eldest son, married Mary, daughter of Sir John Buckworth, of London, Knt. He went ambassador from King William to the Ottoman Porte, and died issueless, at Adrianople. He was aged forty-sive, anno 1687.

Sir Thomas Hussey succeeded his grandfather, in title, and possessed Doddington Pigott. He served several times in parliament for the county of Lincoln, temp. Will. III. and married Sarah, daughter of Sir John Langham, Knt. and Bart. and fome time alderman of London. He died in 1706, and left issue one son, William, who died unmarried, and sour daughters: Rhoda, and Rebecca died unmarried; Elisabeth, the fourth daughter, married Richard Ellis, Esq; only son and heir of Sir Richard Ellis, of Nockton, in Lincolnshire, Bart. but had no Sarah, the third daughter, married Robert Apreece, of Washingley, in the county of Huntingdon, Esq; by whom she had one son, Thomas, and one daughter, Rhoda, who married Francis Blake Delaval, Esq; beforementioned, and was mother of the present Sir John Hussey Delaval, Bart. Edward, the father of this Francis Blake Delaval, Esq; had likewise another fon, Robert, who died without issue; and two daughters; Margaret, married to R. Robinson, and Anne, married to Sir Ralph Millbank, Bart.

Francis Blake Delaval, Esq; died in Dec. 1752, and his lady survived him till August 1759, leaving issue: 1. Sir Francis Delaval, who was elected Knight of the most hon. order of the Bath, in March, 1761, and installed the May sollowing. He married lady Isabella, daughter of the right hon. the earl of Thanet, and relict of lord Nassau Poulett, by whom he has no issue. 2. Sir John Hussey, of whom hereaster. 3. Edward; and, 4. Thomas, who are living, and unmarried; also Robert, George, Henry, and Ralph, who all died unmarried. The daughters were, Rhoda, married to Sir Edward Assey, Bart, Sarah, and Elizabeth, who both died young; Anne, married to Sir William Stanhope, Knight of the Bath; and Sarah, married to the right hon. John Savile, earl of Mexborough, in the kingdom of Ireland; which two are now living.

Sir John-Hussey Delaval, was created a baronet, by letters patent, dated July 1, 1761. He is one of the representatives for Berwick, for which place he has been member in three parliaments. He married Susanna Robinson, daughter of R. Robinson, and relict of John Potter, Esq; by whom he has issue one son and heir, John Delaval; also sive daughters living; Rhoda, Sophia-Anne, Elizabeth, Frances, and Sarah; the other daughter, Susanna, died at twelve years of age.

374. BAYNTUN-ROLT, of Sacombe-Park, Hertford.

Created Baronet, July 9, 1762.

CIDNEY, in his Treatise upon Government, mentions this family to be of great antiquity; that in name and antient possessions it equals most, and is far superior to many of the nobility, whose names he ennumerates; and, indeed, it appears, from a very curious pedigree of this family, preserved in the Royal Museum, that, in the time of Henry II. they were Knights of St. John of Jerusalem; Sir Henry Bayntun was Knight Marshal to the King; an office of high authority in those days, whose second son, Henry, a Knight of St. John of Jerusalem, was slain in Bretagne, anno 1201. Their descents and marriages are well preserved in this parchment, so as to be regularly brought down to Sir Henry Bayntun, Knt. temp. Jac. I. 1616. This Slr Henry was great great grandfather to John Bayntun, of Spye-Park, Efq; who died anno 1717, without issue, leaving his estate to his nephew, Edward-Bayntun Rolt, second son of Edward Rolt, of Sacombe-Park, in the county of Hertford, Esq; whom he made his heir, directing him to take the Name, and bear the Arms of Bayntun.

We find that Sir Henry Bayntun, Knt. in the time of Henry IV. took part with the earl of Northumberland, and was beheaded at Berwick. Sir Robert Bayntun, anno 1471, was in arms against the King at the battle of Tewkesbury, where he was made prisoner, and attainted; but his life was granted him among the very sew that were spared, but by what intercession we know not.

The Bayntuns were long fettled at Falston, alias Fallers-down, Wileshire, where they built a chapel, of which a very elegant Gothic window is faid to be still remaining,

Upon the death of Richard Beaucamp, lord St. Amand, John Bayntin, Efq; who was his coufin and heir, removed to Bromham, antiently the feat of the Roches, and from them to the Brauchamps, where the family continued till the year 1652, when, at the defeat of Sir William Waller, by lord Wilmot, their house, situated near the field of battle, was burnt; they then removed to Spye-Park; and having improved and converted the lodge into a mansion-house, have made it their chief residence to this time.

Sir Edward, fon of the faid John, was in great favour with Henry the VIIIth. He was vice-chamberlain to three of his Queens, and was employed by the King to use his private friendship with Cardinal Pole, (who was his cousin) to bring him to the King's views, but his endeavours had not the defired He attended the King in his expeditions to France. and is supposed to have died there. His son, Sir Edward, who fucceeded him, married Agnes*, the daughter of Sir Griffith Rees, (Ryce, upon the monument in Bromham church) whose mother was the daughter of Thomas, duke of Norfolk; by this lady he had several children. He was succeeded by his son Sir Henry; this Sir Henry was succeeded by his eldest son, Sir Edward, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Henry Maynard, of Easton, Essex; his eldest son was engaged very early in those. troubles which then distracted the kingdom; he was commisfigner of parliament refiding in the Scots army, and feems to have taken a very active part in those times, and to have had the confidence of the Presbyterian party. At the Restoration, he was made a Knight of the Bath; he was also a member of the long Parliament; he married Stuarta Thynne, the eldest fifter of Thomas Thynne, of Long Leat, Esq; by whom he had two Henry was contracted, during his infancy, to lady Sophia Ofburne, daughter of the Lord Treasurer Danby; but his father dying while he was on his travels beyond the seas, this marriage never took effect. Upon his return to England, he married Anne, eldest daughter of John, and sister and coheir of Charles Wilmot, earl of Rochester; her mother was the heir of the antient and noble family of the Mallets, one of whom was a fubscribing baron to the Magna Charta, in Runing Mead; this Henry had two children by the said Anne, the aforesaid John, and Anne, the mother of the present Sir Edward. Lady Bayntun, after the decease of the said Henry, intermarried with Francis Grevile, Esq; and was the mother of the late William, lord Brooke, of Warwick-castle, father of Francis, the present earl Brooke, and earl of Warwick.

* Sir Edward-Bayntun Rolt, second son of Edward Rolt, Esq; of Sacombe-Park, in the county of Hertford, aforesaid, by the aforesaid Anne, his wise, the nephew and heir of John Bayntun, aforesaid, her brother, was chosen member of parliament for Chippenham, in the year 1737, and has so continued to this day. In the year 1746, he was made groom of the bed-chamber to the late Prince of Wales; and in the year 1751, he was, upon the death of lord Baltimore, made surveyor of the duchy of Cornwall; and, July 9, 1762, created a baronet. He married Mrs. Mary Poynter, of Herriard, in the county of Southampton, by whom he has a son, and two daughters, viz. Constantia, Andrew, his son and heir, and Elizabeth.

376. Dundas, of Fingask, in North-Britain.

Created BARONET, Novem. 16, 1762.

THE family of Dundas, in North-Britain, is descended from Cospatrick, earl of Northumberland, who, in 1066, went into Scotland, with King Malcolm Canmore, rather than submit to the Conqueror of England. King Malcolm gave him the lands of Dunbar, and many other possessions in Scotland.

Waldeve, his eldest son, gave, anno 1124, the lands of Dundas, to Helias, son of his brother Huthred, which lands are still in the possession of the family.

Helias is often mentioned about 1140. Serle de Dundas succeeded, anno 1170.

He'ias, his fon, succeeded, anno 1220.

Rodulphus, son to Helias, is witness to a charter of King Alexander II. to the monastery of Kelso, with Walter, son of Allan, Seneschallus et sufficientus Section, May 26, 1240.

Saer, of Dundas, his ton, fucceeded him, and was compelled, anno 1296, to fue ar allegiance to Edward, King of England, for his lands in Mid-Lothian; and, again, for his lands of Fingask, in Perthshire.

Sir Hugh Dundas, his fon, is often mentioned with Sir William Waliace, in defence of the liberty of his country. He died liam Waliace, in defence of the liberty of his country. He died in the reign of King Robert de Bruce, and was fucceeded by his fon, Saer de Dandas, who was killed, anno 1332, at the battle of Duplin, in Perthshire.

James de Dundas, his son, succeeded, and, in 1342, refigned the barony of Fingask to King David II. for a new charter to his son and heir, John de Dundas, who, anno 1364, obtained a new charter from King David, to hold the said barony of the King, heritably and honourably, as his ancestors had done. He left issue, James, his only son, and two daughters.

Agnes,

'Agnes, married to Adam Forrester of Constorphin, ancestor to lord Forrester; Elizabeth, to Sir Alexander Livingston, of Callendar.

James succeeded his father, and upon his own refignation he obtained a charter of confirmation, by Robert II. of the barony of Fingask, to the heirs of his own body, which failing, to Adam Forrester, and his heirs, dated Feb. 28, 1378. He obtaided a charter of the lands of Dundas, from William, lord Sclon, of whom these lands held, Blackward to himself, and the heirs of his body, which failing, to Adam Forrester, dated at Sclon, Dec. 13, 1397.

He obtained, from Sir John Selon, a confirmation of the above charter, upon his own refignation, in favour of his fon James Dundas, referving his own, and his lady, Christian Stewart's, life-rents, and her residence in the tower of Dundas, dated Nov. 30, 1423.

In these troublesome times, when the governors of the kingdom were so often changed, in the King's absence in England, he obtained from Murdoc, duke of Albany, then governor of Scotland, a charter of confirmation of the barony of Fingask, in favour of himself and his heirs male, by Christian Stewart, his wise, which failing, to his own nearest heirs, dated Dec.

When King James returned to Scotland, he granted him a confirmation of Sir John Seaton's charter of the lands of Dundas, dated April 16, 1427, as also a charter of confirmation of the barony of Fingask, to himself and his heirs male, procreated, or to be procreated, dated May 24, 1430.

This original charter remains in the family, and has the dates of its having been produced by the succeeding heirs of this barony, marked and signed by the officers of Chancery.

This James Dundas appears to have been honoured with more than ordinary favour from King James I. who gave him the appellation of Dilectus et familiarius armiger noster, and granted him several charters under the great seal.

He died October 30, 1430, leaving issue, by Christian Stewart, (daughter of Sir Robert Stewart, lord Innermeath and Lorn, by his wife, Margaret, daughter of Robert, duke of Albany, who was governor of Scotland) three sons, 1. James Dundas, his heir; 2. Archibald Dundas, of Liston, who obtained a charter (by designation) of the Middletown of Barntown, from his wife's brother, Nicholas, lord Brothwick, dated Oct. 20, 1447. He also acquired part of the lands of Echline, from Philip Mowbray, of Dalmenie. He is also mentioned as a sollower of the earl of Douglas, and included with him in a safe conduct to England, 1452, from whom the present samily of Dundas are descended; 3. Duncan Dundas, progenitor of the New Liston family. He suffered with his eldest brother and the Livingstone party, 1449.

James Dundas, the eldest son, was returned heir to his father, in fundry lands, in 1431, and 1437. He was witness to King James the IId's charter of confirmation, in favour of the priory of the Charter-house, called Domus Virtutis, at Perth. anno 1430. In that King's minority, he was one of the privy council, with the governor, Sir Alexander Livingston, his father in-law. He granted a charter of confirmation to the Carmelite Friars, at Queens-ferry, of fundry acres, in which he obliged them to pray for himself, Euphan, his wife, and their children, &c. dated 1440.

William, earl of Douglas, having prevailed at court, Sir Alexander Livingstone, the King's governor, his family, with his sons-in-law, James Dundas, and Robert Bruce, were profecuted, condemned, and imprisoned, and the lands of Dundas were, by parliament, 1449, given to William, earl of Douglas, their profecutor, by a charter, Feb. 10, 1449. This earl Douglas being cut off by the King's own hand, at Stirling, Feb. 13, 1452, the King granted a pardon, dated Aug. 27, 1452, Alexandro Living stone, de Callender, Militem, & quondam Jacobo de Dundas de eodem, ex nostris benevolentia, favore et gratia speciale; and which was, soon after, confirmed in the amplest manner, in parliament.

James Dundas dying (during his confinement in Dunbarton castle) in 1451, the barony of Fingask, the freehold estate of this family, remained in the King's hands from the forfeiture in 1449, until the heir of James succeeded, after his pardon, in James Dundas married Euphan, daughter of Sir Alexander Livingston, of Callender, by whom he had Alexander, and two daughters.

1. Elizabeth, married to Sir David Gutherie, lord treasurer to King James III.

2. Margaret, married to Alexander Cackburn, of Langton. By indenture, dated June 21, 1455, Lawrence, lord Oliphant, of Aberdagy, with Alexander of Dundas, of Fingask, become bound in security to William, earl of Errol, to keep him unhurt and skaithed, in the payment of 2001. to William of Murray of Tillibardine, for the marriage-right of Blair, of Balthywick.

In a folemn fubmission, dated July 24, 1466, between the abbots of Scone and Cupar, the arbiters are, Dominus Henricus Douglas, de Lochleven; Joannes de Moncrief de eodem; Alexander de Dundas, Baro de Fingask, &c. their seals are appended, one of which is a lion rampant, and around the legend is, Sigillum Alexandri de Dundas, Baro de Fingask.

Alexander de Dundas, baron of Fingask, was, with four of his sons, killed at the satal battle of Flowden, anno 1513, havmarried Isabel, daughter to Dawrence, lord Oliphant, by whom he left issue, Alexander, his heir, and Adam de Dundas, of Oxmure; also one daughter, Margaret, married to Law, of Lawbridge, in Galloway. Alexander, his son, succeeded to the barony of Fingask, and procured a charter of confirmation from King James V. of the lands of Cotts, in the lordship of Elcho.

By Elizabeth Bruce, his wife, daughter of Sir David Bruce, of Clackmannan, and fifter to the ancestors of the earls of Elgin and Ailesbury, he had iffue three sons and two daughters, Archibald, his heir, Robert, and Thomas.

Margaret, his eldest daughter, married William Kerr, of Ancram; their son was created earl of Ancram, and his son marquis of Lothian. She married, after her husband's death, Sir George Douglas, of Mordington, by whom she had Sir George Douglas, who died while ambassador at Denmark; and one daughter, Martha, who was married to Sir James Lockhart, of Lee, by whom there were three sons, and one daughter; Sir William Lockhart, of Lee, ambassador to France, 1650; Sir George Lockhart, of Carnwath, and Sir John Lockhart, of Cassle-hill; and Anne, married to George Lockhart, of Torbreicks, whose heir was mother to William, earl of Aberdeen.

Nicholas Dundas, second daughter of Alexander, married Alexander Colville, lord Commendator of Culross, ancestor to the present lord Colville, of Culross; their eldest daughter, Grizel, married to Sir John Preston, of Valley-field; their second daughter, Jean, married Robert Bruce of Blair-hall.

Alexander Dundas was killed at the battle of Pinky, Sept. 10, 1547, and was succeeded by his son Archibald, at Perth, Jan. 10, 1548; William, lord Ruthven, being then sheriff.

This Archibald was in high efteem with King James the VIth, as a person of singular worth and merit. His Majesty, in a letter to Alexander Blair, of Blathiock, concerning the affairs in Perthshire, recommended him to consult and advise with this Archibald Dundas, of Fingask, as a person in whom he entirely consided, dated Sept. 23, 1579.

He married Elizabeth, daughter of Robert Colville, of Cliesh, ancestor to lord Colville, of Ochiltree; by her he had three sons, William, who, anno 1582, married Margaret, eldest daughter 378. BLAKISTON, of London.

Created BARONET, April 22, 1763.

ATTHEW BLAKISTON, Esq; received the honour of Knighthood, at Kensington, June 8, 1759, upon his present Majesty (then Prince of Wales) coming of age, and, by patent, bearing date as above, he was surther advanced to the dignity of a baronet of this kingdom.

On the death of Sir Samuel Pennant, Knt. alderman of Bifhopsgate-Ward, London, Matthew Blakiston, Esq; (now a baronet) was proposed and elected to succeed him; but a petition from some of the principal inhabitants of that Ward being presented to the court of aldermen, signifying their apprehen-

fion of his being disqualified for that office, by not residing within the said city, the court took their petition into consideration. The majority declared in his savour, and he was accordingly sworn into that important trust, June 12, 1750. He was chosen sherisf of the said city, in 1753; in 1760, he served the high office of lord mayor, and was colonel of the Green regiment of the militia of the city of London.

This Sir Mattkew Blakiston is undoubtedly descended from an antient family of that surname, in the county of Durham; but, as his particular branch is not yet continued in the Heralds office, and being disappointed of any farther information concerning this family, we cannot, with certainty, say any thing more of it, and give the following only from common report.

Sir Matthew has had two wives: the first died, Jan. 8, 1754, leaving an only son, Matthew, who died, Sept. 7, 1758, unmarried; and, April 8, 1760, Sir Matthew married Miss Annabella Baillie, by whom he has issue.

No Arms, &c. settled in the Heralds office.

379. FLEMING, of Brumpton-Park, Middlesex.

Created BARONET, April. 22, 1763.

THE first baronet of this family was Sir John Fleming, of Brumpton-Park, aforesaid, who was advanced to this dig; nith, 3 George III. and died Nov. 6, following.

The present baronet is said to be Sir Michael; but having received no account from this family, can say nothing surther with certainty; nor have they any Arms in the Heralds office. We are informed that there is but one of this samily lest, which is Sir Michael le Fleming, of Skirwith, in Cumberiand. The first baronet is said to have married Miss Colman, by whom he had one son, and three daughters. The son's name was Seymour Fleming, his mother being aunt to the present duke of Somerset.

380. MAYNE, of Marston-Moretain, Bedford-shire.

Created BARONET, April 22, 1763.

HIS William is a younger fon of the late William Mayne, of Powis-Logie, in Clackmannanshire, in the kingdom of Scotland, who, according to the Lion Registers Office of of that kingdom is descended of the ancient house of Mayne, of Lockwood, in Clydesdale.

His ancestors have been settled in the parish of Tillibody, and shire of Clackmannan, since about the middle of the 14th century.

This William was early bred a merchant, in the family-house of business at Lisbon, in the kingdom of Portugal, where it has now subsisted with great reputation for near an hundred

He returned from Portugal, in 1751; in 1758, he married the hon. Frances Allen, daughter and coheir of Joshua, lord viscount Allen, of the kingdom of Ireland, by whom he had one son, who died soon after his birth; and in right of her he enjoys considerable possessions in that kingdom. In April, 1763, he was, by his present Majesty, George III. advanced to the dignity of a baronet of Great Britain; and, in March, 1766, was created one of his Majesty's most honourable privy council of the kingdom of Ireland, and is now a member in that parliament.

ARMS: Argent, a Cheveron, Gules, voided, of the Field, betwixt two Pheons in Chief, Sable; and a Fleur-de-lis, in base, Azure; all within a Bordure, engrailed, of the last.

582. Rodney, of Alresford, Hampshire.

Created BARONET, Jan. 21, 1764.

THE family of Rodney is of long standing in the county of Somerset, and have produced many branches, as may be feen in the Heralds office; but, not having been favoured with any account from the family, we can give only the following short particulars:

Sir Thomas Bridges, (of Keynsham-Abbey, which seat the duke of Chandos now possesses) a younger branch of the duke's family, married the heiress of the Rodneys, of Rodney-Stoke, in Somersetshire, from whom the baronet we are now to mention, is descended, and on which account the additional christian name of Bridges was given him.

George-Bridges Rodney, Esq; was advanced to the dignity of a baronct of Great Britain, by letters patent, dated as above. He was bred to the sea, and, serving in different inserior stations, was, on the 9th of November, 1742, appointed a captain of his Majesty's navy. He was afterwards promoted to be vice-admiral of the Blue; and, Dec. 3, 1765, was appointed master of the Royal Hospital at Greenwich, in the room of admiral Townsend. In 1740, he was appointed governor and commander in chief of the island of Newsoundland; in 1759, he commanded the squadron that bombarded Havre-de-Grace, on the coast of France; and was joint commander of the sleet at the taking of the Havannah, in 1762. He was member in the last parliament for Penryn, in Cornwall, and in the present, for the town of Northampton.

Sir George married, fish, Feb. 2, 1753, lady Jane Compton, fecond daughter of the hon. Charles Compton, (she and her sisters had patents of precedence, as earls daughters) and sister to the right hon. Spencer, the present earl of Northampton. This lady died, Jan. 28, 1757, leaving issue two sons:

George, born Dec. 25, 1753, and James.

He married, to his second wise, Henrietta, daughter of John Clies, a merchant in Lisbon, but of a Cornish family; by whom he has issue, John, born May 10, 1765, Jane, born Dec. 24, 1766; and another daughter.

383. Moore, of Jamaica.

Created BARONET, Jan. 26, 1764.

JOHN MOORE, the first that occurs to our knowledge of this family, went over to Barbadoes, in the reign of King Charles II. and was possessed of a considerable property in that island, with which he removed to Jamaica, and settling there, married Elizabeth, daughter of colonel Smart, of that place, and had by her four children; John, Samuel, Elizabeth, and Frances.

John died without issue; Samuel married Elizabeth Lowe, sister and coheir of Samuel Lowe, of Goadby, in the county of Leicester, Esq; who, in several parliaments, represented the borough of Aldborough, in the county of Sussolk, and had by her several children, of which only

Henry, the eldest, survived him, who was appointed by his late, and, afterwards, by his present Majesty, lieutenant-governor of the island of Jamaica, and was commander in chief of that island near six years. On his return to England, he was created a baronet in January 1764; and in July, 1765, appointed governor of the province of New York, in North America, where he resided till his death. Sir Henry married Catharina Maria, eldest daughter of Samuel Long, of Long-ville, in the island of Jamaica, Esq; by whom he had two children now living, Susanna-Jane, and John-Henry, now at Eton school. Sir Henry died, Sept. 11, 1769, and was succeeded in title and estate by his only son,

Sir John-Henry More, who is the present baronet.

No Arms appear to belong to this family.

Samuel Gordon, of Newark-upon-Trent, in the county of Nottingham, is descended from William Gordon, of Nottingham, is descended from William Gordon, of Nottingham, is descended from William Gordon, of Lochevar, whose grandson was created lord Kenmure, by Charles First.

Thomas Gordon, a cadet of that family, who, among many other young men of the first families in the West of Scotland, accompanied Sir Hugh Montgomery, of the family of Eglinten, who being secretary for Scotland, and accompanying King James the First into England, was employed by that prince to levy a force in the west of Scotland, sufficient to attack the rebel, Con O'Neal, earl of Tyrone, whom they besieged and took prisoner in Carricksergus, and brought him over through Scotland into England.

King James granted him, (Sir Hugh Montgomery,) one third of O'Neal's lands, and one other third to be divided among his followers; but he had the good luck, by his interest at court, to engross almost the whole, and the young gentlemen, the adventurers, remained with a poor pittance; and, notwithstanding all their attempts for redress, Sir Hugh's eldest son, who also became secretary of state for Scotland, kept them out of their just right.

From Thomas Gordon, the first adventurer who settled in Ireland, came Sir Samuel Gordon, the son of Samuel Gordon, whose mother was Eleanor Magines, of the samily of the viscounts Evagh, of the kingdom of Ireland. He was bred up in shrife.

Created BARONET, Feb 12, 1765.

THE pedigree of this antient and honourable family is collected from antient deeds, Heralds visitations, inquisitions, monumental inscriptions, and other authentic evidences, and is derived as follows:

Hugo de Mildeme, who lived in the reign of King Stephen, 1147, had issue, Sir Robert Mildeme, Kni. proved by a certain deed of grant of Simon earl of Northampton, dated in the year 1235, 19 Hen. III. which Sir Robert had issue,

Herbert, who died without issue, and Roger Mildeme, who, as appears by a certain deed of his brother Herbert, dated 1283, had issue,

Henry, which deed is fealed with the impression of a Lion rampant, borne as the Crest of the family; Henry lest issue,

Ralph Mildeme, as appears by another antient deed, sealed with the impression of three Lions rampant, being the Arms of the samily. Ralph had issue,

· Henry,

208 MILDMAY, of Moulsham-Hall.

Henry, proved by a certain deed of his father, and another of his fon, which Henry was feated at Stonehouse, in Gloucestershire, as appears by his own deed, dated the 23d of Edw. III. 1350, and sealed with three Lions rampant, who had iffue,

Another Henry, proved by a grant of Thomas Holland, earl of Kent, brother to King Richard II. dated the 17th year of the faid King, 1303, which Henry had issue,

Robert Mildemey, as mentioned in a grant of Edmund, earl of Stafford, dated the third year of Hen. IV. 1402, who had iffue.

Another Robert, as appears by a grant of Humphry, earl of Stafford, dated the 17th Hen. VI. 1439. He married Matilda, daughter and heir of ———— Rous, and had iffue,

Thomas, who married Margaret, daughter and heir of John Cornish, Esq; of Great Waltham, in Essex, and had issue, Walter, who was seated at Writtle, and married —, daughter of Sir Richard Everard, of Waltham; and being accused of heresy at the beginning of the reign of Henry VIII.

toricited all his estates; leaving issue,

Sir Thomas Mildmay, of Chelmsford, who was reftored, by pardon, to the estates and inheritance of his father, and obtained, by a grant of the said King Henry VIII. dated the 27th year of his reign, certain lands, part of the manor of Chelmsford, then lately belonging to, and surrendered by, the priory of Essay Spittle, in London. Which Sir Thomas married Agnes, daughter of —— Reed, Esq; and left issue sour sons; namely, Thomas, seated at Moulsham-Hall; William, at Springsseld-Barnes: John, at Tarling; and Sir Walter, at Danbury-Place, in Essay, and Apethorpe, in Northamptonshire. He left also several daughters, one of which, named Johanna, was married to Christopher Peyton, Esq; and the other, named Thomasina, was married to Anthony Boucher, Esq; the rest of his daughters died unmarried.

His four sons, named above, became the heads of as many considerable families, who spread themselves into numerous other branches, insomuch that about the beginning of the reign of King James I. there were ten of that name possessed of large and considerable estates in or near adjoining to the county of Essex, viz.

1. Sir Thomas Mildmay, of Moulsham-Hall. 2. Sir Thomas Mildmay, of Barnes, in Springsield. 3. Sir Henry Mildmay, of Graces, in Little Baddow. 4. Sir Humphry Mildmay, of Danbury-Place. 5. Sir Henry Mildmay, of Wansted. 6. Sir Henry Mildmay, of Woodham-Water. 7. Sir Walter Mildmay, of Pishobury. 8. Carew-Hervy Mildmay, of Marks, Eíq.

Eq. 9. Robert Mildmay, of Tarling-Place. 10. Walter Mildmay, of Potlands, in Great-Baddow.

We shall now give an account of the particular descendants of each of the four sons of Sir Thomas Mildmay, of Chelmsford, which form the principal branches of the family.

1. Thomas Mildmay, the eldest son of the above Sir Thomas, was one of the auditors of the court of augmentations, in the reign of Hen. VIII. and purchased, for a valuable considefation, the estate and manor of Moulsham, in the parish of Chelmsford, then late belonging to the monastery of St. Peter's, Westminster, which, on their surrender, he obtained by deed of grant of the faid King, dated the 23d day of July, in the 30th year of his reign, 1539, and built a large and stately mansion-house thereon, called Moulsham-Hall. He also purchased the estate and manor of Bishop's-Hall, in the said parish of Chelmsford, then late belonging to the bishops of London, which, upon the surrender of Bonner, the last popish bishop, was granted to him, by deed, from Edward VI. dated the 8th day of May, in the second year of his reign, 1549; both which grants are extant, and the estates and manors are still remaining in the family. He married Avicia, daughter of William Gunfon, of London, Esq; and by her had a numerous offspring of eight fons and seven daughters, as represented on a fine Gothic monument in Chelmsford church. He died in October. 1567, and, by his last will, dated 1565, he founded cortain almshouses in the hamlet of Moulsham, for the reception of six aged people, three men and three women, who should be appointed upon every vacancy, by the heir of the mansion-house of Moulsham Hall, leaving the sum of twenty marks to be paid annually out of the tythes of his estate at Tarling, part to purchase an ox to be distributed to the poor of that hamlet on Christmas-eve, and part to be paid in money, equally, amongst the faid poor fix alms-people.

Sir Thomas Mildmay, his eldest son, succeeded to his estates in Essex. Sir Walter, one of his other sons, was seated at Pishobury, in Hertsordshire, where a noble monument is erected to his memory. He married Mary, sister to Sir William Waldegrave, of Sussolk, which Sir William also married Elizabeth, sister to the said Sir Walter, and one of the daughters of the late Thomas Mildmay. Sir Henry and Edward, two of his other sons, were seated at Waltham, in Essex, who, with the rest of his numerous younger children, died unmarried.

Sir Thomas, the eldest son above-mentioned, married lady Frances, daughter and heir to Henry, earl of Sussex, and batron Fitz-Walter, which being a barony in see; upon the death . Vol., III.

of the said earl, without issue male, was descendable to the few males; and was claimed, as we shall presently see, by the descendants of the lady Frances. Sir Thomas, her husband died in 1608, and lest issue by her,

Sir Thomas and Sir Henry; which Sir Thomas, Knt. was created afterwards a baronet by King James the First, in 1612. He married, first, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Puckering, keeper of the great seal; and, secondly, Anne, daughter of John Savill, Esq; but dying without issue, in 1620, was succeeded by his brother.

Sir Henry Mildmay, then feated at Woodham-ferries. in Effex, who married Elizabeth, daughter of John Darcey, of Toleshunt-Darcey, Esq; in the same county, and was the first who claimed the barony of Fitzwalter, in right of his mother; but, the troublesome times of King Charles I. intervening, it could not then be decided. He died in 1654, and left three fons, Robert, Henry, and Charles, and one daughter, named Bridget, married to Anthony Pennyn, Esq. Henry, the second son, died unmarried; Charles married Martha, daughter and heir of Sir Cranmer Harris, and had one daughter, named Martha, who was married to Sir Charles Tyrell, of Thornton, Bart. Robert, the eldest son, married Mary, daughter, and one of the coheirs of Sir Thomas Edmonds, treasurer of the houlhold, and many years ambassador in France, and left issue, Henry, Benjamin, and Mary. Henry renewed the claim to the barony, but, dying without issue, was succeeded by his brother,

Benjamin, to whom the claim was allowed, and he was accordingly summoned to take his seat in the house of peers, by the name of Benjamin Mildmay, baron Fitzwalter, in 1669. Mary, his fifter, abovementioned, was married to Henry Mildmay, of Graces, Esq; one of the descendants from the second line of the family, by whom the had iffue five daughters, equally entitled to the claim of the barony, when in abeyance. above Benjamin, the first lord Fitzwalter, married Catharine, daughter of John, lord Fairfax, of the kingdom of Ireland, fon to lord Fairfax, general of the parliament forces in the times of the civil wars, and by her had iffue, Charles and Benjamin. Charles, the eldest son, succeeded to his father in the barony, and married Elizabeth, daughter of Charles Bertie, younger fon to Montagu, earl of Lindsey, and leaving no surviving iffue, his brother Benjamin succeeded to the barony, in 1728, who married Frederica, counters of Holderness, widow of Robert Darcy, earl of Holderness, and one of the daughters and coheirs of Mienhardt Schonberg, duke of Schonberg, and marshal of France; which last lord Fitzwalter was, by letters patent tent, dated May 44. in the third year of the reign of George II.

1730, created viscount Harwich, and earl Fitzwalter.
The old mansion-house, of Moulsham-Hall, built, as beforementioned, by Thomas Mildmay, the first of this branch, in 1540, being at the time his lordship succeeded to the estate and title, in a ruinous condition, he caused it to be pulled down, and on the same spot built and erected another large and spacious mansion, designed by Signior Leoni, which, for the elegance and tafte of the architecture, and the regularity and proportion of its apartments, is esteemed to be in equal rank with the most admired houses in the kingdom. His lordship dying in February, 1756, without surviving issue, the above new created titles became extinct; but the barony of Fitzwalter being in fee and descendible to semales, lies at present in abevance. equally to be claimed by the descendants of Mary, sister to Benjamin the first lord Fitzwalter, who, by Henry Mildmay, of Graces, as beforementioned, had five daughters, whose issue have a claim to the barony, and being derived from the first branch, it may not be improper to mention, in this place, to whom they were severally married; namely, Mary, married; to Charles Goodwin, of Rovant, in Suffex; Lucy, to Thomas Gardiner, of Tolebury, in Essex; Elizabeth; to Edmund' Waterson, of London; Francis, to Christopher Fowler, of London, and Catharine, to colonel Thomas Townshend.

The male line of the first branch being extinct by the death of the late earl, without iffue, his lordship devised all his real estates to William, now Sir William Mildmay, and his heirs, as being of his next in kindred, and of the same name, who is now seated at Moulsham-Hall, and being descended from William Mildmay, of Springfield, the second fon of Sir Thomas, of Chelmsford, we shall now proceed to give an account of this second branch.

2. William Mildmay, second son of Sir Thomas Mildmay. of Chelmsford, from whom the present Sir William is lineally descended, purchased, in the year 1549, on a valuable consideration, the manor of Springfield-Barnes, near Chelmsford, then lately belonging to the chauntry of Great Baddow, dependant on the abbey of Coggeshall, in the same county, which, on their surrender, was fold to the said William by deed of grant, from King Edward VI. dated the 17th day of January, in the second year of his reign; which deed is still extant, and the fame manor and estate possessed at this time by the present. Sir The abovesaid William Mildmay, of William Mildmay. Springfield, married Elizabeth, daughter of John Paschall, of Great Baddow, Esq; and dying in 1571, left issue,

212 MILDMAY, of Moulsham-Hall.

Sir Thomas Mildmay, of Barnes, who married Alicia, daughter of Adam Winthorp, Efq; of Grotton, in Suffolk, and died in 1613, leaving issue,

William Barnes, of Springfield, Sir Henry, of Graces, and Walter, of Potlands, in Great Baddow.

Sir Henry, his second son, distinguished himself as a brave and valiant efficer in the army, sent over to Ireland by Queen Elizabeth, under the command of the earl of Essex, to quell the Irish rebellion; where, for his galiant exploits, he was knighted in the field of battle with his own sword, as appears by a large and noble monument erected to his memory, in Little Baddow church, on which his sword is hung up, by way of trophy, with the sollowing inscription:

Eques Auratus well may be be say'd,
Whose covne. not warlike courage, such hath made.
But unto Mildmay, Miles we afford,
As knighted in the field by his flesht sword;
That sword which time shall never sheathe in rust,
But hargs it as a trophee o'er his dust.

He married, first, Alicia, daughter and heir of Sir William Harris, of Graces, of Little Baddow, in Essex, where he built a large and handsome seat, and by her had three daughters, who died unmarried. He married, secondly, to Amy, daughter of Brampton Gordon, of Susfielk, Esq; by whom he left issue a daughter named Elizabeth, who was married to Robert Mildmay, of Tarling-Place; and a son named Henry Mildmay, who shad married Anne, daughter of Barker, of Shropshire, Esq; and by her had two daughters; Amy, married to Vincent Assort, or Lincoleshire, Esq; and Anne, married to Sir Draner Mossenghere, in the said county. His second wise was Miry, sister of Benjaman, first lord Fitzwalter, and had if such her five daughters, beforementioned.

We now return to William Mildmay, eldest son of Sir Thomas, of Barnes, in Springheld, who married Margaret, daughter of Sir Groupe Hervy, combable of the Tower, and seated at Marks, near Rumford, in Elley, and who was of the younger branch of the time year lekworth, and by her left two sons; 1. writter Sir Thomas Mildmay, it Barnes; and, 2. Carew Hersey Mildmay, of Marks, adopted heir to Sir Gawen Hervice, only the of Sir George Hervey; but of this family at Marks we shall give an account, after we have mentioned who were the niles of Sir John Emly, of Whether, in Wiltshire, and married a

William Mildmay, of Barnes, remarkable for his bravery and loyalty to King Charles the First; he married Sybilla, daughter to Sir Thomas Palmer, of Wingham, in Kent, Bart. and had issue.

Another William, who was chief of the East India Company's factory, at Surat, and there married Sarah, daughter to Judge Wilcox, who was appointed judge in the civil judicature then established in those parts; and had issue, Mary, and William, the present Sir William Mildmay, Bart. heir to the late earl Fitzwalter, and now seated at Moulsham-Hall, in Essex. Mary was married to colonel Thomas Cokayne, and had issue, Thomas-Mildmay Cokayne, who has issue, Thomas, an infant. Sir William married Anne, daughter of Humphrey Mildmay, of Shawford, Esq; one of the descendants of Carew-Hervy Mildmay, of Marks, the adoped heir of Sir Gawen Hervey, as abovementioned, and of whose issue we are now to give an account.

Which Carew-Hervey Mildmay, in 1634, married Dorothy, daughter of Sir Gilbert Gerrard, of Harrow-on-the-Hill, in the county of Middlesex, and had issue, Francis-Hervy Mildmay, who married Mathew, daughter of Mathew Honeywood, of Charin, in Kent, and had issue, Carew, George, John, Francis, and Walter; and several daughters. The three last sons died unmarried. George married Elizabeth, daughter of Bonham, Esq; and had issue, Elizabeth, married to

Henry Eaton, of Raynham, in Essex, Esq;

Carew, the eldest son, married Anne, daughter of Richard Barret, alias Leonard, of Belhouse, in Essex, Esq; and had issue two sons, Carew, and Humphrey; and one daughter named Anne, who was married to Thomas Saville, Esq. Carew-Hervey Mildmay, living in 1768, married, first, Dorothy, daughter and heir of John Eathman, of Sherburne, in Dorsetshire, Esq; and by her had issue, Anne, who is as yet unmarried. He married, secondly, Edith, daughter and coheir to Sir Edmund Phillips, of Montague, in Somersetshire, by whom he has no issue. Humphrey, the second son, married Letitia, daughter and heir of Holiday Mildmay, of Sawford, in Hampthire, descendant from the Sir Walter Mildmay, fourth son of Sir Thomas, of Chelmsford, of which branch we shall give an account in our last section; which Humphry, by his wife, Letitia, had issue, Henry, Carew, Anne, and Catharine; Henry and Catharine died unmarried. Carew married Jane, daughter of William Pescod, of Winchester, Esq; and leaving three daughters, Jane, Anne, and Letitia, died in June, 1768, much regretted, on account of his great merit and many amiable P 3. qualities.

qualities. Anne, the only surviving issue, is married to Sir William Mildmay, Bart. as beforementioned. We shall now proceed to the third branch of the family.

4. In this section we are to give a more large account of the last, though not least considerable, branch of this family, descending from Sir Walter Mildmay, sourth son of Sir Thomas, of Chelmsford, which Sir Walter was Chancellor of the Exchequer, and of the Privy Council to Queen Elizabeth, and having acquired an ample fortune, purchased several confiderable estates, particularly at Danbury, in Essex, and Apethore, in Northamptonshire. He founded Emanuel college, in Cambridge, in 1584, the first Protestant foundation of that kind, and bought several livings, of great value, for the endowment of the fellows. He married Mary, the fifter of Sir Francis Walfingham, Knt. secretary of State to Queen Elizabeth, and by her had two fons, Sir Anthony and Sir Humphrey; and three daughters, Winifred, married to William lord Fitz-Williams; Martha, to Sir William Bourchards, in Wiltshire, Knt. and Christiana, first to Charles Barret, of Avely, in Essex, Esq; and, secondly, to Sir John Leveson, of Kent. Sir Anthony married Grace, daughter of William Sheringham, Esq; and by her had iffue, one daughter and heir, on whom was fettled the estate of Apethorpe, in Northamptonshire, and was married to Francis Fane, earl of Westmoreland, whose descendants now enjoy the inheritance of that estate. Sir Humphry, the second son, to whom Sir Walter devised his estate at Danbury, and where he had built a noble mansion house, married Mary, daughter of Henry Capel, Esq; of Hadham, in Hertfordshire, and, dying in 1614, left issue, three sons, Sir Humphrey, Anthony, and Sir Henry; and one daughter, Mary, married to - Duchat, of Cambridgeshire, Esq; which Sir Humphrey, the eldest son, married Jane, daughter of Sir John Crosts, of Saxum, in Suffolk, and had iffue four fons, Edward, Humphry, John, and Anthony, and one daughter, named Cicilia, married, as beforementioned, to Robert Mildmay, of Tarling. Edward, the eldest son, was killed at the battle of Newbury, in 1644, fighting in the King's army; Humphry, the second son, succeeded his father in his estate, at Hazlegrove, in Somerset-shire, and which he afterwards left by will, dying unmarried, to Carew-Hervey Mildmay, of Marks; and John Mildmay succeeded to the estate of Danbury-Place, and married Mary, daughter of Dr. Bancrost, and dying without issue, he left that estate to her and her heirs, and which, at present, (in 1768) is possessed by Thomas Eytche, Esq; her grandson and heir.

We now return to the two younger sons of Sir Humphrey, second son of Sir Walter, namely, Anthony, and Sir Henry; Anthony was a servant, and greatly attached, to King Charles the First, attended him at his imprisonment, in the Isle of Wight, and at the place of execution; and to whom, with some others of his servants, his body, after he was beheaded, was delivered, to be buried at Windsor.

Sir Henry Mildmay, of Wansted, the third son, was, in the early part of his life, a favourite to King Charles the First, and obtained a patent to him and his heirs, of being hereditary master of the jewel office; but afterwards siding with the parliament, of which he was a member, and being appointed one of the judges at the tryal of his royal master, though he sat but one day, his estate at Wansted, now lord Tilney's, and his place of the master of the jewel office, were forseited at the Restoration, and, being banished, remained abroad at the time of his death; but having married Anne, daughter and heir of alderman Holyday, of the city of London, his estates at Shawford, in Hampshire, and at Newington, near London, being settled in jointure on his wise, descended to his son,

Henry Mildmay, of Shawford, who married Alice, daughter to Sir Mundiford Bramston, and by her had issue, Holyday, who, by Anne, his wife, daughter and coheir of Sir John Bawden, Knt. left only one daughter and heir named Letitia, who was married to Humphry Mildmay, Esq. second son to Carew Hervey Mildmay, of Marks, and by him left, as recited in the account of that branch, two sons and two daughters, namely, Henry, Carew, Anne, and Catharine; Henry and Carew being both deceased, the male line is extinct, and dame Anne, wife of Sir William Mildmay, Bart. and the three daughters of the abovementioned Carew, lately deceased, are the only semale survivors of the name of Mildmay, of this last branch.

From hence we perceive, that by the feveral intermarriages between the feçond and fourth branch, these two families are now become as it were united together, and that all the feveral branches which were observed in the beginning of this pedigree to be so numerous, and spread themselves in several parts of the county of Essex, are now reduced to two only of the male line of that name, viz. Sir William Mildmay, of Moulsham-Hall, Bart. and Carew-Hervey Mildmay, of Marks, Esq; neither of whom have any male issue.

After this recital of the pedigree of the family, it is proper to relate some particulars of Sir William Mildmay himself, on whom the title of baronet was conferred, who, after an univerfity education at Emmanuel college, in Cambridge, founded by Sir Walter Mildmay, and where he received the degree of Mafler of Arts, was entered at the Middle Temple, of which, at present, he is a bencher; and applying his studies chiefly to the laws of trade, and going feveral times abroad, and pursuing the fame enquiries concerning the laws and policy of trade in France and Holland, he composed a treatise, some time ago published, entitled, The laws and policy of England, relating to Trade, examined by the maxims and principles of trade in general, and by the laws and policy of other trading nations. Being likewife consulted in the early times of his being at the bar, by several eminent citizens, concerning their disputes on the election of ward and city officers, he also writ and published a treatise in the year 1743, to point out the Method and rule of proceeding in all elections, polls, and ferutinies, at common balls and waramotes, within the city of London; which treatife has ever fince been appealed to as the flandard and guide for the determination of all disputes about the election of city officers.

The war between England and France, which had been carried on from 1744, being determined by the preliminaries of peace figned at Aix-la-Chapelle, 1748, he foon after went again into France, and returned about the latter end of the year 1740. when fresh disputes had arisen between the two crowns, relating to the limits of their territories in America, and it having been stipulated in the negotiations upon the conclusion of the peace, that commissaries should be appointed on each side for adjusting all complaints which might arise with regard to those points, his Majesty King George the Second was pleated to nominate Mr. Milamay, who was known to be well acquainted with the commercial affairs of France, jointly with William Shirler, Liq; then late governor of New-England, his commissaries, to fettle, with the two that should be appointed on the part of France, all disputes between the two crowns, concerning the antient limits of Nova Scotia or Acaoie; the right to the islands of St. Lucia, Tobago, St. Vincent, and Dominica; as also the acequals of the prizes taken at fea, after figning the preliminaries of the peace at Aix-la-Chapelle. He was likewise charged with another commission, singly, for adjusting the demands of the two crowns, on account of the ransom, subsistence, and hospital charges of the prisoners taken in the preceding war.

Having received his instructions on these points, he went to Paris the beginning of May, 1750, and there continued his Majesty's commissary, until near the time of the new declaration of a war, in 1756, during which space of about five years, he was affiduous and punctual in the regular discharge of the feveral commissions entrusted to him, and liquidated the accounts with each of the French commissaries, with whom he severally negotiated in fuch a manner as to receive the thanks and approbation of his Majesty's ministers. The memorials which were delivered on the refult of the several conferences concerning the limits of Nova Scotia, and the rights of St. Lucia. clearly vindicate his Majesty's lawful claim and pretensions. These having been printed by our court, with their proofs and vouchers, in justification of his Majesty's rights, a small French treatife was printed and published in France, soon after, entitled, A Summary Discussion of the limits of antient Acadie, said to be drawn up by one of the French commissaries, and distributed in all the courts of Europe, to prejudice them in favour of the pretention of the crown of France; to which treatife Mr. Mildmay thought it his duty, as being one of the English commisfaries, immediately to write an answer, and accordingly, in a Aport time, published a concise, and what is justly entitled, A fair Representation of his Majesty's Right to Nova Scotia and Acadie, briefly stated from the Memorials of the English and French commissions. The sale of a very large impression of this pamphlet, shewed how well it was received by the public.

At length, his Majesty was constrained to do himself justice by a more disagreeable method of decision of these disputes, in declaring war in April, 1756; on the commencement of which, Mr. Mildmay, being settled in Essex, in possession of the estates devised to him by the late earl Fitzwalter, accepted of a captain's commission in the militia of that county, raised upon the new establishment formed by act of parliament, at that time, throughout the kingdom, in which he served from the time they were embodied, and called out of the county, in 1759, until the approach of the peace, which was concluded in Feb. 1763, being on duty for most part of that time in guarding the French prisoners at Winchester.

It may be remembered, that so soon as this peace was concluded with our enemies abroad, robberies and outrages began to disturb the domestic peace of his Majesty's subjects at home, especially

The want especially in and about the metropolis of London. of a reformation of these abuses had been often complained of heretofore, as a disgrace to our magistracy, and a scandal to our police; and his late Majesty, King George the Second, had, more than once, in his speeches to parliament, recommended it to the attention of every body, to use their endeavours to put a stop to such growing evils. This being intimated to Mr. Mildmay, whilst he was his Majesty's commissary at Paris, he was industriously curious, during the intervals of time from his public employments, to fearch out and compile from the best informations he could procure on the spot, the several regulations and methods of police enforced in that country for the prefervation of peace, and preventing of robberies, both on the highways, and in the streets of their metropolis, which he revised and published in the beginning of the spring, 1763, under the title of A Treatise on the Police of France; and, some time after, be favoured the public with several other observations he had made during his residence abroad; namely, An Account of the Southern Maritime Provinces of France; with a Supplement. containing Observations on the three principal cities of Provence, viz. Aix, Marseilles, and Toulon. To which are added, some Remarks on the Marine of France. These were the substance of several representations which he drew up for the perusal of his Majesty's ministers, to whom they were offered soon after the declaration of the war in 1756, and were published soon after the peace, with hopes, as it is expressed in the advertisement prefixed thereto, that the observations they contained might be instrumental to the service of his country on some future occasion.

In consideration of these public services, his present Majesty was pleased to confer on the said William Mildmay, and the heirs male of his body, the title and honour of a baronet of this kingdom, by letters patent bearing date the 12th of Feb. 1765. In the same year he served sherist for the county of Essex; and it is well known in that county with what dignity and splendor he executed that office, and with what readiness he has exerted himself on all occasions to promote every undertaking for the public good. It is such publick service to our country in any station, executed with abilities, vigilance, and sidelity, that sets up and distinguishes every name, and transmits it with honour down to posterity.

290. MAWBEY, of Botleys, Surrey.

Created BARONET, July 30, 1765.

THE name of this family has been variously written, as Mauthey, Mawby, Mawbie, and Mawbey; but in conformity with the pronunciation, it has generally, in later times, been written Mawby and Mawbey.

They have been fettled for a confiderable time past in the counties of Leicester and Northampton, into the latter of which they came from the county of Norfolk, where, it is certain, the Mautbeys were a family of note several centuries ago. They probably were so called, after the Norman manner, from Mautbey, a village in East-Flegg hundred, in that county, is in which neighbourhood the Danes first settled, and which still carries with it many traces of those invaders; there being not less than thirteen villages within that small compass of ground, ending in ly, tye, or bey, a Danish word signifying a village, or dwelling-place; from whence the Bilagines of the Danish writers, and our By-laws in England, came to fignify such laws as are peculiar to each town or village." Roger

Roger Mautbey, Esq; a descendant from the Mautbeys of Norfolk, resided at Kettering, in the county of Northampton, and, by Mary Drayton, his wise, was father of Richard Mautbey, Esq; of the same place; which Richard married Margaret, the daughter of —— Spencer, and by her had three sons, William, Richard, and Robert; and one daughter, Elizabeth, who died unmarried.

Richard Mauthey, the second son, married Joanna Bird, and by her had two sons, William (sather of John and William,) and John; and one daughter, Dorothy.

Robert Mauthey, or Mawbie, third son (who was baptized at South-Kilworth, in the county of Leicester, as appears by the register of that parish, May 12, 1561) married, July 5, 1582, Alicia Coleman, and by her had one son, George, married, Nov. 10, 1622, to his cousin Dorothy, abovementioned.

William, the eldest son of Richard Mautbey, Esq; by Margaret Spencer, his wife, married at South-Kilworth, Jan. 30, 1580, Agnes Carey, of that parish, by whom he had three fons, and two daughters, viz. Anna, John, Richard, Elizabeth, and Thomas. Their father was buried at South-Kilworth, May 19, 1621.

Both the daughters died unmarried.

John, the eldest son (baptized at South-Kilworth, Jan. 10, 1583) married Agnes, daughter of William Chamberlayne, Esq; of Leicester, and by her had two sons, Roger, who died unmarried, and was buried at Leicester, and Erasmus.

This Erasmus Mawbie, or Mawbey, Esq; apprehending the civil and religious liberties of this country to be in danger from the arbitrary conduct of King Charles the First and his ministers, took a zealous and active part on the side of the parliament; for whose service having, in 1643, raised a considerable number of recruits in his neighbourhood, at his own expence, he conducted them to his countryman, Sir Arthur Haselrigge, Bart. with whom he was present as a volunteer at the battle fought soon after at Roundway-Down, near The Devizes, in Wiltshire; where, having distinguished himself by his bravery, he was unfortunately slain, together with many other of his friends in Sir Arthur's regiment, which had rendered itself famous for its valour, but which, in this battle, suffered very considerably.

By Elizabeth, daughter of Walter Burton, gent. of Hinkley, in the county of Leicester, he had several children, none of whom lived to be married. Their father's unfortunate death, his widow's second marriage, and the calamities brought on them by the civil war, proved extremely prejudicial to the interests of the family.

Thomas, the third son of William Mawbie, by Agnes Carey, his wife, was baptized at South-Kilworth, March 22; 1594, and married Eleanor Cartwright, and by her was father of William Mawbey (born in 1655) from whom the Mawbeys still living at South-Kilworth are descended.

Richard, second son of William Mawbey, by Agnes Carey, his wife, born in 1588, married Elizabeth, daughter of ——Shuckburgh, of Naseby, in the county of Northampton, Esq; and by her had one son, Erasmus, and two daughters, Elizabeth and Margaret, the first of which died unmarried, and the latter without leaving issue.

Erasmus Mawbey was baptized at South-Kilworth, March 7, 1616, and in 1694 was buried at Shenton, in the county of Leicester. By his first wife, Mary, daughter of Robert and Mary Wright, he had seven sons, Robert, Richard, Erasmus, Thomas, John, Francis, and William. By his second wife, Eleanor Slee, of Ticken-Hall, in the county of Derby, he had sive sons and two daughters, viz. John, James, Mary, Isac;

Elizabeth, Joseph, and Stephen.

Of the children by his last wife, John, Mary, and Elizabeth, died young, and unmarried. Joseph was killed in the marine service at the siege of Gibraltar, under Sir George Rooke; James died at Norton, in the county of Leicester, in 1729, leaving behind him a son, by his wife, Elizabeth Dawkins, of Snareston, named James (who also died at Norton, in 1754,) father of several children now living. Isaac married Elizabeth Merrick, of Newton Nethercote, and by her had Abraham and Isaac, twins, born in 1694, who died insants; Mary, married to Isaac Bodil, of Nelson; Elizabeth, married to Mr. Richal Nobbes, of Tamworth, and Isaac.

Stephen was twice married, had iffue by both venters, who all died young, and unmarried. He was buried at Carlton.

near Bosworth, Jan. 3, 1765.

Robert, eldest son of Erasmus Mawbey, by Mary Wright, his first wife, was born at Shenton, in 1643, and married Mary Pylewell, by whom he had children, who all died young and unmarried.

Richard, the second son, born at Shenton, in 1645, married, first, Catharine, by whom he had no issue; 2. Mrs. Mary Doge, of Measham, in the county of Derby, by whom he had three sons; Richard, the eldest born, in 1693, died of the small pox, and was buried at Shenton, on May 9, 1719; John, the third son, born in 1703, died in 1761, unmarried; Erasmus, the second son, born in 1695, at Shenton, married, first, Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. Ford, of Atherston, in the county of Warwick, by whom he had one son, Richard, born in Jan.

1719, (who died of the small pox unmarried,) and one daughter, Elizabeth, married to Mr. Thomas Messenger, of Bosworth, in the county of Leicester, where she died, on Dec. 16, 1768, leaving several children behind her. Erasmus Manbey, the father, married, fecondly, on April 7, 1724, Frances, daughter of Mr. Cooper, of Orton on the Hill, in the county of Leicester, and by her (who was buried at Shenton, May 21, 1754) he had three sons, John, William, and Erasmus. He married to his third wife, on Aug. 20, 1755, Sarah Bolton, by whom he had no children. He died at Shenton, in September, 1768. Of his fons, by Frances, his fecond wife, John and William died young, and unmarried; Erasmus Mawbey, the third and youngest son, was baptized at Shenton, Dec. 27, 1731, and married, I. Mary, daughter of Mr. Ellis, of Sutton-Cheyney, in the county of Leicester, and by her, who died in October, 1766, he had four fons and two daughters, all living; Elizabeth, baptized at Shenton, June 25, 1752; Erasmus, baptized at Shenton, May 7, 1754; John, baptized at Sutton-Cheyney, Nov. 7, 1756; Thomas, baptized at Sutton-Cheyney, Aug. 13, 1759; William, baptized at Sutton-Cheyney, Dec. 25, 1761; Mary, baptized at Sutton Cheney, Feb. 24, 1764. He married, secondly, January 3, 1768, Mrs. Sarah Sarson, of Barton, and died Dec. o. 1760, leaving his wife with child of a daughter, born at Bagworth, in the county of Leicester, Feb. 3, 1770, which was ehristened Sarah.

Erasmus, third son of Erasmus Mawbey, by Mary Wright, his first wise, was baptized at Shenton, in 1647; he married, on April 11, 1681, Mary Fox, of Shenton, by whom he had one daughter, Sarah, baptized at Shenton, Feb. 12, 1681-2, who married Richard Merrick, of Newton-Nethercote, in the county of Leicester. He married to his second wise, (the first dying in 1699) October 3, 1702, Sarah, the daughter of ——Parsons, by whom he had no issue. He was buried at Shenston, Feb. 13, 1713.

Thomas, fourth son, was born at Shenton, in 1651, he married Jane Croxall, (who was buried at Shenton, May 8, 1705) by whom he had one son, and one daughter, twins, Erasmus and Eleanor, baptized at Norton, in Leicestershire, Jan. 4, 1684. Erasmus, the son, married, first, in 1712, Anne Poole, of Gopsall, in the county of Leicester (who died in 1738) by whom he had one daughter, Elizabeth, (born at Norton, in 1713, and died there of the small pox, in Nov. 1737, unmarried;) and one son, Thomas, baptized at Norton, July 6, 1718. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Mr.

MAWBEY, of Botleys.

William Barford, of Whitechapel, in Middlesex, who is now living at Deptsord, in the county of Kent. Erasmus, the father of this Thomas, married, to his second wife, Susanna, by whom he had one daughter, Jane, baptized at Norton, March 25, 1740. He was buried at Norton, April 25, 1742.

John, fifth son, died an infant; and Francis, sixth son, died unmarried.

William, the seventh son of Erasmus Mawbey, by Mary Wright, his first wise, was born Jan. 31, 1659, at Shenton; he settled at Raunston, in the counties of Leicester and Derby, and was buried there, Dec. 12, 1733. By his wife Anne, daughter of Mr. John Walker, of Swannington, in the county of Leicester, he had an only son, John.

Mr. John Mawbey, born at Raunston aforesaid; married, to his second wise, Mrs. Jane Shepheard, of Raunston, widow, by whom he had no iffue. But, by his first, Martha Pratti eldest daughter of Mr. Thomas Pratt, of Raunston, aforesaid, (descended from John Pratt, Esq; colonel in the army raised by the parliament against King Charles the First, and in 1652. one of the representatives for the county of Leicester,) he had four fons and four daughters. Their mother died in 1737, and their father, Sept. 4, 1754, at Raunston; in the chancel of which church is erected a handsome marble monument to their memory; 1. Francis Mawbey, born March 29, 1720, died unmarried in August, 1739. 2. Martha, born July 24, 1722, died an infant; as did also the third son, John. 4. 391. KNOWLES, of Lovel-Hill, near Windfor.

Created BARONET, Oct. 31, 1765.

HIS family is originally descended from Sir Thomas Knowles, who attended King Richard in his wars to the Holy Land, where that prince, in confideration of the many fignal marks of Sir Thomas's valour, granted him those Arms the profest baronet now bears, which are nearly the fame as the Jurusalem Arms, differing only in some very trifling particelars. It is, indeed, a matter much to be lamented, that a family, descended from such an illustrious ancestor, of so remote a period, should have neglected to keep a regular pedigree; but this is only one instance of the many to be met with. It must however be allowed, that mankind derive more merit from their own virtueus actions, than any they can borrow from a long list of ancestors. On this principle, we beg leave to semind our readers of a long fifty years spent, by the present & Charles, in the service of his country. If public approbation during the course of so long a service, did not crown him with laurels, it will be in vain for the writer of this work to attempt it.

Sir Charles Knowles, the present baronet, is the first of this branch of the family, who obtained that bonour, to which he was advanced, by letters patent, bearing date Oct. 31, 1765, being the fifth year of his present Majesty's reign. He was appointed governor of Cape Breton, and commander of his Majesty's ships on that station, in March 1746; he was appointed rear-admiral of the White, in 1747, was made governor of Jamaica, in Feb. 1752, which he refigned in Jan. 1758; he was promoted to the rank of vice-admiral of the Blue, Feb. 9, 1755, made admiral thereof, Feb 7, 1758, and promoted to be rear-admiral of the navies and seas of Great Britain, Nov. 5, 1765.

Sir Charles married, first, Mary, daughter of John-Gay Alleyne, of Barbadoes, Esq; (who was created a baronet of Great Britain, April 6, 1769,) by whom he had one son, Edward, who was captain of a man of war, and perished in a storm at sea. Sir Charles married, secondly, Maria-Magdalena-Theresa Bouguet, born in Germany, by whom he has one son, Charles-Henry, and a daughter, Charlotte.

ARMS. Azure, Crusuly of Crosslets, a Cross, Moline, voided, Or.

CREST: On a Wreath, an Elephant, statant, Argent.

Motto: Semper paratus.

SEAT: Lovel-Hill, near Windsor.

392. CORNISH, of Snaresbrook, Bedfordshire, descended from Wales.

Created BARONET, Jan. 29, 1766.

THE present Sir Samuel Cornish is the first of this samily advanced to the dignity of a baronet. His patent is dated Jan. 29, 1766, 6 George III. Being intended for the sea service, he was entered on board one of his Majesty's ships, and behaving in the inferior stations with much reputation, he was at length made a captain, in which capacity he served in the Mediterranean, under admiral Matthews, in 1744. He afterwards had the command in several different engagements, in which he ever behaved with valour and discretion.

In the year 1759, he was appointed rear-admiral of the White squadron of his Majesty's navy, and sent with a sleet to the East Indies, where, on his arrival, he took the chief command of his Majesty's ships on that station; and his signal services in the reduction of Pondicherry, and other memorable actions, are too recent to be soon forgotten. He is now vice admiral of the Blue, and member of parliament for New Shoreham, in Sussex, which place he likewise represented in the last parliament.

SEAT: At Snaresbrooke, Bedfordshire.

No Arms appear in the Heralds office for this family.

393. Moore, Rear Admiral of the Red.

Created Baronet, March 4, 1766.

THE pedigree of this family being fully treated of in the Irish peerage, under the title of Earl Drogheda, it will be sufficient here to observe, that the hon. and rev. Dr. Henry Q 2 Moore,

Moore, (third son of the right hon. Henry, the third earl of Drogheda, who married Mary, second daughter of Sir John Cole, of Newland, near Dublin, baronet of Ireland, sister to Arthur Cole, lord Ranelagh,) married Catharine, daughter of Sir Thomas Knatchbull, of Mersham-Hatch, in Kent, Bart. widow of Sir George Rooke, vice-admiral of England, and had iffue three sons and one daughter. Of these,

Sir John, his youngest son, who was bred to the sea-service, is now rear-admiral of the Red squadron of his Majesty's sleet, and was created a baronet by letters patent, dated March 4, 1766, 6 George III. He married Penelope, daughter of William Matthew, captain-general and governor in chief of his Majesty's Leeward Caribbee Islands, by whom he has issue four daughters, Catharine, Penelope, Anne, and Selina-Maria.

ARMS: Azure, on a Chief, indented, Or, three Mullets, pierced Gules.

CREST: In a Ducal Coronet, a Moor's Head, proper, wreathed around the temples, Argent and Azure.

This family pedigree is entered very copiously in the Register. Anglesey, sol. 52, Heralds office, London.

394. PRINGLE, of London.

Created Baronet, June 5, 1766.

SIR John Pringle, Bart. (advanced to that dignity in the fixth year of his present Majesty's reign,) was the youngest son, who lived to maturity, of Sir John Pringle, of Stitchel, in the Shire of Roxborough, Bart. and now the third brother of Sir Robert Pringle, Bart.

Sir John married, in 1752, Charlotte, second daughter of Dr. Oliver, and eminent physician at Bath, which lady is now dead. He is physician in ordinary to the Queen, fellow of the royal college of physicians at London and Gottingen, and of the philosophical societies at Edinburgh and Harlem.

395. East, of Hall-Place, Berkshire.

Created BARONET, June 5, 1766.

HIS family has, for a long time, been of note in the city of London, as appears by wills and other evidences.

The great-grandfather of the present Sir William, was Gilbert East, of the parish of St. Botolph without Bishopsgate, gent. His fon and heir,

William East, Esq; was of the Middle-Temple, admitted March 14, 1675. He died, March 4, 1726, and was buried at Witham, in Essex, in which church, on the north side of the chancel, is a very elegant monument of white and grey marble, with a long Latin inscription to the memory of him, his wife and children. He married Elizabeth, the only daughter of Jeremy Gough, citizen of London, (which lady was buried, Nov. 22, 1748, at Witham, aforesaid) by whom he had issue two sons and four daughters: William, the eldest son, of whom hereafter; Gilbert, the second son, was of the Middle-Temple, and admitted, March 22, 1716. He was clerk of the affize for the northern circuit, and lord of the manor of Wenham, in the county of Suffolk. He died unmarried. The daughters were, Mary, Anne, and Sarah, who died infants; and Martha *, married to Sir Philip Parker, of Morley Long, Bart. (brother to Catharine, the mother of John Perceval, earl of Egmont, lord Lovell and Holland, &c.) This lady died March 30, 1758, aged fixty years, and was buried at Erwarton, in the county of Suffolk, leaving issue two daughters; Martha, married to John-Thynne Howe, lord Chedworth; and Elizabeth, the wife of James Plunket, Esq.

William East, Esq; son and heir of the first-mentioned William, was also of the Middle Temple, and admitted into that society, Feb. 23, 1713. He was of Hall-Place, in the parish of Hurley, in the county of Berks, and of Kennington, in the county of Surry. By Anne, his wise, the only daughter of Sir George Cooke, of Harefield, in the county of Middlesex, Knr. chief prothonotor of the court of Common Pleas, (which lady died April 1, 1762, and was buried at Witham, aforesaid) he had issue one son, William East, Esq; now a baronet, of whom presently; and two daughters: Anne, married to Henry Norris, of Hempsted, in Kent, Esq; son of Sir John Norris, Knt. ad-

396. Burrell, of West-Grinsted Park, Suffex,

Created BARONET, July 12, 1766,

THE name of this family is differently spelt by different writers; Holland, in a visitation, 1579, calls the same person, Burrill, and Berill: in other visitations, the name is wrote Berrill, Berill, Beril, Boral, Borel, Burel, and Burrell; so that it is difficult to ascertain, with any precision or exactness, which is the right way of spelling it.

This family was originally seated in Northumberland, but Randulphus Burrell, son and heir of Radulphus, having married Sermonda, daughter and coheir of Sir Walter Woodland, of Devon, 10 Edward II. became, in her right, possessed of a great estate, and settled in that county. He left John Burrell, his son and heir. He was succeeded by John, his son and heir, whose son Walter, grandson Walter, and great-grandson John Burrell, de Woodland, severally enjoyed the estate in succession, 399. THOMAS, of Yapton-Place, Suffex.

Created BARONET, Sept. 6, 1766.

IR George Thomas, originally of a gentleman's family in Monmouthshire, removed by purchase to Yapton-Place, in the county of Sussex, was nine years governor of Pennsylvania, and thirteen years captain-general and governor in chief of the Leeward Islands; in which he several times received the approbation and thanks of their Majesties King George the Second and King George the Third, for his national services, during the late wars with Spain and France.

When peace was reftored, he returned to England, with the King's licence of absence from his government, for the benefit of his health; and was soon after his arrival created a baronet, by patent, dated the fixth day of September, 1766.

On the 18th of December following, he refigned the government of the Leeward Islands, to the general regret of the inhabitants, as well as of the British merchants concerned in the trade to them; who had publicly, and in a most distinguished manner, given the amplest testimonies of their esteem and approbation of his conduct in the administration of both governments.

SEAT: At Yapton-Place, in the county of Suffex.

400. WOLFF, of Cam's-Hall, Hampshire.

Created Baronet, Od. 27, 1766.

SIR Jacob Wolff, baronet of Great Britain, and a baron of the Holy Roman empire, is fon of Charles-Godfier Wolff, of St. Petersbourg, Esq; who descended, on the father's side, from a noble Silesian family, that had a sief under the emperors of Germany, near Breslaw; but, when the religious troubles commenced in Silesia, they were forced to quit that country, and seek an asylum under the crown of Sweden, where the Lutheran religion prevailed.

When Peter the Great conquered Livonia, his father, Charles-Godfrey Wolff, was carried, being then an infant, anno 1704, in captivity, into Wologda, a town in the interior parts of the Ruffian empire; and, arriving at the age of maturity, fettled at Mosco, where, on the 37th of January, 1739, O. S. the prefent baronet was born.

In the year 1759, Sir Jacob succeeded his late uncle, baron Jacob Wolff, (his late Majesty's resident and consul general) in his estates; and the late emperor of Germany, Francis the First, honoured him with a patent of a baron, bearing date at Vienna, in July, 1761, wherein he is stilled Jacob Van Wolff, baronet, and baron of the Holy Roman empire, and to all his lawful children, and their issue, males and females, in the descending line.

Sir Jacob, being naturalized, settled in Hampshire, and, on the 27th of October, 1766, his present Majesty was pleased to confer on him, and his heirs male, the title of a baronet of Great Britain.

Sir Jacob married, Dec. 11, 1766, Anne, only daughter of the right hon. Edward Weston, of Somerby-Hall, in Lincoln-shire, Esq; by whom he has issue one daughter.

ARMS, CREST, &c. The Germans bearing their Arms and Quarterings in a different manner to the custom or usage in England, we shall give the description of them from the baron's patent, which is in the German language, and of which the following is a translation.

401. CHAMPNEYS, of Orchardley, in Somersetshire.

Created BARONET, Jan. 26, 1767.

THE tradition in Somersetshire is, that the family of Champneys hath been settled at Orchardley, near Frome-Selwood, in that county, from the time of the Norman conquest, and it appears from an antient deed, in possession of the family at this present time, that Henry Champneys, of Orchardley, Esq; temp. Hen. IV. in consideration of the payment of one hundred shillings, was pardoned his transgression in marrying Joan, the widow of Walter Romsey, (a tenant of the King in capite) without licence first obtained.

The following inscription, on a flat tomb-stone, in the middle aile of the church of Frome-Selwood, aforesaid, informs us, that another of this samily, a descendant of the beforenamed Henry Champneys, was buried there very early in the sixteenth century:

« Pray

46 Pray for the foules of Henry Champeneys, Esquire, and 46 Jane his wife; which Henry decessed the 14th day of 46 August, M.D.VI. on whose soules Christ have mercy.

" Amen."

By a written instrument in Latin, with the great seal appendant, now in the family, dated 31 Hen. VIII. an annuity of fix pounds per annum appears to have been granted to Alice Champneys, spinster, one of this family, then late abbess of the monastery of Shaftsbury, for her life, for her support, upon the dissolution of that monastery.

We find, that in Queen Elizabeth's time, another Henry Champneys, Esq; was possessed of the said manor of Orchardley, together with the manors of Frome-Selwood and Wilmington, in the same county, and the manor of Cowhill, in Gloucestershire, and lived in great hospitality and reputation, at the manor house of Orchardly, till his death, which happened about the middle of that reign, leaving behind him six son, viz. John, Richard, Henry, Christopher, George, and Edward Champneys.

John, his eldest son, succeeded him in those possessions, who having no iffue, limited the said several manors and estates, by deed, in his lifetime, to his nephew John, the son of his brother, Richard Champneys, which said John asterwards succeeded to the enjoyment of the said estates, and, upon his death, the same descended in succession to John, his son, and John, his grandion.

Richard Champneys, Esq; of Orchardly, son of the lastnamed John Champneys, married to his first wife, Sarah, one of the daughters and coheirs of Sir William Daines, of Bristol, Knt. with whom he received a very considerable portion, and she dying without any male issue, he married to his second wife, Sarah, the only daughter of Anthony Swymmer, of the island of Jamaica, Esq; by whom he had issue an only son, Thomas, born in Oct. 1745.

The faid Richard Champneys died in the year 1761, possessed of the several manors and estates beforementioned, leaving his faid fon.

Thomas, a minor, who foon after his attaining the age of twenty-one, in the seventh year of his present Majesty's reign, in consideration of the antiquity of his family, which enjoyed such large possessions in the county of Somerset, with splendor and hospitality, for so many centuries, and of the additional fortune which he inherited by the death of his uncle Anthony Langley Swymmer, Esq; without issue, was created a barenet

411. Young, of Dominica.

Created BARONET, May 3, 1769.

T being an impossibility to obtain any information that can be depended on, of such gentlemen, whose residence is abroad, (and who, on obtaining the title, neglect to enter a regular pedigree at the Heralds office,) a list of their names, specifying the times of their respective creations, as it is all that can be had, is as much therefore as can be reasonably expected.

Of this gentleman we can only say, that his Majesty was pleased, by letters patent, bearing date May 3, 1769, to grant unto William Young, Esq; lieutenant-governor of his Majesty's island of Dominica, and the heirs male of his body lawfully begotten, the dignity of a baronet of the kingdom of Great Bri-

BARONETS.

DEFORE we begin to treat of the Order itself, it will not be improper to premise something concerning the word Barsuet, or Barsuettus, the name of the dignity, of which we are going to give fome account: for the better and clearer understanding whereof, we shall first settle the fignification of the word Bare, that being the primitive to Barenettus: now, it is generally agreed by those who will have the word to be of Grecian extraction, that Bare, as it implies the name of dignity, is derived from the Greek word basis, i.e. vir gravis, eximin, vel magna authoritatis; others, whose judgements seem to be most favoured, declare this word to be of barbarous original, and, in its native sense, it seems to be the same as vir, in Latin. And, among the antient Anglo-Saxons, it fignified as much, and fo by degrees became a name of office and dignity: but Berenettas is plainly derived from Bare, and accordingly has been rendered into Latin, by Baronulus and Barunculus, as well as Baronettus, all which words, it is clear, are of the same import, and diminutives of Bare; as Calepine, in his dictionary, fays, & Bare eft vir fortis, a quo fit diminutivum barunculus: therefore. according to these difinitions, Baronet, undoubtedly, fignifies a lesser or little baron. The word Baronet is antient in both England and France, as the learned Selden observes; in England it has been used for Banneret, when that expressed a parliamentary Baron; e.g. in this notion it is used in the stat. of Ric. II. where 'every archbishop, &c. duke, earl, Baron, Ba-' ronet, knight of a shire, &c. are commanded, under pain of amerciament, or other punishment, according to antient use, to appear in parliament;' again, in an attaint, under Hen. VI. one of the jury challenged himself, because his ancestors had been Baronets and seigneurs des parliaments; and as it has been often in this sense, so also it has often been applied to Bannerets, when the word has expressed a knight-banneret; for neither have the old flories Baronetti, very frequent for Banneretti, as Walfingham, in his history of Edw. II. speaking of the prisoners that were taken at the memorable battle of Strivelin, fought beracen the English and Scots, says, capti funt autem & in cus-• todia detenti Barones & Baronetti viginti duo, milites sexaginta oclo, &c.'-But also even in a patent, passed so lately as temp. Edw.

Edw. VI. to Sir Ralph Fane, a knight-banneret, he his called Baronettus. And, in France, in regard to the antient nearness of Bannerets there to Barons, some have called them Baronets, as if, (to use the words of the learned author beforementioned) they had a diminutive title of Barons, which also serves to confirm our derivation of the word Baronet; and now, having shewn the etymon and signification of this word, we hope the small digression we have made, in reslecting a little on the antient use, will be excused, and immediately we proceed to our present purpose.

2. Baronets, then, (as appears before by the name,) are am inferior fort of Barons, and feem conflituted in the room of the ancient Valvasours, or Vavasors, between the Barons of England, and the orders of knighthood, taking place next to Barons, which was a dignity that seems to have come to us from the French; for, during their dominion in Italy, those were called Vavasors, who governed the people, or part of them, under the duke, earl, or chieftain, and (according to Butler, the lawyer) has a full power of punishing, but not the right of fairs and markets. See Additions to Camden's Britannia,

3. This honour was instituted, A. D. 1611: the founder was King James the First, sole monarch of Great Britain; long before whose reign the whole kingdom of Ireland, but especially the most ample and famous province of Ulster, in that kingdom, had continued in a most unsettled state, very much arising from the natural disposition of that people, quite rude and uncivilized, who were equally averse to all order, as they were unwilling, for any length of time, to submit to government. and secemed, as it were, to have a propensity to disorder and lawless liberty. In this situation they had, for a long tract of time, rendered themselves remarkable for their rebellious insurrections upon, and frequent defections from, the English government, as appears from antient histories; their turbulent tempers having made them unapt for, and inflexible to, all rule; and good laws were absent thence, which are the cements of all fociety; because their binding power, the essence of all laws. would not there have been obeyed by a wild people: a country peopled, as this was, must necessarily bear some resemblance to its inhabitants; so, a great part of the lands herein, by the ig+ norance and indolence of the owners, was waste, and, for want of due management and cultivation, lay sterile and unprofitable a the proprietors and property being equally afeless to themselves and others; barbarism, irreligion, and ignorance, with all their sad attendants, for a long while, seemed to have taken full possession of the land; and government, religion, and good manners, to have been excluded, together with arts and sciences. Such was the calamitous case of this province in former times; and what much cherished these disorders, was, the many unsuccessful attemps that had been often made to subdue this harbarous people; so that it continued fere in flatu que, with no very great interruption or alteration, to the reign of this King. who finding it in a ruinous confusion, as their sovereign took the universal miserable state thereof into his royal confideration and protection, attempted the reduction of it, and by the power of his fuccessful arms, expelled the barbarous rebels, and caused peace and tranquillity to flourish over all her borders: a work. indeed, which none of his predecessors could ever accomplish, although they had often endavoured, at the expence of much blood and treasure, but left it to this prince, wrapt up in the mists of blood, ruin, and disorder: and after he had happily effected this his first laudable undertaking, being farther solicitous, out of his princely regard for that people; attentive, at the same time, to the defires of his subjects, for the plantation and adorning that kingdom with good men, wholesome laws, and the true use of sacred religion, especially the province of Ulster. which had ever, from the beginning, been the nursery and seminary of treasons, rebellions, insurrections, and atheistical barbarism; and likewise being providently careful, that so great a province might thus be established, and more and more flourish in an affluence of wealth, and all other things which might be conducive to the ornament and happiness of the commonwealth; and that the whole management of such civil affairs should be protected and maintained by an armed power, to wit, by troops and garrisons, so that neither hostile force, nor intestine faction. might hinder or disturb the repose thereof: his Majesty, to these worthy and honourable ends, so becoming a prince's regard, did, in the ninth year of his reign, de jure prærogativæregalis, & more regum Anglia, progenitorum sucrum, and as other fovereigns in foreign countries, on the like public and urgent occasions had done before him, erect, constitute, and create this order, called Baronets, (which his roval successors, the only fountains of all honour, have continued,) an order peculiar and proper to our own nation, being a mean, or middle station between the barons of parliament, and the order of knights, chufing those he was pleased to dignify with the same, out of the most prime and principal rank of gentlemen, through all his Majeffy's dominion of England, who might strenuously promote this his royal undertaking, and with their wealths should be aiding towards the building of churches, towns, and castles, which are the causes of civil commerce, and mutual friendship, one man with another; whereby God is feared, the King obeyed, and the land tilled and manured; all which, they, (the Baronets,) did not only (of their own free motion,) tender to his Majesty's service; but also made proffer of their lives, fortunes, and estates, to hazard, in the performance of this duty, and that when any spark of rebellion, or other hostile invasion, should attempt to disturb the peace of this kingdom, or province, that they themselves, in person, would be ready to defend it; and each of them did maintain and keep thirty soot-soldiers there, who were actually in the service of the King, for the defence of the kingdom, but chiefly for the security of the said plantation of the province of Ulster. Upon these weighty and necessary, civil and religious considerations, was this order founded, which his Majesty was pleased to endow with several privileges of honour, that we shall mention in the sequel of this treatise.

4. This honour was made hereditary, by the King's letters-patent, in the rolls, to be seen, thus: 'James, by the grace of 'God, &c. We have ordained, erected, constituted and created a certain degree, state, dignity, name, and title of a Baronet, within this our kingdom of England, to endure for ever; to whom the King doth so create to him, and to the heirs male of his body, &c.'

5. The manner of creation is therefore by patent under the great seal, to a man, and the heirs male of his body lawfully begotten, for ever; though sometimes the Baronetship is further entailed, for want of issue male, according to the pleasure of the This degree has generally been placed at the head of fovereign. the Nobiles minores; but there are some that will have Baronets to be the last under the first rank, i. e. the Nobiles majores; and their reason is, as having their honour hereditary, and by patent, as the other nobility have; which opinion, not only the foregoing confiderations feem to favour, but we may also add, (befides the fimilitude of the name, and its antient application to Barons,) that this is likewise a local title; for we find a diffiction in law, between a Baronet created of a place, and one not: and in lord Coke's reports, it is thus refolved, 'That if the King does not create him of some place, he shall not have an estate tail, but fee-simple-conditional, which shall be forfeited for felony; but if he create him Baronet of a place, then he shall have an estate-tail, within the stat. of Westm. 1. De donis con-

6. On the 22d of May, in the ninth year of his reign, King James created divers by patents, that differed not one from another in any fyllable, more than the names of those created; the form whereof hereafter we shall insert, and afterwards many other than such as should be made by the King himself, his hein and successors, in person, and in such special form as aforesaid.

12. His Majesty likewise ordained, that the knights of the most noble order of the garter, the privy-counsellors, the mafter of the court of wards and liveries, the chancellor and under-treasurer of the exchequer, chancellor of the duchy, the chief-justice of the court of king's-bench, the master of the rolls, the chief justice of the court of common-pleas, the chiefbaron of the exchequer, and all other the judges and barons of the degree of the coif of the said courts, should, by reason of fuch their honourable order and employment of state and justice, have place and precedency before the younger fons of viscount and barons, and all Baronets; but that no other person or persons whatsoever, under the degree of barons of parliament, should take place before the faid Baronets, except only the eldest sons of viscounts and barons, and others of higher degree. And accordingly, he did ordain and decree, that the barones, and the heirs males of their bodies, should for ever enjoy their place and precedency, next unto, and immediately after, the younger fons of viscounts and barons, and that no person of persons, or state or states of men, should have or take place between them.

13. His Majesty also ordained and decreed, that the wives of the Baronets, and of the heirs males of their bodies, should likewise, by virtue of their husbands dignity, in all places, and upon all occasions, enjoy their place and precedency during their lives, next unto, and immediately after, that place that is due and belongeth unto the wives of the younger sons of viscounts and barons, and to the daughters of viscounts and barons.

14. And his Majesty, by the letters patent of creation, granted (and this engagement he farther confirmed by a decree) that neither he, his heirs or successors, should or would, at any time hereafter, erect, ordain, constitute, or create, any other degree, order, name, title, stile, dignity, or state, nor would give place, precedency, or preheminence, to any person or persons whatsoever, under or beneath the degree, dignity, or state of lords of parliament of the realm of England, which should or might be taken, used, or accounted, to be higher, before, or equal to the degree, dignity, or place, of the Baronets: and agreeable thereto, in lord Coke's Reports, (Pasch. 9 Jac. I.) we find it thus resolved; that the King cannot create any dignity above the dignity of a baronet, and under the dignity of a barone.

15. Baronets, and their eldest sons, have this peculiar privilege, that they may be knighted if they please; for it was ordained and decreed, by his Majesty, for him, his heirs and successors. tient times, did not discharge the heir from being in ward, as if the heir had been a knight; for he is not made knight by this, the dignity of a knight not being descendible; but this is descendible, and of superior rank to knighthood; though Baronets, and their eldest sons, or heirs apparent, may be knighted, on due application, as we shall soon shew.

9. The title of Lady is to be attributed to their wives, who precede the wives of all knights whatsoever, this being an hereditary honour; and some have stilled them Baronettesses, and we think not improperly, that word being made the seminine of no. Baronets have place and precedence, as well in all commissions, writs, writings, appellations, &c. as also in all seffions, assemblies, and other places whatsoever, as well before all knights of the Bath, as knights-bachelors, and likewise all knights-bannerets, those bannerets only excepted, who shall happen to be created under the King's banner, displayed in a royal army, in open war, and the King personally present, and not otherwise. And they take place amongst themselves, according to the priority of their creation.

11. In the reign of K. James I. upon a controverly of precedence between the younger sons of viscounts, and barons, and the Baronets, after his Majesty's hearing council in person three feveral days at large, and having had information from the heralds, and taken due confideration of proofs produced on both fides, a decree and establishment was made thereupon, and touching some other points also, concerning as well bannerets, as the Baronets; whereby his Majesty did declare, and finally decree, that the younger fons of viscounts and barons should take place and precedence before all Baronets. And by the same ordained, the better to fettle, and clear also, all questions of precedence, that may concern either bannerets, or the younger sons of viscounts and barons, or the Baronets, either as they have relation amongst themselves, or towards others respectively, that such bannerets as should be made by the King's Majesty, his heirs and successors, under his or their standard, displayed in an army royal, in open war, and the King personally prefent, for the term of the lives of such bannerets, and no longer, (according to the most antient and noble institution,) should for ever hereafter take place and precedence, before all bannerets whatfoever, (no respect being had to the time and priority of their creation,) as likewise before the younger sons of viscounts and barons, and also before all Baronets. And again, that the younger fons of viscounts and barons, and also all Baronets, should take place and precedence before all bannerets what soever, · Vol. III.

20. In the universities, by the statutes, Baronets enjoy much the same privileges as the higher nobility, and are there still Noblemen.

21. A few years after the institution, his Majesty made another decree, which also passed under the great seal, wherein ke declared, that forasmuch as the degree of a Baronet is an herditary degree in blood; therefore, that the eldest sons of the same Baronets, and their wives, as well during their husbands like as after, and the daughters of the same Baronets, the said daughters following next after the said wives of the eldest sons of the said Baronets, should have place and precedency before the eldest son, and the wife of the eldest son of any knight, of what degree or order soever. And likewise, that the younger sons of the same Baronets, and their wives, as well during their husbands lives as after, should after the same manner have place and precedency, next after the eldest sons, and the wives of the close sons, and before the younger sons, of any of the knights aforesaid.

22. Baronets, then, have precedency before all knights, except knights of the most noble order of the garter, and hamerets created in the special form, as aforesaid; but their ladies, it is evident, challenge an higher rank than themselves; for the take place before the wives of all knights whatsoever; and the sons, sons wives, and daughters likewise, respectively, precede the sons, sons wives, and daughters, of all knights, it what degree or order soever; so that these may justly claims established precedency, before all the common gentry. And a due restection upon the whole, it must be allowed, the the privileges, pre-eminencies, and other ornaments of distinction appertaining to this honourable order, are as perspicuously declared, as firmly and legally established, as of any other order or degree amongst us whatsoever.

The first creation of this hereditary title, was in the nimby year of King James I. He, in that year, on the two and twentieth of May, 1611, made divers by patents, that differed not one from another in any syllable, more than the names of the that were created. The form was as follows:

' Jacobus, Dei gracia, &c. salutem. Cum, inter alias imperii nostri gerendi curas, quibus animus noster assidue execetur, illa non minima sit, nec minimi momenti, de plantatione regni nostri Hiberniæ, ac potissimum Ultoniæ, ampis

The following is a translation of the preceding PATENT.

Games, by the grace of God, &c. Greeting. Whereas, amongst the other cares of sovereignty with which our mind is constantly exercised, that, neither is the least, nor of least moment, the plantation of our kingdom of Ireland, and chiefely of Ulster, a large and samous province of the same kingdom, which, now under our government, and by our arms being happily subdued, we endeavour so to establish, that so great a province should more and more slourish, not only in the true practice of religion, civil humanity, and probity of manners, but also in an affluence of riches, and abundance of all things which contribute either to the ornament or happiness of the commonweal: a work, indeed, which none of our progenitors could perform and accomplish, though they had often, with much expence of blood and treasure, attempted it: in which work our royal care, not only ought to contrive, that the said plantation should be strenuously promoted, towns founded, houses and castles built, fields tilled, and other things of that kind done; but also to regard, in the first place, that the whole management of such civil affairs fhould, by an armed power, to wit, by garrisons and troops, be protected and defended, to the end that neither hostile force, nor intestine faction, should hinder or disturb them: and whereas it is intimated unto us, on the part of certain of our faithful subjects, that they are most ready, as well with their persons as their fortunes, to promote this our royal undertaking; we, moved with a defire of accomplishing so holy and wholesome a work, and fondly regarding such generous inclinations, and minds fo addicted to our service, and the public good, have resolved with ourselves to be wanting in nothing which may reward the aforesaid good-will of our subjects, or excite a spirit and alacrity in others to perform their parts, and furnish their expences upon this occasion; therefore, weighing and confidering with ourselves, that virtue and industry are cherished and supported by nothing more than by 6 honour; and that all the splendor and amplitude of honour and dignity take their rise from a King, as from a fountain, to whose high prerogative it properly belongs to erect and institute new titles of honour and dignity, as he from whom the old ones flowed; we have thought proper, (the service of the commonwealth, and the exigence of the times fo requiring,) to reward new merits with new enfigns of dignity: and therefore, of our certain knowledge, and mere motion, we have ordained, erected, constituted, and created a certain state, degree, dignity, name, and title of Baronet, within this our kingdom of England, for ever to endure. Now know ye, that we, of our special grace, and of our certain knowledge, and mere motion, have raised, appointed, and created, and by these presents, for us, our heirs, and successors, do raise, appoint, and create, our beloved A. B. of C. in the county of D. a man in family, patrimony, riches, and probity of maneners, remarkably eminent, (wno, with a generous and liberal mind, gave and yielded to us a relief and supply, ample enough to maintain and support thirty men in our foot forces,. ' in in our faid kingdom of Ireland, for three entire years, for the defence of our faid kingdom, and especially for the security of the plantation of the faid province of Ulster,) to and into the dignity, state, and degree of Baronet, and him, A. B. a Baronet, for us, our heirs and successors, do appoint, constitute, and create, by these presents, to have to him, and the heirs of his body lawfully begotten, for ever. will also, and by these presents, of our special grace, and of our certain knowledge, and mere motion, for us, our heirs, and fuccessors, do grant to the aforesaid A. B. and the heirs e male of his body lawfully begotten, that he the faid A. B. and his heirs male aforesaid, may have, enjoy, hold, and take place and precedence, by virtue of the dignity of baronet, aforesaid, and by force of these presents, as well in all come missions, writs, letters-patents, writings, appellations, nominations, and directions, as in all fessions, conventions, companies, and places, whatfoever, before all knights, as well of the Bath, as Knights-Bachelors, and also before all knightsbannerets, now created, or hereafter to be created, (those knights-bannerets only excepted, who shall happen to be created under the royal banner displayed, in a royal army in open war, and the King himself personally present, and no otherwise:) and that the wives of the said A. B. and of his heirs male aforefaid, by virtue of the faid dignity of their hufbands aforefaid, may have, hold, enjoy, and take place and precedence before the wives of all others whatfoever, before whom the husbands of such wives, by force of these presents, ought to have place and precedence; and that the first-begotten fon, and all the other fons, and their wives, and the daughters, of the faid A. B. and of his heirs male, aforefaid, respectively, may have and take place and precedence before the first-begotten sons, and other sons, and their wives, and the daughters, of all whomsoever, respectively, whom the fathers of all such first-begotten fons, 6 other sons and their wives, and the daughters, by sorce of these presents, ought to have place and precedence. also, and by these presents, for us, our heirs, and successors, ' of our special grace and of our certain knowledge, and mere motion, do grant, that the faid A. B. may be named, called, mentioned, may plead, and be impleaded, by the name of A. B. baronet; and that the stile and addition of baronet shall be put at the end of the name of the faid A. B. and of his heirs male aforesaid, in all our letters patents, commissions, and writs, and in all other charters, deeds, and letters, as a true, legal, and necessary addition of dignity. We will also,

and by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, do ordain, that before the name of the said A.B. and his heirs male, aforesaid, in English speech, and all English writings, fhall be placed this addition, Sir; and likewise that the wives of the faid A. B. and his heirs male aforefaid, shall have, use, and enjoy, the appellation of Lady, Madam, and Dame, refpectively, according to the custom of speaking: to have, hold, f use and enjoy the said state, degree, dignity, stile, title, name, place, and precedence, with all and fingular the privileges, and the rest of the premises, to the aforesaid A. B. and the heirs male of his body iffuing, for ever. Willing, and by these presents granting, for us, our heirs and successors, that the said A. B. and his heirs male aforesaid, the name, state, degree, stile, dignity, title, place, and precedence, aforefaid, with all and fingular the privileges, and other the premisses, successively may bear and have, and every of them may bear and have: and that the faid A. B. and his his heirs male, aforesaid, succeffively, may in all things be held as baronets, and as baf ronets be treated and reputed, and every of them may be fo held, treated, and reputed. And further, of our more ample fpecial grace, and of our certain knowledge and mere motion, we have granted, and by these presents, for us, our heirs, and successors, do grant unto the said A. B. and his heirs male, that the number of baronets of this kingdom of England shall never hereafter exceed, in the whole, at any one time, the number of two hundred baronets; and that the faid baronets, and their heirs male, aforesaid, respectively, from time to time, for ever, shall have, hold, and enjoy, their places and precedencies among themselves, to wit, every of them according to the priority and seniority of his creation of baronet, afore-6 faid. And moreover, of our more abundant special grace, and of our certain knowledge and mere motion, we have granted, s and by these presents, for us, our heirs and fuccessors, do grant to the aforesaid A. B. and his heirs male aforesaid, that 6 neither we, nor our heirs or successors, shall for the suture erect, ordain, constitute, or create, within this our kingdom of England, any other degree, order, name, title, dignity, f or state, under or beneath the degree, dignity, or state, of bafrom of this our kingdom of England, which shall be, or which can be superior or equal to the degree, and dignity of baronets aforesaid; but as well the said A. B. and his heirs f male, aforefaid, as the wives, fons, fons wives, and daugheters, of the said A. B. and his heirs male aforesaid, for ever f hereafter, freely and quietly may have, hold, and enjoy, their dignities, places, and precedencies, aforesaid, before all who fhall be of fuch degrees, states, dignities, or order, for the future, to be created, as abovefaid, respectively, according to the true intention of these presents, without the impeachment of us, our heirs or successors, or of any other whatsoever. And further, by these presents, we declare and fignify our will and pleasure to be now and hereaster, and so we have resolved and determined with ourself, that if, after we have compleated and perfected the aforefaid number of two hundred baronets of this our kingdom of England, it shall happen that some or any of the same baronets shall depart this If without an heir male of the body or bodies of fuch baroe net or baronets begotten, that then we shall not create or 4 appoint any other person or persons baronet or baronets of our kingdom of England, but that the faid number of two 6 hundred baronets shall therefore, from time to time, decrease, and be reduced to a lesser number. Lastly, we will, and by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, of our special grace, and of our certain knowledge and mere motion, do grant to the aforesaid A. B. and his heirs male aforesaid, that these our letters patents shall in all things, and by all things, be firm, valid, good, sufficient, and effectual in law, as well against us, our heirs, and successors, as against all others whatfoever, according to the true intention of the fame, as well in all our courts, as in any other place whatfoever, notwithstanding any law, custom, prescription, use, ordination or conflitution, whatfoever, heretofore fet forth, had, used, ordained, or provided, or hereafter to be set forth, 6 had, used, ordained, or provided, and notwithstanding any other thing, cause, or matter, whatsoever. We will also, 6 &c. without fine in the Hanaper-office, &c. so that express 6 mention, &c. In testimony of which, &c. Witness, &c.?

After the first creation, divers others were made by the like patents, that passed to some by warrants of the privy-seal, and to others, by warrants of commissioners, authorized under the great seal, for treating with such as desired to be created upon the terms in the preamble of the patent, and for giving warrant for the creation of them. And to those commissioners instructions were also annexed to their commission in these words:

By King JAMES I.

The Instructions within-mentioned to be observed by our Commissioners.

Forasmuch as we have been pleased to authorise you to treat and conclude with a certain number of knights and esquires, s as they shall present themselves unto you, with such offers of affistance for the service of Ireland, and under such conditions as are contained in these presents, wherein we do repose great trust and confidence in your discretions and integrities, knowing well that in such cases there are so many circumstances incident, as require a choice care and confideration: We do hereby require you to take such course as may make known abroad both our purpose, and the authority given unto you, that, by the more public notice thereof, those persons who are are disposed to advance so good a work, may, in time, understand where and to whom to address themselves for the fame; for which purpose we require you to appoint some certain place and times for their access, which we think fittest to be at the council-chamber at Whitehall, upon Wednesdays and Fridays, in the afternoon, where you shall make known to them, as they come, that those who desire to be admitted into the dignity of baronets must maintain the number of thirty foot-foldiers in Ireland, for three years, after the rate of eight pence, sterling money of England, by the day; and the wages of one whole year to be paid into our receipt, upon 4 passing of the patent.

Provided always, that you proceed with none, except it shall appear unto you, upon good proof, that they are men for quality, state of living, and good reputation, worthy of the same; and that they are, at the least, descended of a grandsather, by the father's side, that bore arms; and have also, of certain yearly revenue in lands of inheritance in possession, one thousand pounds per annum de claro, or lands of the old rent, as good in accompt as one thousand per annum of improved rents, or, at the least, two parts, in three parts, to be devided of lands, to the said values in possession, and the other third part, in reversion, expectant upon one life only, holding by dower, or in jointure.

And for the order to be observed in ranking those that shall receive the dignity of a baronet, although it is to be wished that those knights who have now place before other knights, in respect of the time of their creation, may be ranked before others, cateris paribus; yet, because this is a dignity which shall be hereditary, wherein divers circumstances are more considerable, than such a mark as is but temporary, that is to say, of being now a knight, in time before another, our pleasure is, you shall not be so precise, in placing those that shall receive this dignity, but that an esquire of great antiquity, and extraordinary living, may be ranked in this choice before some knights. And so, of knights, a man of greater living, more remarkable remarkable for his house, years, or calling in the commonwealth, may be now preferred in this degree, before one that was made a knight before him.

Next, because there is nothing of honour or of value, which is known to be sought or desired, be the motives never so good, but may receive scandal from some, who, wanting the same good affection to the public, or being in other considerations incapable, can be contented, out of envy to those that are so preferred, to cast aspersions and imputations upon them, as if they came by this dignity for any other consideration but that which concerneth this so public and memorable a work, you shall take order, that the party who shall receive this dignity may take his oath, that neither he, nor any for him, hath, directly or indirectly, given any more for attaining the degree, or any precedence in it, than that which is necessary for the maintenance of the number of soldiers, in such sort, as aforesaid, saving the charges of passing his patent.

And, because we are not ignorant, that in the distribution of all honours, most men will be desirous to attain to so high a place as they may, in the judgment whereof, being matter of dignity, there cannot be too great caution used to avoid the interruptions that private partialities may breed in so worthy a competition:

Forasmuch as it is well known, that it can concern no other e person so much as to prevent all such inconveniencies as it must do ourself, from whom all honour, and dignity, either temor porary or hereditary, hath his only root and beginning, you fhall publish and declare to all, to whom it may concern, that for the better warrant of your own actions, in this matter of precedency, wherein we find you so defirous to avoid all just exceptions, we are determined, upon view of all those patents which shall be subscribed by you, before the same pass our great seal, to take the especial care upon us, to order and frank every man in his due place; and therein always to use the particular council and advice, that you our commissioners shall give us, of whose integrity and circumspection we have so good experience, and are so well persuaded, as we assure ourfelf you will use all the best means you may to inform your own judgment in cases doubtful, before you deliver us any fuch opinion as may lead us in a case of this nature, wherein our intention is, by due confideration of all necessary circumflances, to give every man that fatisfaction which flandeth with honour and reason.

Lastly, having now directed you how, and with what caution, you are to entertain the offers of such as shall present themsthemselves for this dignity, we do also require you to observe these two things: The one, that every such person as shall be admitted, do enter into fufficient bond or recognizance, to our use, for the payment of that portion which shall be remaining after the first payment is made, which you are to see paid upon delivery of the letters patents: the other, that, feeing this contribution for so public an action is the motive of 6 this dignity, and that the greatest good which may be expected upon this plantation, will depend upon the certain payment of those forces, which shall be fit to be maintained in that kingdom, until the same be well established, the charge whereof will be borne with the greater difficulty, if we be not eafed by fome such extraordinary means; we require you, our treafurer of England, so to order this receipt, as no part thereof be mixed with our other treasure, but kept apart by itself, to be wholly converted to that use to which it is given and intended; and in regard thereof, that you affign it to be received, and the bonds to be kept, by some such particular perfon as you shall think good to appoint, who, upon the payment of every several portion, shall both deliver out the bonds, and give his acquittance for the same. For which this fhall be yours, and his the said receiver's, sufficient warrant in that behalf.

After these instructions were given to the commissioners, the following decree concerning baronets was enrolled, which was printed by order of King James I.

James, by the grace of God, King of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, defender of the faith, &c.

To all to whom these presents shall come, greeting. Know ve that we have made a certain ordinance, establishment, and final decree, whereof the tenor followeth in these words:

The decree and establishment of the King's Majesty, upon a controversy of precedence, between the younger sons of viscounts and barons, and the baronets, and touching some other points also concerning, as well bannerets as the said baronets.

The King's most excellent Majesty, having, upon the petition, and submission of both parts, taken into his royal audience and censure, a certain controversy, touching place and precedence between the younger sons of viscounts and barons, and the baronets, being a degree by his majesty newly.
created, which controversy did arise upon an inference only, out of some dark words contained in the letters patents of the faid baronets; and having in person heard both parts, and their learned counsel, three several days at large, after infor-6 mation taken from the heralds, and due confideration of fuch proofs as were produced on both fides, bath declared and decreed as followeth.

 His Majesty well weighing that the letters patents of the baronets have no special clause or express words to give unto them the said precedence; and being a witness unto himself, which is a testimony above all exception, that his princely * meaning was only to grace and advance this new dignity of his Majesty's erection; but not therewithal to wrong tacid and obscurely a third party, such as the younger sons of viscounts and barons are, in that which is a flower of their fathers nobility:

And having also had the attestation of the lords of his privycouncil, who did declare that the precedence (after debate and deliberation, while the patent of the baronets was in consultation) was with one confent refolved and ordered for the younger fons of the viscounts and barons:

4 And finding also that the clause whereby the precedence is challenged by the baronets, as a kind of consequence in regard to place given unto them above some bannerets, doth not warfor rant their claim; for a fo bannerets themselves, and the younger sons of viscounts and barons, appeareth not to have been regular or certain, but full of confusion, and therefore not sufficient whereupon to ground fuch their pretence; but being chiefly moved by the clearness of his Majesty's royal intent and meaning, and the explanation thereof by his council, which his royal meaning doth and ever must lead his Majesty's judgment in the interpretation of his own acts, hath finally sentenced, adjudged, and established, that the younger sons of viscounts and barons shall take place and precedence before all baronets.

"And, further, the better to settle and clear also all question of precedence, that may concern either bannerets, or the younger fons of viscounts or barons, or the faid baronets, either as they have any relation amongst themselves, or towards others respectively; his Majesty, for himself, his heirs and fuccessors, doth ordain and establish, that such bannerets as fhall be made by the King's Majesty, his heirs and successions. under his or their standard displayed in an army-royal, in open war, and the King personally present, for the term of the lives of fuch bannerets, and no longer, according to the moft antient and noble institution, shall for ever hereafter, in all e places, and upon all occasions, take place and precedence as • well before all other bannerets whatfoever, no respect being • had to the time and priority of their creation, as likewise be-• fore the younger fons of viscounts and barons, and also before all baronets.

And again, that the younger fons of viscounts and barons, and also all baronets, shall, in all places, and upon all occafions, take place and precedence before all bannerets whatfoever, other than such as shall be made by the King himself, his heirs and successors, in person, and in such special case, manner, and form as aforesaid.

Nevertheless, for a singular honour to the person of the most s high and excellent prince Henry, now prince of Wales, his Majesty's eldest son, as well the younger sons of the viscounts and barons, have freely, voluntarily confented, and agreed, at the hearing of the said cause, in the presence of his Majesty, and his privy-council, and all hearers, to give place and precedence to such bannerets as shall be hereafter made by the faid most noble Henry, now prince of Wales, under the King's standard displayed in an army royal in open war, and

Saving the right of the younger sons of viscounts and bafrons, and of the faid baronets, and of the heirs males of the 6 bodies of fuch baronets, for the time being, in all other cases, according to the effect, and true intent and meaning of their 6 letters patents, and of these presents.

 And his Majesty doth likewise, by these presents, for himfelf, his heirs and successors, ordain, that the knights of the 6 most noble order of the garter, the privy counsellors of his Ma-• jesty, his heirs and successors, the master of the court of wards and liveries, and the chancellor and under-treasurer of the ex-• chequer, chancellor of the duchy, the chief justice of the court commonly called the king's-bench, and mafter of the rolls, • the chief justice of the court of common pleas, the chief ba-• ron of the exchequer, and all other the judges and barons of the degree of the coif of the said courts, now, and for the time being, shall, by reason of such their honourable order, and employment of state and justice, have place and precedene cy in all places, and upon all occasions, before the younger fons of viscounts and barons, and before all baronets, any custom, use, ordinance, or other thing to the contrary notwithflanding. But that no other person or persons whatsoever, under the degree of barons of parliament, shall take place before the faid baronets, except only the eldest sons of viscounts, and barons, and others of higher degree, whereof no question ever was or can be made. And so his Majesty's meaning is, Vol. III.

and accordingly he doth by these presents, for him, his heir and successors, ordain and decree, that the said baronets, and the heirs males of their bodies, shall, in all places, and upos all occasions, for ever have, hold, and enjoy their place and precedency, next unto, and immediately after, the younger for of viscounts and barons; and that no person or persons, and flate or flates of men, shall have or take place between then any conflitution, order, degree, office, fervice, place, emploment, custom, use, or other thing whatsoever, now or her-

· after, to the contrary notwithstanding.

And that the wives of the faid baronets, and of the heir males of their bodies, shall likewise by virtue of the said die inity of their faid husbands, in all places, and upon all occfions, have, take, and enjoy their place and precedency defring their lives, next unto, and immediately after, that plat that is due, and belongeth unto the wives of the younger for of viscounts and barons, and to the daughters of such vicounts and barons, any constitution, use, custom, ordinance or other thing whatfoever, now or hereafter, to the contrar,

" And further his Majesty doth by these presents, for him, is heirs and successors, of his certain knowledge and merem tion, promise and grant to the said baronets, and every them, already created, and hereafter to be created, and the heirs males of their bodies, that neither his Majefty, nor i heirs or fucceffors, shall or will, at any time hereafter, end, ordain, constitute, or create, any other degree, order, name, title, stile, dignity, or state, nor will give place, precedent, or pre-eminence to any person or persons whatsoever, under or beneath the degree, dignity, or state of lords of parliance of this his realm of England, which shall or may be taken · uted, or accounted to be higher, before, or equal to the degree, dignity, or place of the faid baronets, or any of them. Asi therefore his Majesty doth, for him, his heirs and successor, ordain, grant, and appoint, by these presents, that all and cvery of the faid baronets, and of their faid heirs males, and the wives, fons, fons wives, and daughters of the fail baronets, and of their faid heirs, males, shall and mar, for ever hereafter, freely and quietly have, hold, and es-' joy, their faid dignities, places, precedency, and privilege, before all other which are or shall be created of such degrees, flates, dignities, orders, names, stiles, or titles, or to whom fuch place, precedency, or pre-eminence shall be so given, aforefaid, their wives and children respectively, according to the true intent and meaning of these presents.

Saving nevertheless to his Majesty, his heirs and successor, full and absolute power and authority, to continue or restore • to any person or persons, from time to time, such place and precedency as at any time hereafter shall be due unto them, which by any accident or occasion whatsoever shall be hereafter changed, any thing in these presents, or other cause or respect whatsoever, to the contrary notwithstanding.

And now, though the precedent declaration doth clearly rid all questions arising upon the letters patents, yet his Majesty having, upon the occasion of this controversy, and hearing of fome of the baronets grievances propounded out of their own mouths, confidered more maturely upon the points and latitude of their said patents, his Majesty being resolved (as out of his own royal mouth it pleased him to declare unto them) * to ampliate his favour, especially where it meets with these fo well born, and well deserving gentlemen, (this dignity being of his Majesty's own erection, and the work of his own hands,) his Majesty therefore is graciously pleased (not contented with those marks of his favour which already they enjoy by the words of their patent, which layeth such a mark of dignity and precedence upon them and their posterity) further to strengthen and adorn his Majesty's gracious favour towards them, with addition of the privileges, pre-eminences. and ornaments enfuing.

First, his Majesty is pleased to knight the present baronets that are no knights, and doth also by these presents, of his mere motion and favour, promise and grant for him his heirs and fuccessors, that such baronets, and the heirs males of their bodies, as hereafter shall be no knights, when they shall attain or be of the age of twenty-one years, upon knowledge thereof given to the lord-chamberlain of the houshold, or vicechamberlain, for the time being, or in their absence, to any 6 other officer attending upon his Majesty's person, shall be knighted by his Majelty's heirs and fuccessors.

' His Majesty doth also grant, for him, his heirs and successors, that the baronets, and their descendants, shall and may bear, either in a canton, in their coat of arms, or in an escutcheon, at their election, the arms of Ulster, that is, in a Field, Argent, a Hand, Gules, or a bloody Hand.

And also that the baronets, for the time being, and the heirs males of their bodies, shall have place in the armies of the King's Majesty, his heirs and successors, in the gross, near about the royal standard of the King, his heirs and successors, for the defence of the same.

4 And lastly, that the baronets, and the heirs males of their bodies, shall have two assistants of the body to support the pall, a principal mourner, and four affistants to him, at their funerals. funerals, being the mean betwixt a baron and a knight. And to the end that every of the baronets, and the heirs males of their bodies, may have, upon all occasions, present use and proof of these his Majesty's favours, his Majesty is graciously pleased, that as well the baronets already created, as hereafter to be created, shall and may have, and take letters patents useder the great seal of England, to the effect of the said former letters patents of creation, and of these presents, either joint or several, as they shall be advised by the learned council of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and according to his highness's true intent and meaning. In witness whereof we have caused these our letters to be made patents. Witness or self, at Westminster, the 28th day of May, in the 10th year of our reign of England, France, and Ireland, and of Sox-stand the 45th, A. D. 1612.

About four years after this, there passed under the greated the other decree concerning this dignity, which is a brief medital of the first erection of it, and that other concerning it, and a declaration of the King's purpose that it should continue, and that the privileges formerly granted to it should always be held; and then,

Foralmuch as the degree of a baronet is an hereditary & gree in blood; therefore we do declare, that the eldeft four the same baronets, and their wives, as well during their he bands lives as after, and the daughters of the fame barones, the Lid daughters following next after the faid wives of the eldest sons of the same baronets, shall have place and precedency before the eldeft fon and wife of the eldeft for of any knight, of what degree or order foever. likewise that the younger sons of the same barones, and their wives, as well during their husbands lives, a after, shall, after the same manner, have place and precedency next after the eldest sons, and the wives of the eldest fone, and before the younger fons, and before the wives of the wounger fons, of any of the knights aforefaid. and pleafure is, and we do, for us, our heirs and fucceffor, hereby further grant and appoint, that if any doubts or quethions, not hereby, nor by any of our recited letters patent, cleared and determined, do or shall arise, concerning any place, precedency, privilege, or other matter, touching of concerning the same baronets, and the heirs males of their bedies, and their wives, their eldest sons and their wives, their daughters, their younger fons, their younger fons wives, or any of them; fuch doubts or questions shall be decided and < determined

- determined by and according to fuch usual rules, customs, and
- laws, for place, precedency, privilege, or matters concerning them, as other degrees of dignity hereditary are ordered and
- them, as other degrees of dignity hereditary are ordered and adjudged.'

Upon the first erection of this dignity, there was paid by each admitted then into this order, the fum of one thousand ninety-five pounds, for the maintenance and support of thirty men, in the foot-forces, in the kingdom of Ireland, for the defence of that kingdom, and especially for the security of the plantation of the province of Ulster; but the end of the institution having long fince been answered, the state of that kingdom and province being entirely fettled, it has fince been customary, upon the creation of any one into this dignity, to remit this money; in order whereto, a warrant is issued by his Majesty, directed to the treafurer, chancellor, under treasurer, and barons of the exchequer, &c. to cause a tally to be struck in the exchequer, purporting the payment thereof, (the antient form being retained,) as if it actually had been paid, and accordingly, they have their quietus out of the exchequer; the form of which warrant is in these words:

Charles the Second, by the grace of God, King of Eng-I land, Scotland, France, and Ireland, defender of the faith, To the treasurer, chancellor, under-treasurer, and baforms of our exchequer, and to all other our officers and mi-Iniffers of the same court, now and for the time being, to whom it shall or may appertain, greeting: Whereas our wellbeloved subject, George Moore, of Mayds Morton, in the county of Bucks, Esquire, for and in respect of the dignity of a baronet to be conferred upon him, did voluntarily offer unto us aid for the maintenance of thirty footmen in our army within our realm of Ireland, for three whole years. And whereas the money to that end, and in such cases usually paid, amounteth to the sum of one thousand ninety and five pounds, of lawful money of England, which hath been accustomably paid into the receipt of our exchequer. And whereas we are resolved to confer on him the said dignity of baronet, and yet upon just and honourable causes us moving, we are well pleased, that the said George Moore, his heirs, executors, administrators and affigns, and every of them, shall for ever, and at all times hereafter, be acquitted and dif- charged of and from the aforesaid sum of one thousand ninety and five pounds, and of all other fum and fums of money, pay-⁶ able, or which have been accustomed to be paid to us, or to our use, for and in respect of the dignity of baronet. ve therefore, that for the indemnity of the faid George Ma his heirs, executors, administrators and affigns, in that be and to the intent that they and every of them may be form freed, as aforefaid, we do hereby give power and authority you, and will and require you, and every of you, to what shall or may apertain, to levy and strike, or cause to be vied and stricken, in our faid exchequer, a tally, purport the payment of the faid fum of one thou fand ninety and pounds, to our use, in as ample manner as if the famely been paid into the receipt of our exchequer, and to do m other necessary act or acts, whereby the faid George Mon his heirs, executors, administrators, and affigns, and his their, and every of their manors, lands, tenements, goods chattels, may be for ever hereafter fully and wholly discharge of the faid fum of one thousand ninety and five pounds, and f and from payment, or answering unto us, our heirs or & ceffors, of the same, or any part thereof, or of any other or fums of money due, or answerable by the faid Gene Moore, for or in respect of his said title or dignity of b " ronet, and may be freed from molestation, vexation, or to ble of the officers or ministers of us, our heirs or success for, or in respect of the said fine, sum or sums of money, be paid for his faid title, or dignity of baronet, in any e ner of wife; and these presents, or the enrolment thered's our faid court of exchequer, shall be unto all men whom ' shall concern, a sufficient warrant and discharge for the ing and executing of all and fingular the premiffes, according ' to our pleasure herein declared. Given under our priryat our palace of Westminster, the fix and twentieth days Inne, in the seventeenth year of our reign. I. MATHEN. OF

TOUCHING place of precedency, it is first to be noted, that persons of every degree of honour, or dignity, take place according to the seniority of their creation, and not of years, unless descended of the blood royal, in which case they have place of all others of the same degree.

The younger sons of the preceding rank take place from the eldest son of the next mediate, viz. the younger sons of dukes, from the eldest sons of earls; the younger sons of earls, from

There have been some alterations made as to precedency, (as may be observed by inspecting the tables,) and therefore some exceptions will appear to some of the foregoing rules, by some decrees and establishments of King James I. and King Charles I. whereby all the sons of viscounts and barons are allowed to precede baronets. And the eldest sons and daughters of baronets have place given them before the eldest sons and daughters of any knights, of what degree or order soever, though superior to that of a baronet; (these being but temporary dignities, whereas that of baronets is hereditary;) and the younger sons of baronets are to have place next after the eldest sons of knights. (See the Decrees.)

Ē

Note also, that as there are some great officers of state, who take place (although they are not noblemen) above the nobility of higher degree; so there are-some persons, who, for their dignities in the church, degrees in the universities, and inns of court, officers in the state, or army, (although they are neither knights, nor gentlemen born,) yet take place amongst them. Thus, all colonels and field-officers, (who are honourable,) as also master of the artillery, and quarter-master general; doctors of divinity, law, physic, and music; deans, chancellors, prebendaries, heads of colleges in the univerlities, and ferjeants at law, are, by courtefy, allowed place before ordinary efquires. And all batchelors of divinity, law, physic, and music; masters of arts, barrifters in the inns of courts; lieutenant colonels, majors, captains, and other commissioned military officers; and divers patent officers in the King's houshold, may equal, if not precede, gentlemen who have none of these qualifications.

Ιa

In towns corporate, the inhabitants of cities (and here those of the capital or metropolitan city are the first rankel) are preserved to those of boroughs; and those who have bore magistracy, to all others. And herein a younger alderman or bailey takes not precedency from his senior, by being knighted, or as being the elder knight, as was the case of alderman before all the rest who were knights at the coronation of King James. This is to be understood as to public meetings relating to the town; for it is doubted whether it will hold good in any neutral place. It has been also determined in the Heralds of sice, that all who have been lord mayors of London shall every where take place of all knights-batchelors, because they have been the King's lieutenants.

It was likewise adjudged in the case of Sir John Crook, sejeant at law, by the judges in court, that such series as wer his seniors, though not knighted, should have presence notwithstanding his knighthood.—Sir George Mackenzie, of Prese-

All colonels are honourable, and by the law of arms ought precede simple knights.—Gwillim's Display, &c.

Women, before marriage, have precedency by their father; but there is this difference between them and the male children, that the same precedency is due to all the daughters that is due to the eldest; but it is not so among the sons.

By marriage, a woman participates of her husband's diguities; but none of the wife's dignities can come by marriage to her husband, but are to descend to her next heir.

If a woman have precedency by creation, descent, or birth, the retains the same, though she marries an inferior. But it is observable, that if a woman nobly born marry any noble man, as a baron, she shall take place according to the degree of her husband, though she be a duke's daughter.

A woman, privileged by marriage with one of noble degree, shall retain the privilege due to her by her husband, though to should be degraded by forfeiture, &c.; for crimes are personal.

-Mackenzie, of Precedency.

The wife of the eldest son of any degree takes place of the daughters of the same degree, (who always have place immediately after the wives of such eldest sons,) and both of them take place of the younger sons of the preceding degree. Thus, the lady of the eldest son of an earl, takes place of an earl's daughter, and both of them precede the wife of the younger son of a marquis; also the wife of any degree precedes the wife of the eldest son of the preceding degree. Thus, the wife of a marquis, precedes the wife of the eldest son of a duke.

This holds, not only in comparing degrees, but also families of the same degree amongst themselves; for instance, the daughter of a senior earl yields place to the wife of a junior earl's eldest son. Though if such daughter be an heires, she will then be allowed place before the wives of the eldest sons of all younger earls.—Segar, p. 240.

OF THE

O F

Nova-Scotia Baronets.

HE order of Baronet, in Scotland, was erected for advancing the plantation of Nova Scotia, in America, and for fettling a colony there, to which the aid of these knights was defigned. The order was only intended by King James VI. before his death, for in his first charter of Nova Scotia, in favour of Sir William Alexander, 10 September, 1621, and in another charter, granted to Sir Robert Gordon, of Lochinvar, of a part of Nova Scotia, defigned the barony of Galloway, 8 November, 1621, there is no mention made of this order: so that the same was only crected by King Charles I. anno 1625. In the several patents granted to baronets, his majesty did dispose to each of these knights a certain portion of land in Nova Scotia, erecting the same into a free barony, with great and ample privileges: and morcover, for their encouragement, did erect, create, make, constitute, and ordain, that heritable state, degree, dignity, name, order, title and stile of baronet, to be enjoyed by every of these gentlemen, who did hazard for the good and increase of that plantation; and so preferred them to that order and title, creating them, and their heirs male, heritable baronets, in all time coming, with the place, pre-eminency, priority, and precedency, in all commissions, breeves, letters patents, namings, and writs, and in all fessions, con ventions, congregations, and places, at all times and occasions whatsoever, before all knights called Equites aurati, all lesser barons, commonly called Lairds, and before all other gentlemen, excepting Sir William Alexander, his Majesty's lieutenant of Nova Scotia, who (with his heirs, their wives, and children) is not only excepted in each of these letters-patents granted to the knights, his companions, but likewise the charter granted to himfelf, by King Charles I. 1625, did bear exprefly this exception and provision: as also, excepting knightsbannerets, who should be created under the royal standard, in his Majesty's army, and in open war, the king himself being prefent, and that during the banneret's lifetime only; and with precedency before all of the fame order, whose patents are of a posterior date. His Majesty did moreover declare and ordain, that the wives of these baronets, and of their heirs male, should have the precedency, as well after, as before the deaths of their husbands, if they should happen to survive, before the wives of all those, of whom the knights-baronets, and their heirs male had the precedency, and even before the wives of knights-bannerets, before excepted (the degree of baronet being heritable); and also that the children, male and female of the baronets, should take place before the children, male and female, respectively, of all persons, of whom the baronets, and their heirs male, had the priority, and likewise before the children of the bannerets; and that the wives of the fons of the baronets, and of their heirs male, should precede the wives of all persons whom their husbands might precede, and that as well their husbands being dead as living. And further, his Majesty did declare, and promise, that whensoever the eldest sons, and heirs male of the baronets, should attain to the age of twent-one years, they should be, by his Majesty, and his successors, created, Equites awrati, or knights batchelors, without payment of any fines or dues for the fame, providing they should defire But here it is to be observed, that some of the eldest sons of baronets pretend to the title of knight, at their being of age, by virtue of this clause, without any previous defire or dubbing; which certainly is an error, for if they will not be at the pains to defire it of his Majesty, or his commissioner, they should not assume it. Likewise, his Majesty did declare and ordain, that the baronets and their heirs male, should, as an addition of honour to their armorial enfigns, bear either on a canton, or in escutcheon, in their option, the ensign of Nova Scotia, being Argent, a Cross of St. Andrew, Azure, (the badge of Scotland, counterchanged,) charged with an escutcheon of the royal arms of Scotland; supported on the dexter by the royal Unicorn, and on the finister, by a Savage, or wild Man, proper; and for the Crest, a branch of Laurel, and a Thistle, issuing from two Hands, conjoined, the one being armed, and the other naked, with this Motto, Munit hac et altera vincit. And that they, and their heir heirs male, should, in all time coming, have place, in all his Majesty's and his successors armies, near and about the royal strandard, for the defence thereof. And that they and their heirs male may have two attenders of the body, for bearing up the pall, one principal mourner, and four affiftants, at their funerals; and that they should be always called, intituled, and defigned, by the name and title of Baronet, and that in all Scottish speeches, and writings, the addition of Sir, and in all other discourses and writings, a word and that the flile and title of baronet should be subjoined thereto in all letters patent and other writs whatfoever, as a necessary addition of dignity, and that each of them should be intitled, Sir A. B. Baronet; and his, and his fons wives, should enjoy the stile, title, and appellation of Lady, Madam, and Dame, respectively, according to the usual phrase in speaking and writing. And also his Majesty did thereby promise, that the number of the baronets, as well in Scotland, as the new colony of Nova Scotia, should never exceed the number of 150, (though this number is at present somewhat augmented,) and did likewise declare, that he, nor his successors, should never create, nor erect, in time coming, any other dignity, degree, file, name, order, title, or flate, nor should give the priority or precedency to any person or persons, under the stile, degree, and dignity of a lord of parliament of Scotland, which should be, or should be presumed to be higher, superior, or equal to that of baronet: and that the baronet should have liberty to take place before any fuch who should happen to be created of any such degree or order; and that their wives, sons, daughters, and fons wives, should have their places accordingly; and that if any question or doubt should arise about their places and prerogatives, the same should be decided and judged according to these laws and customs, by which other degrees of heritable dignities have their privileges cognosced and determined. And finally, that none should be created baronet, either of Scotland or Nova Scotia, till he had first fulfilled the conditions designed by his Majesty for the good and encrease of that plantation, and until he had certified the same to the King, by his Majesty's lieutenant there.

These patents were ratified in parliament, and were always in this form, till the selling of Nova Scotia to the French, after which time they were made much shorter, and granted in general terms, with all the privileges, precedencies, &c. of the former baronets. And in the year 1629, his Majesty did allow these baronets a particular cognizance, which will be best known by the copy of the following letter, directed by his Majesty King Charles I. to the privy-council of Scotland.

Right trusty and right well-beloved cousin and counsellor, right trusty and well-beloved cousins and counsellors, and right trusty and well-beloved counsellors, we greet you well;

Whereas, upon good confideration, and for the better advance ment of the plantation of New-Scotland, which may much import the good of our fervice, and the honour and benefit of that our antient kingdom, our royal father did intend, and we fince have erected the order and title of baronet in our faid ancient kingdom, which we have fince established and conferred the same on divers gentlemen of good quality. And see-fing our trufty and well-beloved counsellor, Sir William Alexf ander, Knt. our principal fecretary of that our antient kingdom of Scotland, and our lieutenant of New-Scotland, who these many years past hath been at great charges for the discof very thereof, hath now a colony there, where his fon, Sir William, is now resident; and we being most willing to asford all the possible means of encouragement that conveniently we can, to the baronets of that our antient kingdom, for the furtherance of so good a work, and to the effect they may be ! honoured and have place in all respects, according to their patents from us, we have been pleased to authorize and allow, as by these presents, for us and our successors, we authorize s and allow the said lieutenant and baronets, and every one of them, and their heirs male, to wear and carry about their necks in all time coming, an orange-tawny filk ribbon, s whereon shall hang pendant, in an escutcheon, Argent, a Saltire, Azure, thereon an escutcheon of the Arms of Scot- land, with an imperial Crown above the Scutcheon, and incircled with this Motto: Fax Mentis Honesta Gloria; which se cognisance our said present lieutenant shall deliver now to them from us, that they may be the better known and distinguished from other persons: and that none pretend ignorance for the respect due unto them, our pleasure therefore is, that by open proclamation at the market-cross of Edinburgh, and of • all other head burghs of our kingdom, and such other places as you shall think necessary, you intimate our royal pleafure and intention herein, to all our subjects. And if any person, out of neglect or contempt, shall presume to take place or precedency of the faid baronets, their wives, or children, which is due unto them by their patents, or to wear their f cognisance, we will, that upon notice thereof given to you, you punish such offenders, by fining or imprisoning them, as you shall think fitting, that others may be terrified from atf tempting the like. And we ordain, that from time to time, • as occasion of granting or renewing their patents, or their 's heirs succeeding to the dignity, shall offer, that the said power to them to carry the faid ribbon and cognifance, shall be therein particularly granted and inferted. And we likewise ordain that these presents be inserted and registered in the books of our f council and exchequer, and that you cause a register of the fame in the books of the Lyon King of Arms, and Heralds, there to remain ad futurum rei memoriam; and that all parties interested may have authentic copies and extracts thereof. And for your so doing, these our letters shall be unto you, s and every one of you, from time to time, your sufficient warf rant and discharge in that behalf. Given at our court at Whitehall, the 17th November, 1629, in the fifth year of our · reign,

AS ARE OF

AND

GASCOIGNE, of Barnbow, Yorkshire.

Created BARONET by King Charles I.

HIS is a family of very great antiquity, and their surname, in old evidences, &c. hath been varied nineteen ways, as, Gaskin, Gauscin, Gascoigne, Gascoygne, Gascoinge, Gascovn, Gascun, Gasken, Gaskyn, Gaskun, Gaston, Gastone, Gastoyn, Gastoynge, Gasquin, Gosquyne, Gawsken, Vascon, and Guascogn.

The first we meet with is, William Gascoigne, father of another William, whose son, William, had issue William Gascoigne, whose son, William Gascoigne, of Harwood, married Elizabeth, daughter and heir of William Bolton, and had issue, William, who married Mansild, daughter and coheir of John de Gawkethorp, and had issue, William Gascoigne, of Gawthorp, Gawthorp, who took to wife, Agnes, daughter and coheir of Mr. Nicholas Franke, and had iffue five fons and two daughters; 1. Sir William; 2. Nicholas Gascoigne, of Lasingcrost, of whom hereaster; 3. Richard, of Hunslet, who died 1422, (leaving, by Anne, daughter and coheir of Henry Ellis, Esq; one son, Dr. Thomas Gascoigne, vice-chancellor of Oxford, a very learned man, and much esteemed by the divines of that age, and author of several treatises, who died 1457, S. P. and two daughters, Alice, married to Sir Thomas Neville; and Elizabeth, to Sir John Everingham, Knts.) 4. Thomas; and 5. John, a clerk: the daughters were, Anne, married to Robert Constable, Knt. and Elizabeth, to John Aske, of Ol-stroppe.

Sir William, the eldest son*, was born at Gawthorp, in Harwood parish, (between Leeds and Knaresborough) and afterwards was a student of the law, in the Inner-Temple, London, wherein he fo profited, that, being knighted, was made lord chief justice of the king's bench, in the first year of Henry IV. and therein demeaned himself with much integrity; but most eminent for the following passage: 'It happened that a fervant of prince Henry (afterwards the fifth English King of that christian name) was arraigned before this judge for selony; whom the prince, then present, endeavoured to take away, coming up in fuch fury that the beholders believed he would have stricken the judge. But he sitting without moving, according to the majesty he represented, committed the prince f prisoner to the king's-bench, there to remain until the pleafure of the King, his father, were known, who, when he heard thereof by fome pick-thank courtier (who probably expected a contrary return), gave God thanks for his infinite egoodness, who at the same instant had given him a judge who could minister, and a son, who could obey, justice. Another historian makes King Henry thus express himself, in relation to that lord chief justice; 'For which act of justice, I shall ever hold him worthy of the place, and my favour; and with all my judges to have the like undaunted courage to punish offenders, of what rank foever.' Another historian mentions to his honour, that when Richard le Scrope, archbishop of York, brother to William le Scrope, earl of Wiltshire, (both fons of Richard le Scrope, lord-chancellor of England, temps Ric. II.) was tricked out of his life, by the subtilty of the earl of Westmoreland, Henry commanded this lord chief-justice Gascoign to pronounce sentence against the archbishop, as a traitor to his king and country; but this upright and memorable judge, as my author stiles him, answered the King in this manner; Neither you, my lord the King, nor any liegemen of yours in your name, can legally, according to the rights of the kingdom; edjudge any bishop to death; for which reason he absolutely refused to try the archbishop. Henry, greatly incensed at Gascoign, for his bold denial of his orders, commanded Sir Witliam Fulthorpe, a lawyer, but no judge, to pronounce sentence of death against our prelate, and this man servilely obeyed the or-The chief-justice died Dec. 17, 1412, having had two wives; first, Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Alexander Mowbray, of Kirtlington, Esq; by whom he had one son, William Gascoigne, of Gawthorp, Esq; who married Jane, daughter and heir of Sir Henry Wyman, Knt. and had issue Sir William Gascoigne, of Gawthorp, high sherist of Yorkshire, 20 Hens VI. who by Margaret, daughter of Thomas Carrel, relict of John Fitz-Williams, had iffue four fons, and five daughters: 1. PILKINGTON, of Stainley, Yorkshire.

^{*} Dr. Plot mentions it as observable, that there were nine Sir Edwards, successively, of the family of Littleton, (of Pillaton-Hall,) but of this of the Gascoignes, were no fewer than fifteen Williams, (of whom fix were knights,) in a lineal defector, viz. seven before, and seven after the celebrated Sir William Gascoigne, chief-justice in the reign of Henry IV. though, as Mr. Erdswick, and Camden truly observe, there is an inconvenience herein, and if a man should be forced to prove his descent, this identity of names would strangely perplex it. Thoresby's Leeds, p. 605.

Created BARONET, June 29, 1635.

HIS family had its first rise in Lancashire, and descended from Leonard Pilkington, lord of Pilkington-tower, or Stand, in that county, in the reign of King Henry I.

Sir

Sir Edmund and Sir Thomas Pilkington were brothers, and the first knights of the family, and great great-grandchildren to the above-mentioned Leonard Pilkington.

Sir Thomas was heir to his brother, Sir Edmond, and married Isabel, daughter to Sir John Warren, of Poynton, in Chefhire, Knt. and had issue, Sir Thomas Pilkington, from whom descended Sir James, who had four sons, who were all knights, viz. Sir Thomas, Sir Charles, Sir John, and Sir James; and of three different orders of knigothood; the first and second sons were knights-batchelors; the third, knight of the Bath; and the fourth, knight of Rhodes, in 10 Edw. IV.

From Leonard Pilkington also descended James Pilkington, one of the fix divines appointed for correcting the common-prayer, for which, and other services, he was by Queen Elizabeth appointed bishop of Durham, 1560, and continued in that see fixteen years, and died 1676, and lies entombed in that cathedral.

From Leonard, aforefaid, was Thomas Pilkington, of Nether-Bradley, in Yorkshire, Esq; the twelsth in a lineal descent; he married Barbara, daughter of Lionel Reresby, of Thribergh, in Yorkshire, Esq; and had issue Thomas Pilkington, of Nether-Bradley, Esq; who by Frances, daughter of Sir Francis Rhodes, of Woodthorpe, and Balbrough, in Derbyshire, Knt. one of the justices of the common pleas, had issue, Arthur, Richard, and Mary, married to Sir Ferdinando

Lee, of Middleton, in Yorkshire, Knt.

Sir Arthur Pilkington, Knt. fon and heir, was advanced to the dignity of a baronet of Nova Scotia, by his Majesty King Charles I. He married Ellen, daughter of Henry Lyon, of Roxby, in Lincolnshire, Esq; (descended from Sir John Lyon, Knt. lord-mayor of London,) by whom he had two sons, Sir Lyon, his successor, and Moyle, who died unmarried; and three daughters, Catharine, married to John Lowe, of Denby, in Derbyshire, Esq; Mary, to Lionel Bamsord, of Pynehill, in Yorkshire, Esq; and Rosamond. Sir Arthur died in the time of the civil wars, between the year 1641 and 1648.

Sir Lyon Pilkington, Bart. for and heir, married two wives, first, a daughter of Sir Thomas Newton, by whom he had no iffue; fecondly, Phebe, daughter of Robert Moyle, of Buckwell, in Kent, Esq; by whom he had Sir Lyon, his successor, and Phebe; and died in the year 1684.

Sir Lyon Pilkington, Bart. his only fon and heir, married also twice; first, Amy, daughter and heir of Thomas Eggleton, of Grove, and Ellesbrough, in Buckinghamshire, Esq; by whom he had, Sir Lyon, his successor; Thomas, who died S. P. John, Eggleton, and sour others; his second Lady was, Lenox, sole daughter and beir of Cuthbert Harrison, of Acaster-Selby, in Yorkshire, Esq; (and grand-daughter, by the mother's side, to lord Langdale, of Holme,) by whom he left no issue, and died in 1714, being succeeded in dignity and estate by his eldest son.

Sir Lyon Pilkington, Bart. who married Anne, daughter of Sir Michael Wentworth, of Woolley, in Yorkshire, Knt. and lest sive sons, and two daughters; Sir Lionel, his successor; John, Charles, Michael, and Harrison. One of these sons married Judith, eldest daughter of the Rev. Mr. Nettleton, formerly rector of Bulwick, in Northamptonshire, but had no issue. The daughters of Sir Lyon, were, Dorethea and Catharine. He died in 1716, when his eldest son and successor, Sir Lionel, erected a very handsome monument to his memory in Wakesheld church.

Sir Lionel Pilkington, eldest son, and successor to his father in dignity and estate, served the office of high sheriff for the county of York, in 1741, and is said to be the present baronet.

SLINGSBY, of Scriven, Yorkshire.

Created BARONET, Oct. 23, 1628.

IR Thomas Widdrington, Knt, recorder of York, in his manuscripts recorded by Mr. Drake, has been so particular in his description of Redhouse, and of this name and family, that I shall give it in his own words.

Redhouse nath been of late a seat of the Slingsbys: Sir Ilenry Slingsby, the elder, that last was, having built a fair house here. But Scriven, near Knaresborough, is a much more antient seat of this family; for William de Slingsby, their ancestor, married the daughter and heir of Thomas de

Scriven, by which marriage he had Scriven, and many other good possessions. He had also the office of forester of the forester and parks of Knaresborough; in which family of Seriven that office had antiently been, as appears by an nquifi-

tion which I have feen at Knaresborough, the second year of King Edward, the fon of King Edward. Slingsby, by this marriage, became heir to Thomas de Walfingham, whose daughter and heir Scriven had formerly married. One of the ancestors of Slingsby did also marry a daughter and heir of William de Nessfield, by which he had accession also of the manors of Scotton, Brereton, and Thorpe; touching which, I find a controverfy between John, King of Caffile and Leon, duke of Lancaster, commonly called John of Gaunt, on the one part, and William de Gargrave, and Hykedon de Slingfby, who had married the two daughters and heirs of William de Nessfield, on the other part. The duke claimed by purchase from Nessfield, and the two heirs by an entail. controversy is in an indenture written in French, dated July 26, anno 1287; a copy of which was shewn me by Henry Slingfby, of Kippax, Efq; the fon and heir of Sir William Slingsby, who was a younger fon of this family, The controverfy is, by that indenture, referred to twelve of the best knights and esquires of the county of York, near Scotton.'

William de Slingsby, by the heir of Scriven, before-mentioned, had two sons, Richard, living 32 Edw. III. who died issueless; and Gilbert Slingsby, living about the same time, who, by ————, daughter of William Calverley, had issue William, who married Elizaberh, daughter of Thomas Banks, of Whixley, and had issue, Richard, his son and heir, who married Anne, daughter and coheir of John Nessfield, of Nessfield, and had issue, William, who, by Joan, daughter of Sir Robert Plumpton, of Plumpton, Knt. was father of William, John, Robert, Thomas, and Agnes, wifeto Thomas Knaresburgh.

William Slingsby, of Scriven, Esq; son and heir, married Jennet, daughter of Sir John Melton, of Aston, near Rotherham, in Yorkshire, Knt. and had iffue,

John Slingsby, of Scriven, Esq; son and heir, chief forester of Knaresborough, who married Joan, daughter of Walter Calverley, of Calverley, in Yorkshire, Esq; and had issue, John; Jane, prioress of Nun-Monkton; Margery, wife of John Coghill; and Margaret, married to William Tancred, Eigrs.

John Slingsby, Esq; son and heir, married Marioria, daughter of Simon Poley, of Badley, in Suffolk, Esq; by whom he had three sons, and three daughters; 1. Thomas, of whom hereafter; 2. Peter; 3. Simon; which Simon, the youngest son, had three sons, Christopher, Robert, and Peter; which Peter, the youngest, was father of Anthony Slingsby, Esq; governor of Zutphen, in the Low-countries, who was advanced to the degree of an English baronet, Oct. 23, 1628; but dying without issue, in 1630, the title of an English baronet, in this branch, became extinct *. Of the three daughters of John, beforementioned, Anne married Thomas Swale; Margery, to Walter Pulleyn, of Scotton; and Isabel, to Thomas Langton, of Harrowgate, in the county of York, Esqs.

Thomas Slingsby, of Scriven, Esq; son and heir of John, married Joan, daughter and heir of John Mallory, of Studley, in Yorkshire, Knt. by whom he had six sons; Francis, of whom hereafter: Marmaduke, married to Elizabeth, daughter of Sir William Mallory, Knt. relict of Sir Robert Stapleton, of Wighill, in Yorkshire, Knt. Charles, William, Peter, and Thomas; and sour daughters; Joan, married to William Bassorth, of Thormanby, near York; Dorothy, to Francis Tancred, of Boroughbridge; Anne, to Robert Birnard, of Knaresborough; and Elizabeth, to Christopher Conyers, of Hornby, Efgrs.

Sir Francis Slingsby, of Scriven, Knt. son and heir, died A. D. 1600; he married Mary, daughter of Sir Thomas Peircy, Knt. fecond brother of Henry, earl of Northumberland, and fifter to Thomas and Henry, carls of Northumberland, (she died in 1598) by whom she had nine sons and three daughters; 1. Thomas, drowned in the river Nidd, æt. 28, S.P. 2. Francis; 3. Henry, who both died young; 4. Sir Henry, of whom hereafter; c. Arthur, who died S. P. 1588; 6. Charles, (but fecond son living) B. D. rector of Rotherbury, in Northumberland, who married Ely, daughter of John Ellis, of Barnburgh, in Yorkshire, and had issue, Thomas, æt. 27, 1617; Margaret, married to Thomas Barret, of York, and Mary, ætat. 20, 1617:) 7. Sir William Slingsby, Knt. * Unless the title was limited to Sir Henry Slingsby, Bart. who was beheaded, and the heirs male of his body; for him I find the next baronet of this family.

[†] He purchased the essate of Kippax, of Francis Bailden, Esq; from whom descended Anthony Slingsby, Esq; the last heir male of this branch, who died unmarried, April 3, 1697, whereupon the estate descended to his sister Elizabeth, wife of Adlard Cage, of Thavis-Inn, in Middlesex, Gent. and daughter to Henry Slingsby, Esq; master of the mint, by _______, daughter of Sir ______ Cage. Mr. Thoresby mentions this Henry, master of the mint, as of Kippax, in the neighbourhood of Leeds, and a curious artist, to whom his Museum is indebted; but says, (p. 6.) Henry Slingsby, Esq; master of the mint, married Catharine, daughter of Sir William Lowther, of Great-Preston, Knt.

Guilford, Robert, Piercy, Walter, George, Francis, Sir Arthur Slingsby, knighted by King Charles II. at Brussels, June 24, 1657, (and, as I take it, created a baronet by patent, dated at Brussels, Oct. 19, 1657, which title is extinct) and William; also four daughters; Dorothy, married to Jeffery Nightengale, of Knesworth, in Cambridgeshire; Margaret, Mary, and Anne; 9. Sir Francis Slingsby, Knt. of Kilmore, in Corke, in Ireland; he was constable of Holyboling-cassel, in Cork, and one of the King's council, in Munster, and married Elizabeth, daughter and coheir to Hugh Cust, of Custhall, in Somersetshire, Esq; and had issue, Francis, Henry, Mary, Catharine, Anne, Elizabeth, and Jane. The daughters of Sir Francis were, Eleanor, and Anne, who died young; and Catharine.

Sir Henry Slingsby, Knt. fourth, but eldest surviving son of Sir Francis, was chief forester of the forest and parks of Knaresburgh, and one of the King's council in the North, and high theriff of Yorkshire, 10 Jac. I. and died 1634; but by his wife, Frances, daughter of William Vavasor, of Weston, in Yorkthire, Esq; (by Elizabeth, his wife, daughter of Sir Leonard Beckwith, of Selby, Knt. and Elizabeth, his wife, daughter and heir of Sir Roger Cholmondely, chief-justice of England, 30 H. VIII.) he had three fons and fix daughters; 1. William, killed at Florence, S. P. 2. Sir Henry, of whom hereafter; 3. Thomas, who died in France, unmarried. The daughters were, 1. Elizabeth, married to Sir Thomas Metcalf, Knt. 2. Mary, to Sir Walter Bethell, of Alne, in Yorkshire, Knt. Catharine, wife to Sir John Fenwick, Knt. and Bart. 4. Alice, to Thomas Waterton, Esq; 5. Frances, to Bryan Stapleton, of Myton, Esq; 6. Eleanor, to Sir Arthur Ingram, Knt. father of Henry, lord viscount Irwin.

 * veved their names down to posterity; which in after-ages * will look upon them with the greatest honour and veneration, * for the indignity put upon them by the rude multitude.' My lord Clarendon gives the following account of his services and sufferings for the royal cause:

Sir Henry Slingsby, Mr. Mordaunt, and Dr. Hewet, having been active for the King's service, were apprehended, with feveral others, by Cromwell's order, and committed to gaol, and a high court of Juffice was erected for the trial of them: of this court, John Lisse, who gave his vote in the King's 6 blood, and continued an entire confident and infirument of "Cromwell's, was prefident. There were first brought to be tried, John Merdaunt, Sir Harry Slingsby, a gentleman of a e very antient family, and of a very ample fortune, in Yorkfhire; and Dr. Hewet, an eminent preacher in London, and e very orthodox. Mr. Mordaunt was brought first to trial; but denying the legality of the court, was carried back to the Tower, to confider what he would do next day. Sir Harry Slingsby was called next. He knowing nothing of or for the other resolution, pleaded not guilty, and so was sent to prifon, to be tried in his turn. Dr. Hewet refused to plead, as Mr. Mordaunt had done, and so was remitted to prison. Mr. " Mordaunt, next day, pleaded not guilty, but escaped by moe ney and friends, being found innocent by the court. But Sir Harry Slingsby and Dr. Hewet had worse fortune: and their blood was the more eagerly thirsted after for the other's indemnity; and the court was too severely reprehended to cominit the same fault again. Sir Harry had been two years in prison in Hull, and was brought now up to the Tower, for fear they might not discover enough of any new plot, to make so many formidable examples as the present conjuncture required. They had against him evidence enough (besides his · incorrigible fidelity to the crown, from the first assaulting it) that he had contrived and contracted with some officers of 'Hull, about the time that the earl of Rochester had been in "Yorkshire, two years before, for the delivery of one of the block-houses to him, for the King's service. Nor did he care to defend himfelf against the accusation, but rather ac-' knowledged and justified his affection, and owned his loyalty to the King, with very little compliment or ceremony to the present power. Dr. Hewet, receiving no information of Mr. Mordaunt's pleading, but being brought to the bar, persisted ' in denying the legality of the court, though afterwards he would have pleaded, and put himself on his trial, but then was refuted, whereupon fentence of death was pronounced s against them both, which they underwent with great christian courage.

Sir Harry Slingsby, as is said before, was in the first rank of the gentlemen of Yorkshire; and was returned to serve as a member in the parliament that continued so many years. where he fat till the troubles began; and having no relation to, or dependance upon the court, he was swayed only by his conscience to detest the violent and undutiful behaviour of that parliament. He was a gentleman of a good understanding, but of a very melancholic nature, and of very few words: and when he could flay no longer with a good confcience in their councils, in which he never concurred, he went into his country, and joined with the first who took up arms for the King. And when the war was ended, he remained still in his house, prepared and disposed to run the fortune of the crown, in any other attempt. And having a good fortune, and a general reputation, had a greater influence upon the people than they who talked more and louder; and was known to be irreconcileable to the new government; and therefore was cut off, notwithstanding very great intercession to preserve him: for he was uncle to the lord Falconbridge, who had engaged his wife, and all his new allies, to intercede for him, without effect. When he was brought to die, he spent very little time in discourse; but told them, he was to die for being an honest man, of which he was very " glad."

He married Barbara, daughter of Thomas Bellasis, the first viscount Fauconberg, so created by King Charles I. by whom he left two sons, Sir Thomas, his successor, and Henry, who was of the bedchamber to King Charles II. and one daughter, Barbara, married to Sir John Talbot, of Lacock, in Wilts, Knt.

Sir Thomas Slingsby, Bart. his eldest son and successor, was high sheriff of Yorkshire, 14 Car. II. and representative in parliament for Knaresborough, in 1678, and 1681; and Scarborough, in 1685; he married Dorothy, daughter and coheir of George Cradock, of Caversall-castle, in Staffordshire, Esq; slord Cholmondley married the other sister) by whom he had two sons, Sir Henry, his successor; and Sir Thomas, successor to his brother; and a daughter, Barbara, married first to Sir Richard Maleverer, of Allerton-Malleverer, in Yorkshire, Bart. secondly, to John lord Arundel of Trerice; and thirdly, to Thomas earl of Pembroke and Montgomery.

Sir Henry Slingsby, Bart, eldest son and heir, represented the borough of Knaresborough, in parliament, 1685, and died unmarried about the year 1692, and was succeeded in dignity and estate by his next brother,

Sir Thomas Slingsby Bart, who married Sarah, daughter of John Savile, of Methley, in Yorkshire, Esq; by whom he had sour sons, Sir Tnomas, Sir Savile, successively baronets, and Charles, who married Mrs. Turner, of Yorkshire; and two daughters, Mary, who was maid of honour to Queen Anne, and married to Thomas Duncombe, of Hemsley, in the county of York, Esq; then member of parliament for Rippon, and had one son, Thomas, now living. The other daughter was Barbara, who died unmarried.

Sir Henry Slingsby, Bart. his eldest son and successor, was chosen member of parliament for Knaresborough, in the last parliament of Queen Anne, for which corporation he was again elected in the second parliament of King George I. and served for the same place till his death. He married a daughter of John Aislabie, of Studley-Park, Yorkshire, Esq; late Chancellor of the Exchequer, by whom he had no issue. This lady died at Beconssield, in Bucks, May 31, 1736, and Sir Henry in January, 1763, who was succeeded by his next brother,

Sir Thomas Slingsby, Bart, who had the misfortune many years to be blind. He died, unmarried, soon after his coming to the title, and was succeeded by his brother,

Sir Savile Slingsby, who is the present baronet, and unmarried.

Musgrave, of Hayton-Castle, Cumberland.

Created BARONET, Oct. 20, 1638.

THE Musgraves originally were Germans, as the name plainly imports, being dignified by the title of Musgraves, or lords of the marshes and mosses; which family, in process of time, became so considerable, that one of their descendants had an archduchess of Austria given him in marriage. The traditional history is this: The emperor had two great generals in his army, who made court to his daughter at the same time; and as he had received fingular fervices from both, did not care to prefer one before the other; but to decide the matter, ordered the two heroes to run at the ring for her, an exercise then in use; it so happened that this Musgrave, one of the contending generals, had the fortune to pierce the ring with the point of his spear; by which action he gained that princess, for a reward of his dexterity; and had fix Annulets, 3, 2, 1, Or, on a Field, Azure, given him for his coat of Arms; and for his Crest, two Arms, in armour, holding an Annulet.

From this marriage issued that Musgrave, who was the first founder of the Musgraves in England; for, being a man of an enterprising genius, he accompanied William the conqueror in his expedition into England, 1066, and was instrumental in placing him on the throne; and being likewise in great favour with the conqueror's son, that prince, to whom the King his father had given the government of the five northern counties, allotted Scalebye-castle, in Cumberland, with several manors, and considerable portions of lands, to this savourite, as a gratuity for his eminent services, most of which are in the possession of the Musgraves at this day: and so it was that they were placed in the North.

But no clear account can be given of them from that time to the civil wars; the antient records of the family (to prove their genealogy) perishing in the slames at Scalebye-castie, (a garrifon of Sir Edward Musgrave, Bart. which he held out for King Charles I. till it was burnt by Oliver Cromwell's adherents, which forced him to betake himself to his other garrison of Hayaton-castle, which he strenuously defended to the utmost extremity,) except only that a few descents from the reign of King Henry VI. to Sir Edward Musgrave, the first baronet, are insectibed on the monuments, and still legible in the samily buryingrying-place, viz. Nicholas Musgrave, who married Margaret, daughter and heires of William Covel, of Hayton-castle, in the county of Cumberland, Gent. in or about the reign of Hen. VI. by which marriage he became possessed of all that estate and lordship; and died in the year 1438.

His fon and heir, Thomas Musgrave, married Elizabeth, daughter of the lord Dacre, of Gillesland, and died A.D. 1506. His eldest fon, William, married Isabel, daughter and coheires of James Martindale, of Newton, in the county of Cumberland, Esq; in whose right the manor of Newton came to this family, and died in the year 1532.

His fon, Sir Edward Musgrave, Knt. married Catharine, daughter of Sir Thomas Penruddock, of Exeter, in the county of Devon, Knt. Sir Edward was lord lieutenant of the county of Cumberland, and custos rotulorum, and justice of oyer and terminer, and sat as judge at Carlisse: he died in the year 1597, and left behind him one son, William, who married Catharine Sherburne, a coheiress of the samily of Sir Nicholas Sherburne, of the county of Lancaster, Knt. by whom he had a son, Edward, and a daughter, Eleanor, married to Sir Christopher Lowther, of Lowther, Knt. ancestor to the lord viscount Lonsdale, and to Sir James Lowther, Sir Thomas, and Sir William Lowther, Barts. and died A. D. 1608. He was succeeded by his son.

Sir Edward Musgrave, Bart. who was advanced to the dignity of a baronet of Nova Scotia. He married Mary, daughter of Sir Richard Graham, of Netherby, in the county of Cumberland, Bart. and left four fons: Sir Richard, his fuccessor; Edward, William, and Humphry; and four daughters, of which Jane married Sir Wilfrid Lawson, of Isell, in Cumberland, Knt. This Sir Edward greatly distinguished himself in the royal cause, and was made colonel by King Charles I. but raifed the regiment, and maintained it, at his own expence; for the support of which, and his royal mafter, he was necessitated to alienate above two thousand pounds a year of his paternal estate; viz. Soport, he fold to Sir George Graham, ancestor of the late lord viscount Preston; Kirklington, to Mr. Appleby; Houghton, to Mr. Forfter; Richardby, to Mr. Studholm; and Scalebye, to Dr. Gilpin; and had the remainder of it sequestered by Oliver, which was detained from the family till the restoration of King Charles II. This he did for the fervice of his King and country. Sir Edward likewise attended King Charles I. and II. in feveral memorable battles, and particularly at the battle of Worcefter, and when his Majesty's horse was shot under him there, Sir Edward mounted him upon his own horse, and shifted for VOL. himself till that satal battle was over, and escaped into Scotland, to the duke of Gordon's, for sanctuary, where he lay concealed some time, till the usurper heard of him, and sent a message to the duke, That if he did not forthwith deliver up Ned Musgrave, that arch rebel (as he termed him), he would send a troop of borse, and storm his castle. But the duke being a man of more honour than to betray a person sled to him for resuge, suffered him to escape thence to the isse of Man; soon after which he died, having raised for himself a lasting monument of honour and reputation.

Sir Richard, his eldest son, inherited his title and estate, and married Dorothy, daughter and coheir of William James, of Washington, in the county of Durham, Esq. grandson of bishop James, lord bishop of Durham, in the reign of King James I. by whom he had a part of the manor or lordship of Washing-This lady, by her great fortune and prudence, redeemed the family estate, which Sir Edward, through the civil wars, left much incumbered, and in a shattered condition, and greatly raised the family again. Sir Richard rebuilt from the ground. Hayton-castle, which had suffered much in those times by the fieges which the Oliverians had laid against it; and filled up the trenches, and took away the draw-bridges which were round it; and about the year 1601, rebuilt the family chapel, at Hayton-caffle, which had been consecrated 350 years before, and was dedicated to the bleffed Virgin Mary. Sir Richard was vice-admiral of the counties of Cumberland and Westmoreland. in the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, under his royal highness Prince George of Denmark, lord high-admiral of Great Britain; and died May 10, 1710, leaving five fons, and four daughters; 1. MEREDITH, of Ashley-Castle, Cheshire.

Created BARQNET, Jan. 2, 1639.

HIS is a family of great antiquity, being descended from Elystan, or Addlestan Gloddrydd, some time prince between Wey and Severn, who was godson of Addelstan, King of England, says Dr. Powell, in his history of Wales, and descended from Bellinus the Great, some time King of Great Britain, which Bellinus, or Bellyn, was the elder brother of Bren, or Brenus the Gaul, who sacked Rome.

Their descent from Elystan Gloddryd, who died, and was buried at Hereford, appears by an old parchment writing now in the samily, attested by Griffith Rice, of Newton, Edward Herbert, of Montgomery, John Pryce, of New-town, Esqrs. and leveral other gentlemen of figure and fortune.

This Elystan, was son of Kelythy, alias Keyhelyn, by Reingar, daughter and heir of Grono, earl of Hereford, which Grono was one of the sons of Tudor Trevor, who was earl of Hereford, in right of his mother, Rheingar, grandaughter and heir of Cariadock Vraichsias, earl of Hereford, and lord of Whittington, Bromsield, Chirke, Maelor, &c. and married Angaret, daughter of Howell Dda, King of all Wales.

From these illustrious ancestors descended Howell ap Maddock Llangynlo, Esq; who married Guenlian, daughter to David ap Rees, ap Howell, in the county of Brecknock, and had iffue, Lluellin ap Howell, of Llangynlo, Efq; who by Catharine, one of the daughters of Roger Vawr, of Llechrid, Esq; had iffue, David ap Lluellin, of Llangynlo, Esq; who took to wife Guenlian, daughter and fole heir of Maddock ap Jerworth, Esq; and was father of Howell ap David, of Llangynlo, who, by Joned, one of the daughters and heirs of Jo. Triftan, had iffue Howel Vain, of Llangynlo, who married Margaret, daughter of Lluellin ap Herast, Esq; and had issue, Merydith ap Howell, of Llangynlo, Esq; who married one of the daughters of Howell Clunne, Esq; and had issue Jevan ap Merydith, of Llangynlo, whose wife was one of the daughters of Jem ap Gwylem Goch, Esq; by whom he had issue Thomas Amerydeth, of Llangynlo, who married Guenlian, daughter of David Dec, Esq; (by Eva, daughter to Jevan ap Howell Blayney, Efq;) by whom he had, Griffith Amerydeth, who went into England, and married Joan, daughter of Thomas Moore, of the county

Edward Amerydeth, of Marston, in Tamerton-Foliott, Esq; married Margaret, daughter of Edward Marter, of London, Gent. relict of Gamaliel Slanning, of Bickleigh, in Devon, Esq; son and heir to Nicholas Slanning, Esq; by whom he had three sons, Amos, Edward, and John; and a daughter, Gertrude, wife of George Hall, D. D. and bishop of Chester.

Amos Meredyth, Esq; son and heir, was advanced to the dignity of a baronet of Nova Scotia, anno 1639. He had two wives, first, Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Sir Edward Seymour, of Bury-Pomeroy, in the county of Devon. Bart, widow of Francis Courtenay, Esq; eldest son of Sir William Courtenay, of Powderham-castle, in Devonshire, Knt. by whom he had two daughters, Dorothy, who died unmarried, at Shenwell, in Essex; and Mary, married to Richard Lowther, Esq; second son of Sir John Lowther, of Lowther in Westmoreland, Bart. His second wife was Anne, second daughter of Robert Tatton, of Whettenshaw, in Cheshire, Esq; and of Anne his wife, daughter of William Brereton, of Ashley, in Cheshire, Esq; (and Jane his wife, one of the daughters and coheirs of Peter Warburton, of Arley, in Cheshire, Esq;) and one of the fifters and coheirs of Thomas Brereton, of Ashley, Esq; by whom he had two fons, Sir William, his successor, born Dec. 6, 1665; and George, born June 7, 1667 t.

IRELAND.

THIS order was instituted by King James I. in the eighteenth year of his reign; not long after the erection of the English dignity, with the same privileges within their own kingdom, and were to assist in the reduction of Ulster, and had the arms of that prevince assigned them, to be borne either in a Canton, Escutcheon, or the most convenient part of the Shield; and paid into the treasury of Ireland, the same sees, &c. as in England.

The first of this hereditary dignity in that kingdom was, Sir Francis Blundel, (great grandfather to the present lord viscount Blundell) who was knighted by King James I. at New-market, and advanced to this dignity the 14th of October, in the eighteenth year of that King's reign.

He was secretary for the affairs of Ireland; treasurer, receivergeneral, and one of the privy-council for that kingdom, and brother to Sir George Blundell, of Cardington, in the county of Bedsord, who was killed at the Isle of Rhee, in that expedition under the duke of Buckingham *.

Since which time several have been created, no number being limited: they have no established precedence in this kingdom, but are on the same sooting in that respect as the Irish peers are with the British.

^{*} N. B. ' It is this family of the Blundeils that are possessed of the antient barony of Bedford, in the right of which they claim to be lord-almoners to the King, at the coronation.'

mondely, of Valeroyal, in Cheshire, Esq; (by Anne, his second wife, daughter of Sir Walter St. John, Bart. and sister of Henry Lord viscount St. John, whose son was the famous lord Bolinbroke) by whom the said Amos had nine children: 1. Anna-Maria; 2. Mary, who both died in their infancy; 3. Elizabeth, married to William Bankes, of Wynstanly, in the county of Lancaster, Esq; by whom he has one son, now living; 4. Martha; 5. Sir William, the present baronet; 6. Henrietta, married to the Hon. Frederick Vane, second son of Henry earl of Darlington; 7. Theophilus, rector of Linton, in the county of Hereford; 8. Anna-Margaretta, married, in 1770, to the Right Hon, Barlow Trecothick, of Addington, in the county of Surry, lord mayor, and one of the representatives of the city of London; Mary, married to the Right Hon. Lord Frederick Campbell, second son of John duke of Argyle, representative in parliament for Glasgow, lord register of Scotland, and a privy counsellor.

Sir William Meredith, the present baronet, succeeded to the title on the death of his grandsather. In the year 1755, he was elected a burgess to serve in parliament for Wigan, and, in 1762, was returned for Leverpoole; in 1764, he was appointed a lord commissioner of the admiralty, which he resigned the year following, on account of the dismission of the marquis of Rockingham, and his lordship's friends; in 1768, he was again elected for Leverpoole, and now represents that borough.

Dragon's tail. Part of the last-mentioned constellation, also appointed by the said heralds to stand for the colour Sanguine.

Ducal. Pertaining to a duke; as a ducal coronet, &c.

Duke. The highest degree of English peerage, next to the prince of Wales. This title is derived from the Latin word Dux, noblemen being antiently either generals and leaders of armies in time of war, or governors of provinces in time of peace. In process of time, great estates being annexed to it, then it was held by lands and sees, and at length made hereditary. It was so in foreign countries sooner than our own; for the first duke created here was Edward, commonly called the Black Prince, eldest son to King Edward III. who created him Duke of Cornwall, which title has ever since belonged to the first-born sons of the kings of England, without any other creation, as is requisite to give them the title of Prince of Wales. A duke is at this day created by patent, his mantle has four doublings, his title is Grace, and his coronet has only leaves raised above the circle without pearls.

E.

Eagle. A royal bird.

Bedingfield.

Earl. The third degree of British peerage, anciently the most eminent of this nation. It was formerly the custom, upon creating an earl, to assign him, for the support of his state, the third penny out of the sherist's court, issuing out of the pleas of the shire whereof they had their title, as formerly there were no counts or earls but had a county or shire for his earldom. Afterwards, the number of earls encreasing, they took their title from some eminent town, or even a village, their own seat or park, and some from illustrious families. He is created by patent, his mantle has three doublings of ermine, his title is Right Honourable, and his coronet has the pearls raised upon pyramidical points, and leaves low between.

Emblematic. This word is used to fignify any thing comprising an emblem.

Embowed. Is faid of any thing that is bent, or crooked, like a bow. Molefworth.

Emerald. The name of a precious flone, substituted instead of Vert, by English heralds, in blazoning the arms of the nobility. It is a green, shining, transparent gem, and has a very agreeable appearance.

Enaluron. A word used by Guillim to express a bordure charged with eight birds; but justly condemned by Sir George Mackenzie, saying, it proceeded from an ignorance of the French tongue, and thereby corrupting their En Orle, i. e. in form of a bordure.

En Arriere. An expression fignifying any creature represented with its back to view.

Endorse. One eighth of a Pale. Vol. III. Engrailed. This word is used in bordures or ordinaries, having little arches or semi-circles struck out of them, which is the reverse of invected.

Hewet.

Enhanced. A term applied to bearings placed above their usual situation.

Entoyre. A term derived from the French word, entour, or from entier, entire; but, be that as it will, it is feldom met with in books of heraldry, especially modern ones. Guillim uses it to express a bordure charged with eight inanimate things.

Enurry. A word probably derived from the French, orne, used by some heralds to express a bordure charged with eight living creatures of any kind.

Erafed. This fignifies a thing torn or plucked off from the part to which nature had fixed it; but chiefly of the head or limbs of a man or beaft.

Ered. Is faid of any thing upright, or perpendicularly elevated.

Ermine. Signifies white spots on a black field; but if the word plain should be used with it, as is seldom the case, it then denotes nothing but white.

Vyvian.

Ermine, White spots on a black field.

Mostro.

Emmission The field Or, and the spots black.

Frage. A ka thell-fifth, regularly indented. Tancred.

Francism. This word is sometimes used to express the reprenewation of the whole coat of Arms, or only to signify the field that contains the charges.

Example of Privace. A small escutcheon, on which the man which couly diminutive of the cheveron among the French, which count ins, in breadth, the third part of it.

Now, or Atole. The French word for a star, and is by many condounded for a mullet; but some distinguish it by depicting the rays of the star waved, and those of the mullet plain.

F.

. Ingleby.

Fisher. A bird. Frankers. Of an offrich.

Fro de Meline, or Milrind.

Webb. Fetherflonbagh. Turner.

() the of the honourable ordinaries, containing one third of the shield.

field The furface of the shield or escutcheon, which contains the charge.

Pith od. In faid of those bearings which are depicted with a hu-

Fillet.

Fillet. The only diminutive belonging to the chief. It flands in the lowest part of the chief, and is not to exceed one fourth thereof.

Fitchy. From the French word Fifth, fixed. This is faid of croffes, when the lower branch ends in a sharp point; and the reason of it Mackenzie supposes to be, that the primitive Christians were wont to carry croffes with them wherever they went; and when they stopped on their journey in any place, they fixed those portable croffes in the ground, for devotion sake.

Buckworth.

Flanches. The flanches are formed by two curved lines, or femi-circles, being always bor'n double. Parker: Flasques. Resemble the flanches, except that the circular lines do not go fo near the centre of the field.

Fleur-de-lis, or Flower-de-Luce. The name of a charge frequently to be met with in coats of Arms. The enquiry into the origin and nature of this charge has produced many volumes, and employed the lucubrations of many critics and antiquaries. Some pretend it represents the garden lily; others the top of the sceptre; some the head of the French battle-axe, called Francisca, and others the iron of a javelin, used by the ancient French: which last seems to be the most probable conjecture.

Blois

Florey, or Flowery. This word fignifies flowered; or adorned with the French lily:

Formée, or Formy, Vide Pattée:

Fret. A figure refembling two little flicks lying faltier-ways, and interlaced within a mascle. Some have termed this the Heralds True-lover's-knot.

Fleming.

Fretty. This word is used to denote a field or ordinary covered with sticks, interlacing one another.

Fruited. Is faid of trees that have their fruit on them, but of a different colour from the tree.

Fur. A term used in heraldry, to denote the linings and doublings of mantles in atchievements, which are ermine, vaire, &c.

Furled. Drawn up.

Fufil. A term derived from the French word Fufie, a spindle. It is longer and more acute than the lozenge. It may serve to denote the execution of a great undertaking by patience and assiduity. Some authors account suffils marks of disgrate to the samilies that bear them, and pretend that, when Crusades were proclaimed, in order to go and wage wat against the infidels, such gentlemen as did not take up the Cross were ordered, by their respective kings, to change their arms, and put fusils in their escutcheons, as a token of their effeninacy; but no authority being produced to countenance so absurd a conjecture, no stress ought to be laid upon it. Shaw.

G.

Gambe. An obsolete French word, signifying a leg, and used as such by heralds for the leg of a lion, or other creatures bo'rn in coats of Arms.

Newdigate.

Garbe. This term is a corruption of the French word Gerbe, which signifies a sheaf of any kind of corn.

Kemp.

Gardant. This word denotes a beast full-faced, looking right forward.

Garland. A wreath of branches or flowers.

Garter. The antient and respectable badge of the most noble order of the Garter, instituted by King Edward III. 1349, in the twenty-seventh year of his reign, and which, ever since its institution, has been looked upon as a great honour bestowed on the noblest persons of this nation and other countries. This honourable augmentation is made to surround, as with a Garter, the Arms of such knights, and is inscribed with this motto: Honi soit qui maly pense.

Garter. The title of the principal King of Arms in England.

Gauntlet. Armour for the hand.

Gaze. Intent look. This is faid of bucks and stags standing still. Robinson, of Newby.

Gemels. A corruption of the French word Jumelles, which fignifies double, and is therefore used to denote a double bar.

Giron. Vide Gyron.

Glory. Circle of rays, which surrounds the head of any figure.

Gobony, or Gobonated. Vide Compony.

Golpes. Roundlets of the purple colour, according to the English way of blazoning; for the French call all roundlets Torteaux, and then add their particular. colour; but the professors of every science seem to take a delight in perplexing and multiplying terms of art.

Gorged. This term, which is derived from the French word Gorge, neck, is used where an animal has a collar about its neck.

Hudson,

Guard. A term used by some heralds, to signify the doublings of the mantles of the nobility.

Guardant. Vide Gardant.

Gules. A corruption of the French word Gueules, which, in the fcience, fignifies Red, and is represented in engravings by perpendicular lines. Silv. Morgan tells us, it denotes martial prowes, boldness, and hardiness. The antients used this colour to make themselves terrible to their enemies, to stir up magnanimity, and prevent seeing of blood by the likeness of colour; for which reason, perhaps, it is used by the English. Gutty, or Gutte. Sprinkled with drops, which the English he-Gutty, or Gutte. Sprinkled with drops, which the English heralds, in blazon, distinguish according to the tinctures; viz.

Gutty d'Or. Gold, or Yellow.

- de l'Eau. Water, or White.

- de Sang. Blood, or Red.

- de Larmes. Tears, or Blue.

- de Vert. Green.

- de Poix. Pitch, or Black.

Guzes. Roundlets of the fanguine, or murrey colour. These are so called by none but English heralds, all others calling them Torteaux, as they do other roundlets. They are by some supposed to represent wounds, as being of a bloody hue. Gyron. An heraldic figure, of a triangular form.

Gyronny. Is said of a field, divided into six, eight, or ten triangular parts, of two different tinctures, the points of which unite in the center of the field.

H.

Habited. This word is used to denote a figure cloathed, and much used in crests.

Major.

Hands. Couped at the wrist.

.:

Maynard.

Hauriant. A term peculiar to fish, and fignifies their standing upright, as if they were refreshing themselves by sucking in the air.

Worstey.

Helmet. A defensive weapon, wherewith to cover the head and neck. In atchievements it is placed above the escutcheon for the principal ornament, and is the true mark of chivalry and nobility. These vary according to the different degrees of those who bear them. Those of the royal family and noblemen of Great Britain are open-faced and grated, and the number of bars served formerly to distinguish the bearer's quality. The open-faced helmet, without bars, denotes knights; and the close helmet is for all esquires and gentlemen. This position is likewise looked upon as a mark of distinction: the grated helmet in front belongs to sovereign princes and dukes; the grated helmet in profile is common to all peers under a duke; the grated helmet, standing direct, with out bars, and the beaver a little open, denotes a knight; lastly, the side standing helmet, with the heaver close, is the way of wearing it among elquires and gentlemen. met is also used as a bearing in coats of Arms. Herald. This name, favs Verflegan, is derived from the Saxon word Herebault, and, by abbreviation, Heralt, which, in that language, fignifies the champion of an army; and, growing to be a name of office, it was given to him that in the army had the special charge to denounce war, to challenge to batile and combat, to proclaim peace, and to execute martial mellages: but the buliness of heralds is, with us, as follows: to marshal and order all royal cavalcades, ceremonies at coronations, inftallations, creations, &c. to make public both declarations of war and proclamations of peace; to record and blazon the arms of the nobility and gentry, and to regulate any abuses therein, under the authority of the earl marshal. Richard III. formed them into a college, and afterwards great privileges were granted them by Edward IV. and Philip and Mary.

Heraldry. A science, consisting of marshaling royal ceremonies, regulating coats of arms, &c.

Hieroglyphic. Expressive of some meaning beyond what immediately appears.

Hilted. Is said of the handle of a sword, in order to denote what tincure it is of.

Honour-Point. It is that which is above the exact centre of the escutcheon. See Points.

Hooded. Is said of any creature, whose head resembles a hood. Horned. This term is used to denote, that the horn of an unicorn is of a different tincture from his body.

Humetty. Shortened, or cut off, before it reaches the edges of the efcutcheon.

Hurts. Roundlets of the azure colour. These being blue, some will have them to fignify bruises or contusions in the steff, which often turn to that colour.

Hyacimb. The name of a precious stone, introduced by J. Boswell into this science, and used by English heralds to express Tenne in blazoning the arms of the nobility. It is a stone of a yellowish red hue.

I.

Imbattled. The same as Crenelle, and is said of towns, walls, and ordinaries, when their outward lines are drawn like battlements.

Imbrued. Is faid of spears heads spotted with blood. To impale. To conjoin two coats of arms paleways. Imperial. Belonging to an emperor.

Increment. This is faid of a moon increscent; for a moon in her increment implies the same meaning. It signifies the rising of families, and even of states: for which reason it is worn by the Turks.

Increscent. This is said of a new moon, whose horns are turned towards the dexter fide of the escutcheon.

Indented. This is faid of fuch ordinaries as have their outward lines drawn like teeth, and much smaller than the dancette.

Hickman.

Inefcutcheon. The name given to small escutcheons bor'n within the shield.

Chamberlayne.

Ingrailed. Vide Engrailed.

Invected. This is the reverse of engrailed; for it has the points inwards to the bordure or ordinary, and the small arches, or semi-circles, outward to the field.

Inverted. This word is applied to any bearing turned the wrong way. Wings are faid to be inverted when the points of them are downwards.

Is faid of rays, or other charges, coming out of any part of the escutcheon. Guillim has made use of is fuant, to denote a lion naissant; whence, with regard to blazonry, several heralds dispute their fignification.

Markham,

J.

Jessant. This word fignifies shooting forth, as vegetables do; it is also used to express the bearing of Fleurs-de-Lis coming out of a leopard's face.

Jessed. This is faid of a hawk, or any other bird, whose Jesses (straps of leather) are of a tincture different from the rest.

Jowlopped. A term used to fignify the gills of a cock, when of a different tincture from the head.

Jupiter. The name of one of the planets, used in the place of azure, by such heralds as think fit to blazon thus the arms of sovereigns and princes, instead of metals and colours.

Justs. These, like tournaments, were public exercises formerly used by all persons of any note, that desired to gain reputation in seats of arms, from the king to the private gentleman. The manner in which these martial diversions were conducted, was as follows: the time and place was appointed, and the challenges sent abroad for all that desired to signalise themselves. Places were provided for the spectators, and the lists (the ground) raised about, in which the adventurers were to shew their dexterity. Rewards were assigned to the victorious, and great honour paid them. As to the combatants, two and two were let in at once, through different barriers, being in complete armour from head to foot, and mounted on the best horses. After performing the usual ceremonies, and paying their respect to the sovereign or judges, and to the ladies, they took their feveral stations; and being thus in readiness, when the trumpet sounded, they both, at the same time, couched their lances, that is, set the butt-end against their breast, the point bearing towards their antagonist, and, spurring their horses, ran furiously towards one another, in fuch manner, that the points of their spears, darting against each other's armour, gave a terrible shock, and generally broke in pieces. If neither party received any damage, they both turned round, took fresh spears, and returned to the at-They then attacked a third time, if the second proved ineffectual; and if neither suffered any damage in these three encounters, they both came off with reputation. But, if either was thrown off his horse, he was quite disgraced; or if he was shaken in the saddle, let fall his lance, or lost any piece of his armour, or hurt his adversary's horse, all these, and other particulars, were looked upon as disreputable. There were also rules for distributing the prizes to those that best behaved themselves.

Justers. Name given to the adventurers at justs,

K.

King of Arms. One of the principal heralds, of which fort there are three at present in England, whose titles are, Garter, Clarencieux, and Norroy. The first is called Garter, principal King of Arms, which are two distinct offices united in one person; for, as Garter, his duty is to attend on the knights of the Garter at their solemnities; in reference to which, he is allowed a mantle and a badge, a house in Windfor castle, and a pension from the sovereign: as King of Arms, he is to perform services relating to the office of arms; on which account he is allowed a rich coat and crown, lodgings within the college, and a pension out of the exchequer. The jurisdiction of King Clarencieux extends through the realm of the South side of Trent; as that of King Norroy does on the North side of the same river, from which the latter derives his name.

Knight. A title of honour derived from the Saxon word Cnicht; a fervant, or one bound to attend on his fovereign in his wars.

The following particulars were formerly requifite for making a Knight;

a Knight; that he was no trader, and especially of no servile condition; that he should swear that he would not resuse to die for the Gospel, or his country. It was also required, that knights should be brave, expert, and well-behaved.

Knight-banneret. An ancient military order, but now extinct in England. The manner of making them was thus: the perfon was led between two knights into the presence of the king or general, with his pennon of arms in his hand; and there the heralds declared his merit, for which he deserved to be made a knight-banneret, and thenceforth to display a banner in the field. Then the king, or general, caused the point of his pennon to be cut or torn off, to make it square; and the new-made knight returned to his tent, the trumpets sounding before him.

Knight-batchelor. The most antient, but the lowest order of knights in England, known by the name of Knights only. They are stilled Knights-batchelors, because the title does not descend to their posterity.

Knight and Baronet. For an account of this order, fee page 252, of this volume.

Knight of the Bath. This dignity was, according to some historians, instituted by Richard II. but others think it of greater antiquity. Sir William Dugdale, in his Antiquities of Warwickshire, gives an account at large of this order.

Knight of the Garter. The highest degree of knighthood in England. See Garter. Historians are divided in their opinions, with respect to the motive that induced King Edward to found this order; some affirming that it was an amorous contrivance, in honour to a lady's garter, from whom it had the name; and others strenuously contending to deduce it from a more noble origin, the improvement of military honour, and the reward of virtue. Be that as it will, it is certain that it has ever since been looked upon as a great honour, bestowed upon the noblest persons of this and other nations.

Label. The noblest of rebatements, serving to distinguish the arms of the eldest son from the younger.

of three points.

of five points.

Egerton.

Labels. This term is fometimes made use of to signify the ribbands that hang down from a mitre.

Launces, or Spears.

Langued, A term derived from the French word Langue, a tongue; tongue; and serves to signify the tongue of a bird or beaff, when it differs in tincture from the body.

Booth.

Zion. The king of quadrupeds or four-footed animals.

Liencel. A young lion. This term is to be used in blazoning arms, when there are more than one lion in the field, except when they are parted by an ordinary, or so disposed as that they seem to be distinctly separated from each other.

Lezenges. A four-cornered figure, resembling a pane of glass in an old window.

Lozengy. Covered with lozenges.

Workey.

Luna. This is a Latin word, which fignifies the moon, and is used by English heralds only, instead of argent, in blazoning the arms of Sovereigns.

Lure. A term used in heraldry, to fignify two wings conjoined and inverted, or with the tips downwards.

M.

Manche. The French word for a sleeve, and used by English heralds to signify an old-fashioned sleeve, with long hangers to it.

Mansel.

Soame.

Maned. Is faid of the hair which hangs down the neck of hories, unicorns, tigers, of other animals.

Mantles. Short coverings worn by commanders over their helmets, to defend them from the weather. In England they are commonly red, lined with ermine, for those above the degree of a viscount; and with plain white fur, for those of inferior degree; but antiently doubled with any fur, consisting of either one, or fundry colours. In foreign nations, the colours of mantle, and doubling, are fometimes according to the colour of the arms.

Mantlings. An ornamental foliage-work, representing cut pieces of cloth, used in other times for the adorning of helmets.

Marquis. The second order of nobility in England next to a duke. This title was not known in this country till Richard II. in the year 1337, created his great favourite, Robert Vere, who was then earl of Oxford, marquis of Dublin: since which time there have been other creations. A marquis is created by patent, his mantle is double ermine, three doublings and a half; his title is, Most Noble, and his coronet has pearls and leaves intermixed round, of equal height.

Mars. The name of one of the planets, used, by some English heralds, instead of Gules, in blazoning the arms of sovereigns.

Marshal. This word is derived from the French word Marêchal, the name of a great military officer, who commands their armies in chief. In England it is the name of several military and chief officers: among the latter, the principal is the Earl Marshal, a post of great honour, and hereditary in the family of the duke of Norsolk.

To marshal. A term which fignifies to range and dispose regularly divers coats of arms in one shield, with their contingent ornaments and appurtenances.

Martlet. An imaginary bird. Various are the opinions of naturalists concerning this bird: some suppose it to be the Martin, and ascertain its existence from this conjecture; others pretend it is only an imaginary bird invented by heralds, as they have introduced into armory many other things which have no existence. Guillim observes, that this bird, which is represented without seet, is given for a difference to younger brothers, to put them in mind, that, in order to raise themselves, they are to look to the wings of virtue and merit, and not to their legs, having but little land to set their seet on.

Mascle. A figure, which is said, by some, to represent the mesh of a net.

Ofbaldiston.

Maunche. Vide Manche.

Membered. A term used to express the beak and legs of a bird, when they are of a different tincture from the body. Berney.

Mercury. The name of one of the planets, used instead of purple, by English heralds, in blazoning the arms of sovereigns. Mr. Boswell first introduced this different method of blazoning; but what could induce him to affign such a colour to Mercury, is not easily to be accounted for. To perplex science by introducing novelties, is too general a failing.

Metal. There are only two metals used in heraldry, Gold and Silver, but called Or and Argent, being the French names for them. It is against the rule of blazoning to put metal upon metal, or colour upon colour, unless for special reasons; therefore, if the field be of any colour, the bearing must be one of the metals; and on the contrary, if the field be one of the two metals, then the bearing must be of some colour.

Moline. From the French word Moulin, a mill, and is used in heraldry to denote a cross, which turns round both ways, at all the extremities.

Knowles.

Merion. A steel cap, or antient armour for the head, which refembles very much the chapeau. Motto. The word, or short sentence, inserted in a scroll, which is placed under, and sometimes over, coats of arms.

Mound. A corruption of the French word, Monde, the world, which this figure represents, being a globe incircled, surmounted of a cross; as on an imperial crown.

Mullet. This term is derived from the French word Molette, which fignifies the rowel of a spur, and should consist of five points only, whereas stars consist of six, or above. Heralds have, generally speaking, consounded stars and mullets together, which mistake might easily be rectified, by allowing mullets to consist of sive points only, and stars of six and above. The French, from whom this term is taken, have Etoiles of sive points, as well as Molettes of six.

Murrey. Vide Sanguine.

Muzzled. Is faid of a beaft, whose muzzle band is of a different tinefure from his head.

Langham.

N.

Naiant. A term derived from the French word Nageant, swimming, and is said of a fish in a swimming posture. O'Neill.

Naissant. This word fignifies coming out, and is said of a lion, or other living creature, that seems to be coming out of the middle of an ordinary.

Nebule, or Nebuly. This term fignifies cloudy, or representing clouds, and is used when the outlines of an ordinary run arched in and out.

Fleetwood.

Nobility. Under this denomination are comprehended, dukes, marquifes, earls, viscounts, and barons, only.

Nombril Point. The next below the Fess Point, being the opposite place to the Honour Point. See Points.

Nowed. This word fignifies tied or knotted, and is said of a serpent, vivern, or the like, whose bodies or tails are twisted, and enfolded, like a knot.

Fleming.

O.

Oak Leaves.

Monnoux.

Ogresses. A term used by English heralds only, to express the black roundlets.

Clayton.

Or. The French word for Gold, by which this metal is expreffed in heraldry. In engraving, it is denoted by small points all over the field or bearing. La Colombiére says, this metal fignifies generosity, splendor, and solidity.

Dyke.

Oranges. English heralds give this name to all roundlets that are tenne, or tawney, supposing them to be oranges.

Ordinary.

Ordinary. A term used to denote several heraldic figures, used in coats of arms. Of these the following nine are deemed the most honourable, viz. Chief, Cross, Saltire, Pale, Bend, Cheveron, Fess, Bar, Escutcheon; to which the French add the Border. The less honourable are, Orle, Gyron, Pile, Quarter, Canton, Flasque, Flanche, Voider; all which see under their respective names.

Orle. This term is, according to Sir G. Mackenzie, derived from the Latin word Orula, a Bordure; or, according to others, from the French word Ourlet, a hem or selvage. Guillim would have it from Oreiller, a pillow, which it no way resembles; but, be that as it will, the Orle is no other than a border within the shield, at some distance from the edges thereof. Winnington.

In Orle. Is faid of feveral things bor'n within the escutcheon. in the form of an Orle. Chamberlayne.

Over-all. This is faid of any figure bor'n over another, and obfcuring part thereof.

Pale. One of the honourable ordinaries, and confifts of four perpendicular lines drawn from the top to the base of the escutcheon, and contains the third middle part of the shield. - I they little and the desired street of the same of the process of Mills

Pall. A figure like a Greek T, about the breadth of a pallet. It is, by fome heralds, called a Cross-Pall, on account of its being looked upon as an archiepifcopal bearing.

Pallet. One of the diminutives of the Pale, being one half its breadth.

Paly. This word is used to denote a field divided by perpendicular lines into feveral equal parts, confisting of two different tinctures, interchangeably disposed.

Paly-bendy. Parted, or Party. This term fignifies divided, and is applied to all divisions of the field, in which case English heralds differ from the French; for the latter use this term only to denote a partition per Pale, other partitions being expressed by different names. Party per Pale. - per Cross, or quarterly. - per Fess. Swinburne. - per Bend. Pakington. --- per Cheveron. - per Saltire, or Gyronny, of four pieces.

Passant. Is said of a lion, or any other creature, represented passing or walking along.

Evelyn.

Passant-gardant. This is said of an animal in the same posture as passant; but with his sace turned so that his eyes are both distinctly seen.

Patie, or Patie. This is faid of a Cross, which is small in the center, and so goes on widening to the ends.

Chetwode.

Paternal. A term used to denote the original arms of a family.

Patence. This is proper to a Cross that is flowry at its extremities.

Patriarchal. A Cross is so called, when the middle piece is twice crossed, the lower arms being longer, and the upper shorter. Such a Cross belongs to patriarchs, as the triple Cross is used by the Pope.

Pearl. This word is used for Argent, by those who blazon the arms of peers by precious stones, instead of metal and colours.

Pean. One of the Furs, being black powered with yellow spots.

Peer. A name given to every nobleman of this kingdom. There are five degrees of peers in Great Britain: dukes, marquist, earls, viscounts, and barons.

Pellets, or Orgresses. The name given to the black roundlets by the English heralds.

Clerks

Pelicants, vulning themselves.

Culhus

Pelicans, vulning themselves.

Pennen. A finall flag, or flandard.

Per. This particle is generally used in beraldry, before an ordinary, to denote a partition of the field. See Party.

Perforated. Is faid of fuch charges as appear to be bored or pierced through.

Periwinkles, or Welkes. Shells. Shelley.

Pheon. A kind of instrument or dart, with a barbed head:
which head is, in England, frequently bor'n in coats of Arms, and termed a Pheon's head.

Egerton.

Pierced. Vide Perforated.

Pile. An heraldic figure, representing those piles on which bridges are built, or other edifices raised from the ground.

Middleton.

Pine-Apples. A fruit. Pepperell.

Planets. These have been introduced in Heraldry by Boswell, but are used only by English heralds, instead of metals and colours, in blazoning the arms of sovereigns.

Plates. A name which English heralds give to white or filver roundlets.

Points. This word is used to denote the different parts of the infide infide of the escutcheon, in order to ascertain the local position of any bearing, and are distinguished as follow:

A. Dexter Chief.

B. Precise Middle Chief.

C. Sinister Chief.

D. Honour Point.

E. Fess Point.

F. Nobril Point.

G. Dexter Base.

H. Precise Middle Base.

I. Sinister Base.

In Point. When fwords, piles, &c. are so bor'n, as to resemble a Pile, that is, their points almost meeting in the middle base of the escutcheon.

Wrottesley.

Pomeis. Green roundlets used in coats of Arms. Heathcote.

Pomeiled. Is said of the round ball or knob affixed to the handle of a fword.

Portcullis. A strong gate, grated, used to defend the entrance of castles, &c.

Buck.

Potent. This is faid of a Cross, terminating like a T at its extremities.

Powdering. Small figures, as ermine, irregularly strewed on a field.

Predominant. This term is fometimes used in heraldry, to fignify that the field is but of one tincture.

Premier. This French word fignifies first, and is used by English heralds to fignify the most antient peer of any degree, by creation. In this work, Sir Richard Bacon is the premier Baronet.

Pride. Peacocks are faid to be in their pride, when they extend their tails into a circle, and drop their wings. Strickland.

Pretence. Vide Escutcheon.

Prince. Title of honour properly belonging to a fovereign, or his fons.

Proper. A term used to denote any creature, vegetable, &c. bor'n in coats of Arms, of its natural hue or tincture.

Purflew. A term used by some English heralds to express the embroidery of a bordure of fur.

Purpure. The colour so called, which signifies Purple, is, in engravings, represented by diagonal lines drawn from the left to the right. Sir Henry Spelman, in his Afpilogia, allows Purpure the preference to all other colours, as having been an ensign of royalty for many ages; yet, he says, it seems to be excluded by antient heralds, as being an improper colour. It is, indeed, an uncommon one; yet there are examples of it to be found, and therefore to reject it would be unreasonable, both English and French heralds having given it a place among me omer tindries.

Q.

Quaterfield A four-leaved flower, refembling a primrole. Thele have, as well as trefoils, obtained no imall place in coats of Arms, being bor'n by many families.

Quarter. The fourth part of the field, or one of its divisions. The paternal arms are always placed in the first and fourth quarters of a quartered coat of arms, and those of alliance in the second and third; but where coats are too numerous, it is sufficient to see the paternal but once, placing them in the first quarter or divition of the field.

Duartered. Is said of a field divided into four parts.

Duarterings. This fignifies the partitions or separate areas of one shield, containing divers coats of arms.

Quarterly. Containing a fourth part. Quarterly quartered, is faid of a saltire quartered in its center, and the four branches of which are each parted by two different tinctures, alternately depicted.

Queue. The tail of an animal, which is sometimes bor'n dou-

R.

Radiant. This term is used in blazoning, to denote any charge represented with rays or beams about it.

Razuly, or Razuled. This is faid of a bearing, which is uneven or ragged, like the trunk or limb of a tree, deprived of its branches, and of which only the stump is seen.

Rampant. A French word, used to denote a lion, or other animal, standing, as it were, in a perpendicular line, on its hin-Stableton. der feet.

Rains. Vide Battering-rams.

Raven. A bird.

Carbet.

Ray. A ray of light, proceeding from any luminous body, as the fun or stars.

Raymant. Darting forth rays.

Rebatement. See Difference.

Recercelée. This is taid of a Cross that circles or curls at the end, very much resembling a ram's horn.

Regardant. This French word, which fignifies locking only, is used by heralds to signify an animal looking behind, having his face turned towards his tail.

Egerton.

Renverse. Contrary to the natural position; as a beast on its back, or with the head downwards; a cheveron with the point downward, &c.

Reft. A figure used in coats of arms, which some take to be a rest for a horseman's lance, and others for a musical instrument called Clarion, or Claricord.

Riband. One of the diminutives of the Bend.

Rifing. This fignifies a bird ftanding with wings somehwat elevated, as preparing to fly. Stonbouse.

Rompu. Broken, disjointed.

Roundle, or Roundlet. Any round figure. They are round flat pieces refembling money uncoined; the French call them Torteaux, adding the colour; but the English heralds alone have a distinct name for every colour: they call gold roundlets Bezants; silver, or white, Plates; red, Torteaux; blue, Hurts, or Heurts; green, Pomeis; black, Pellets, or Ogresses; purple, Golpes; tawney, Oranges; and sanguine, Guzes.

Ruby. The name of a precious stone, used instead of Gules, in blazoning the arms of the English nobility only. It is a transparent gem, of a reddish colour, with a small portion of blue, and cannot be touched with a sile. Rubies are generally found in the same mines with sapphires, and some of them are pretty large; for the emperor Rodolphus had one that was as big as a small pullet's egg, and this was thought to be the largest that was ever seen in Europe.

S.

Sable. This word, in heraldry, fignifies Black, and is borrowed from the French. In engraving it is represented by both horizontal and perpendicular lines croffing each other. G. Leigh, in his Accidence of Armory, will have it, that Sable, of itself, fignifies constancy, learning, and grief; with Or, honour, and with Argent, same.

Saliant. This term is used to express the posture of an animal that is fpringing forward.

Salmon, naiant. O'Neill.

Saltier. One of the honourable ordinaries, which is formed by the bend dexter and bend finisher crossing each other in acute angles. They contain the fifth part of the shield; but, if charged, the third. In Scotland, this ordinary is frequently called a Sr. Andrew's Cross. It may, like others, be bor'n engrailed, wavy, &c. as also between charges, or charged Vol. III.

with any thing. This was antiently, says Leigh, made of the height of a man, and driven full of pins, the use of which was to scale walls, &c. Upton says it was an instrument to catch wild beasts, whence he derives the word from saltus, a forest. The French call this ordinary Sautoir, from saute, to leap; because it may have been used by soldiers to leap over walls, but some modern authors think it is bor'n in imitation of St. Andrew's Cross.

Sanguine. This word, in heraldry, fignifies the murrey colour, and is expressed in engravings by lines crossing each other diagonally, from the dexter to the finister side, and from the finister to the dexter. Some heralds will not allow this colour to be used in heraldry, though it certainly has been used.

Sans nombre. An expression used by French heralds to signify several figures strewed on the field.

Saphire, or Sapphire. The name of a precious stone, used by English heralds to express the colour Azure, in blazoning the arms of the nobility. It is a hard gem, of a blue or sky colour, very transparent, and sparkles much.

Sardonyx. The name of a precious stone, used instead of Sanguine, in blazoning the arms of the English nobility. This stone is said to be of a middle nature between the cornelian and the onyx, which its name seems to imply. It is generally tinged with white, black, and blood colours, which are distinguished from each other by circles or rows, so plain, that they seem to be the effect of art.

Saturn. The name of one of the planets, and used for the colour Sable by such heralds as think fit to blazon thus the arms of sovereigns and princes, instead of metals and colours.

Scallop. Vide Escalop.

Scepter, or Sceptre. A royal staff, an enfign of sovereignty bor'n in the hand, more antient than the crown itself. It was generally a javelin without a head. Tarquin the Old first used it among the Romans, which he adorned on the top with an eagle.

Scrape. One of the diminutives of the bend finister, which is one half in breadth.

Scrol, or Scroll. One of the outward ornaments of an escutcheon, wherein the motto is inscribed.

Seeded. This is said of roses and other flowers, to express the tineture of their seed.

Segreant. This epithet is applied to a griffin displaying his wings, as if he was going to fly.

Sejant.

Sejant, or Seiant. This is faid of a lion, or other animal, reprefented fitting. Samwell.

Seme, or Semie. A word borrowed from the French, and which

Shield. An antient defensive piece of armour, on which arms or devices are depicted. To describe the several forts of them, and mention their names, would be not only too tedious, but also foreign to our present plan. It gave the original to that which is now called the Escutcheon in armory; and that being mentioned in its proper place, it is needless here to repeat it.

Sinister. A word used in heraldry, to signify the left side or part of any thing; as the sinister base is the left part of the base.

See Points.

Slipped. Torn from a stock or branch.

Cope.
Sol. This word fignifies the sun, and is, by English heralds, used to express gold, in blazoning the arms of sovereigns. Splendor. The sun is said to be in its splendor, when it is represented with the lineaments of a human face, or environed

Standard. A martial enfign carried by the horse, distinguished by the name of colours for the foot soldiers. There is also the royal standard, which is displayed at sea.

Star. This charge is by many consounded with a mullet, which is the rowel of a spur, as mentioned before.

Statant. A term used in heraldry, to express an animal standing on its feet, both the fore and hind legs being in a direct line.

Russel, Crest.

Stones. The names of precious stones have been introduced in heraldry, by Boswell; but now are only used by English heralds, instead of metals and colours, in blazoning the arms of the nobility. This way of blazoning is condemned by all foreigners, and rejected by several heralds of this nation, and that very justly; for, can the dignity of a peer be lessened, (says Porny) by being told that his robe is purple, velvet, black, or scarlet, as though it really ceased to be that, or the like, by being upon him? But, since many heralds have adopted this whimsical and fanciful method, it has been thought sit to insert it in many peerages.

Sun. Vide Sol.

Super-charge. This is faid of a figure bor'n in another bearing. Supporters. These are figures standing on the scroll, and placed at the side of the escutcheon. They are so called, because they seem to support or hold up the shield. The rise of supporters is traced up to antient tournaments, wherein the knights caused their shields to be carried by servants under the disguise of lions, bears, griffins, blackmoors, &c. who also held and guarded the escutcheons, which the knights were obliged to expose to public view for some time before the jifts were opened. Supporters have also been taken from fuch animals or birds as are bor'n in the shields; and sometimes they have been chosen, as bearing some allusion to the names of those whose arms they are made to support. The supporters of the arms of Great Britain, fince the accession of King James the First to the throne, are, a lion, crowned Or, on the dexter fide, and a unicorn, Argent, gorged with a coronet, Or, on the finister. James the First, as King of Sco:land, bore two unicorns for his supporters; but, upon the union of that kingdom with England, anno 1603, he introduced one of the above supporters on the finisher fide of the royal atchievement, and which continues to this day. It feems here necessary to observe, that the bearing of coats of arms, supported, is, according to the heraldic laws of Great Britain, the prerogative, first, of Nobiles majores, viz. dukes, marquises, earls, viscounts, and barons; secondly, of all knights of the garter, though they should be under the degree of barons; thirdly, of knights of the bath, who both receive, on their creation, a grant of supporters; and, lastly, of such knights as the King chuses to bestow this honour upon. Some gentlemen bear supporters, without having any right to them, under a mistaken notion that, some of their family having been knights of the garter or bath, the right to bear those supporters becomes hereditary, whereas they fail, with the title and honour, on the death of the knight.

Surmounted. This is said of a figure or bearing that has another over it.

Surtout. An expression borrowed from the French, which signifies over all, and is said of a small escutcheon, containing any coat of augmentation.

Symbol. Is that which comprehends in its figure a reprefentation of fomething else.

Target. A round buckler, that was used by the amient Romans, Spaniards, and Atricans.

Tawney, or Tenne. One of the ten different hues made use of in blazonry. It signifies the orange colour, and is represented in engravings by diagonal lines drawn from the sinisfer to the dexter side of the shield, traversed by perpendicular lines from the chief. This is not admitted as a colour by all heralds, for several have not even mentioned it; though Lee says it is a colour of worship.

Thera. An antient ornament among the Persians and Parthians, wherewith their kings and priests were crowned. The pope's

Tigers Heads.

Theture. This term fignifies the hue or colour of any thing belonging to coats of arms. For the more readily understanding the different names by which these metals and colours are called, we shall give the reader the following table.

Tinchutes.

Tinchures, the Hue or Colours of Things in Cast-Armour; they confid of Metals and Colours, which are variously denominated, viz.

From Virtues.	Constancy. Innocence.	Magnanimity. Loyalty. Love loyal. Prudence.	Temperance.	ss, by the Pla- , by the common

Topaz. Vide the preceding table. It is a transparent stone, of a fhining gold colour.

Forteaux, or Tourteaux. The name given to the ted foundlets by English heralds only. Some will have these roundlets to be cakes, others bowls, which cannot be, because they are flat; and others wounds, which last may be proper enough, as they are always red. The French, and other nations, except the English, give the name of Torteaux to such roundlets as are of any other colour, expressing the same; which is allowed to be a better method than giving every roundlet a particular name, on account of colour; for it is rather perpetaining the science than explaining it:

Tournaments. These were honourable exercises formerly used by all persons of note, that desired to signalize themselves by their dexterity, &c. They first began in Germany, in the tenth century, and came afterwards into general practice. They derived their name from the French word tournier; to turn round; because, to be expert in these exercises, much agility, both of horse and man, was requisite, they riding round a ring, or turning often, as there was occasion. Their manner of assembling, &c. was like that described in the account given of Justs.

Towered, or Turreted. This is faid of walls and castles, having towers or turrets on the top.

Transposed. A term applied to bearings put in a place different from their usual situation.

Trefoil. The three-leaved grass. It is a very common bearing: but how it came to be so much used in armory is not easily to be accounted for, being a thing in itself so insignificant, and remote from arms.

Abdy.

Tressure. The name of an ordinary, supposed to be only the half of the breadth of an orle. It is bor'n flory and counter-flory, and very often double, and sometimes treble.

Tricorporated. This is said of a bearing of the bodies of three lions rampant, conjoined under one head gardant in the Fessi Point:

Tripping, or Trippant. A term used to signify the quick motion of a buck, doe, fawn, &c. represented with one foot up, as if it were on a trot.

Robinson, of Rookby.

Turret. A small tower.

Williams

Turreted. Having turrets on the top.

Tisk. The long tooth of an elephant, or other animal.

Tulked. This is said of an animal, whose tulks are of a different tincture from his body.

U.

Undy. This is faid of an ordinary formed of a waved line.

Unguled. A term which fignifies boofed, and is said of the horny substance of the seet of unicorns and granivorous animals. Unicorn. An imaginary animal. See Supporters. Upright. Streight up, or perpendicularly erect.

V.

Faire, or Vair. A kind of fur formerly used for lining the garments of great men, and knights of renown. It is reprefented in engravings by the figures of little bells reverfed, ranged in a line. Of this fur is sometimes formed a cross, a bend, &c. La Colombiére observes, that when furriers fir made the lining, they used small pieces, most frequently of an azure colour, which they fitted to white furs; and he inters from that, that those who have settled the rules of beraldry, decreed, in relation to Vair, that this fur, in its natural colour, should be always Argent and Azure: so that, if it be faid fuch a family bears Vair, it is supposed to be Argent and Azure; but, if there be any other tincture, the fame must be expressed, saying, such a family bears Vary Or and Gules, or otherwise. Twisden.

Yambraced. A term to fignify three arms habited in armour.

Venus. The name of one of the planets, used for the colour Vert, by such heralds as think sit thus to blazon the arms of fovereigns and princes, instead of using metals and colours. This colour was undoubtedly appropriated to her on account of the fable of her coming out of the fea.

Verdoy. A word appropriated to bordures charged with eight leaves, flowers, fruits, or other vegetables,

Vert. A term derived from the French word verd or verte. green. It is represented, in engraving, by diagonal lines drawn from the dexter fide to the finister. This colour, fave La Colombiére, denotes love, hope, joy, and plenty.

Viscount. This was antiently a name of office under an earl, who being oftentimes required at the court, was his deputy to look after the affairs of the county; but in Henry the Sixth's Sixth's time it became a degree of honour. A viscount is created by patent, as an earl is; his title is Right Honourable, his mantle is two doublings and a half of plain fur, and his coronet has only a row of pearls close to the circle.

Voided. This term is applied to an ordinary, so evacuated as that nothing but the edge of it remains to shew its form:

Dukenfield.

Voiders. The name of a figure confidered by Guillim as an ordinary, much like the Flasques.

Volant. The French word for flying, and is applied to any bird in that posture.

Vorant, This term fignifies swallowing up, and is used in blazonry to express the action of any animal, fish, bird, or reptile, devouring or fwallowing up any thing.

Vulned. This term is used, when a bird, or other creature, is wounded. When a bird is picking itself, it is said to be vulning itself.

Water Bougets. Bridges.

Wattled. A word sometimes used in speaking of a cock, whose wattles or gills are of a different tincture; but, to express this, jollowped is more frequently used.

Waved, or Wavy. This is faid of an ordinary formed of lines bent or crooked, after the manner of waves rolling. Playters.

White. The use of this word in heraldry is to fignify a plain fur, the word Argent never being used but to express the tincture.

Winged. Is faid of flying creatures, in describing their colour, when it is different from that of their body.

Wreath. The wreath is a kind of roll made of two skins of filk of different colours twifted together, which antient knights wore as a head-drefs, when equipped for tournaments. The colours of the filk are most usually taken from the principal metal and colour contained in the coat of arms of the bearer. They are still accounted as one of the lesser ornaments of escutcheons, and on them are generally placed the crest.

Of the Rules of Heraldry.

HE various properties of coats of arms, their tinctures, charges, and ornaments, having been now treated of, it may not be improper to prefent the reader with fuch rules for blazoning the same, as the antient laws of heraldry have introduced.

The

The first and most general rule is, to express ourselves in proper terms, so as not to omit any thing that ought to be specified; and at the same time to be clear and concise, without unnecessary repetitions.

We must begin with the tincture of the field, and then proceed to the principal charges, which possess the most honourable place in the shield; such as sess, cheveron, &c. always naming that charge first, which lies next and immediately on the field. See (in the arms of the baronets) Stanebouse. This rule is observed by the English and French; but the Italians, Spaniards, and sometimes the Germans, begin blazonings with the principal bearings, and afterwards name the tincture of the field. See Wolff.

After naming the tincture of the field, the honourable ordinaries, or the other principal figures, you must specify their attributes, and afterwards their metal or colour.

When an honourable ordinary, or some other figure, is placed upon another, whether it be fess, cheveron, cross, &c. it is always to be named after the ordinary or figure over which it is placed, with one of these expressions, furtout, or over all.

Delaval

In the blazoning of such ordinaries as are plain, the bare mention of them is sufficient; but, if an ordinary should be made of any of the crooked lines, such as engrailed, wavy, &c. its form must be specified.

Page.

When a principal figure passes the center of the field, its position is not to be expressed; or, which amounts to the same thing, when a bearing is named without specifying the point where it is placed, then it is understood to posses the middle of the shield.

Stapleton:

The number of the points of mullets, and the rays of stars, must be specified when more than five; as also if a mullet, or any other charge, be pierced, it must be mentioned as such, to distinguish it from what is plain.

Davis.

When a ray of the sun, or other single figure, is bor'n in any other part of the escutcheon than the center, the point it issues from must be named.

The natural colour of trees, plants, fruits, birds, &c. is no otherwise to be expressed in blazoning, but by the word proper, of which there are numberless examples in this work. If they differ from their natural colour, their variation must be expressed.

When there are many figures of the same species born in coats of arms, their number must be observed as they stand, and distinctly expressed, as in the arms of Lowther. Sometimes they are ranged in the form of a pale, bend, fels, &c.

With

With respect to the marshalling of coats of arms, it must be observed, when the coats of arms of a married couple, descended of distinct samilies, are to be put together in one escutcheon, the field of their respective arms is conjoined paleways, and blazoned, parted per pale, baron and femme, two coats. In which case the baron's arms are always to be placed on the dexter side, and the semme's arms on the sinisfer.

If a widower marries again, his late and present wise's arms are to be both placed on the sinister side of the escutcheon with his own, and parted per pale. The first wise's coat shall stand on the chief, and the second on the base, or he may set them both in pale with his own, the first wise's coat next to himself, and his second outermost. If he should marry three wives, then the two first matches shall stand on the chief, and the third shall have the whole base; and if he takes a sourth wise, she must participate one half of the base with the third wise, and in this manner they will appear to be so many coats quartered. It must be observed, that these forms of impaling are meant of hereditary coats, whereby the husband stands in expectation of having the hereditary possessions of his wife united to his patrimony.

The person that marries an heires, instead of impaling his arms with those of his wise, is to bear them in an escutcheon placed in the center of the shield, and which, on account of its shewing forth his pretensions to her lands, is called an escutcheon of pretence: but the children are to bear the hereditary coats of arms of their father and mother quarterly, and so transmit them

Page (32,) line 15 from the bottom, after that important conjuncture, read, which original inftrument is now in the family, and is as follows:

' CHARLES R.

Charles the Second, by the grace of God, King of Eng-I land, Scotland, France, and Ireland, defender of the faith, . &c. To all persons to whom these presents shall come, greeting: Whereas we were graciously pleased, by commission, under the fignet and fign manuall of the two-and-twentieth 4 day of July, in the eleventh year of our reign, to constitute our right-trufty and well beloved George lord Delamer, then Sir George Booth, Bart. our commander in chiefe of all forces, which then were, or afterwards shall be, raised for our service, within our countyes of Cheshire, Lancashire, and North Wales, as appears by a duplicate of the same under our faid fignet and fign manuall of the ninth of August, in the said eleventh year of our reigne, now remaining in the hands of the faid lord Delamer, in these words: Charles, by the grace of God, King of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, defender of the faith, &c. To our right trufty and well-be-6 loved Sir George Booth, Bart, greeting, We do by these prefents constitute and appoint you to be commander in chiese of • all forces which are or shall be raised, for our service, within our counties of Cheshire, Lancashire, and North-Wales, e giving him full power and authority to order, conduct, and command the fame in all things, according to the lawes and customes of warre; and therewith to fight, kill and destroy, all who are, or shall be in armes against us, and to seize on any forts or places in rebellion against our authority within the faid counties, and to keepe and defend the fame for us and in our name: and to doe and execute all acts and powers belonging to the duty and office of a commander in chiefe, aps pointed to command the forces of those our said countyes; and we hereby require all major-generals, colonells, and other inferior officers and fouldiers under you, to observe and obey you as commander in cheife of the forces of the faid countyes. And you are to be obedient to fuch orders as you shall receive from us. For all which, this our commission shall be your fufficient warrant, to continue in force till we shall fignify our e pleasure to the contrary. Given at our court at Bruxelles, f this oth day of August, 1650, in the eleventh year of our reign. And whereas it hath so happened, that, through the f troubles and imprisonment, wherewith the usurped powers of those times persecuted the said lord Delamer for his loyalty to us and our interest, the said commission of the said 22d of July is miscarried and lost, we have thought fit, as well in remembrance of the early and eminent endeavours of the faid lord Delamer for our restauration, of which we will ever retaine ⁶ a very particular sence, as more especially in justification of 5 him for what he did and acted in order to our happy restauration and returne, whenfoever the fame shall be necessary, hereby to declare, that the same was done, acted and com-5 manded by him, in virtue of our faid commission, under our fignet and fign manuall, of the 22d day of July, in the eleventh year of our reign; which we do well remember to have been issued to that purpose, and whereof the copy or entry hath fince appeared to us, among the papers of the late Sir Edward Nicholas, then our principall secretary of state. Whereof we have thought fit to give this declaration, and will that the fame do serve not only for the justification and indempnity of the faid lord Delamer's actings and dealings at that time, but 4 also that it be and remaine, as a marke of the particular esteeme we have of the meritt of his fervice in that so important a con-• juncture. Given under our fignet and figne manuall at our court at Whitehall, the 21st day of March, in the twenty-! second year of our reigne.

By his Majesty's command,

' Arlington.'

To this Sir George Booth his Majesty also wrote a letter, bearing date at Columbe, Dec. 16, 1659; and another, (all his Majesty's own hand-writing) bearing date at Brussels, April 2, 1660, acknowledging his great obligations to the said Sir George Booth, for his endeavours to serve him, with assurances of his consideration of him and his for the same, the original being as follows:

A letter from King Charles the Second to Sir George Booth. Columbe, 16th Decemb. 1659.

Your handsome and considerable engagement gave me not onely full satisfaction for your former actions, but a tender sence of your particular missortune; and if it please God to bless me, neither you nor yours shall have cause to repent it.

Soe fignall a testimony as you have lately given of your inclinations to me, makes me very willing to encourage the generous retournes of missed persons, and to assure them they can noe sooner acknowledge their error, than I shall shew a valew and esteem for them. Your good friend, my lord Mordaunt, has given me a particular account of all your proceedings, by which I clearly find you intend my restoreation, and my kingdom's tranquillitie, and this induces me to give you the assurance of my being your very affectionate friend,

Charles R.'

Brusselles, 2 Aprill, 1660.

I am very willing to write by this honest bearer to you, not only that you may know that I am very well fatisfied in his integrity and affection for my service, but likewise that I may tell you, he hath, upon all occasions, represented you, · your courage and zeal for my interest, with that justice and kindnesse he ought to do; which I rather mention, because in this time of licence and reproach, there are too many who • take delight in traducing all men: and I doute not this per-I fon will be a good instrument to preserve a good understand-Ing between all my friendes in those partes, and that you will give him creditt accordingly. There is no person of whose affection I have more confidence than of yours, and I hope the time is at hande, that I may publish to all men how much 4 I owe you; and that you and your friendes will concur with • me in such a way, that the peace and happinesse of the nation may be established upon those good foundations, as may make it lasting and perpetuall, which is heartily prayed for, and · shall be as heartily endeavoured by,

' Your affectionate friende,

' Charles R.'

'My lord, Hindon, the 2d of December, 1688.

* I have heard so worthy a character of you, that I am glad to find you so frankly embarked in the same design with me; and you may depend on me to shew you all the kindness in my power. If your occasions will allow of it, I shall be glad to see you at Hungersord next Friday night; but you must send me notice of your coming the night before your arrival, that I may direct quarters for you and your troops, and that my out-guards may let you pass to me.

I am your most affectionate friend,

GERARD, of Bryn, Lancasbire.

Page 34. Instead of the five first lines of the third paragraph. read as follows: Richard Gerard, the second son of Sir Thomas, born in Oct. 1613, at the age of twenty-one, was one of those that went first into Maryland with Mr. Calvert, the lord Baltimore's uncle, lord proprietor thereof, where he continued till the latter end of the year 1635; at which time he raised a company of foot, with which he went into the service of the king of Spain in the Low Countries, and continued in that fervice till the breaking out of the civil wars in England; where the then Queen of England coming over to Holland, to her fonin-law, the Prince of Orange, to obtain some succours from him, he then quitted the Spanish service, and came to the Queen at the Hague, where her majesty was pleased to order him to raise a regiment of foot-guards, whereof he was to be lieutenant-colonel. Coming over to England with her faid majesty. and landing at Burlington-bay, he immediately repaired to the then earl of Newcastle, from whom he received his commission as lieutenant-colonel of the faid regiment he had raised, dated the 16th of March, 1642. Then marching with her majesty to Oxford, in his way was ordered to attack the town of Burton upon Trent, then garrisoned by the parliament, and, being joined by a party of horse, under the command of Sir Thomas Tyldesly, the town was attacked by the horse over the bridge, and by the foot through the river, in which he received a shot through his thigh, notwithstanding which the town was carried. After this he continued his march to Oxford, where he lay a long time ill of his dangerous wound, so that he was not able to take the field again till the second Newbery battle, where he then commanded the reserve, consisting of the regiment of guards, and Hawkins's; and, upon the furrender of Oxford, he had the benefit of those articles. Waiting upon his majesty. when he was prisoner at Hurst castle, he was the last person sent by his majesty to his Queen, then in France. Upon the restoration of King Charles II. in May, 1660, the first of January after, he was fworn cup-bearer in ordinary, and waiter to the then Queen-mother, in which office he continued till her majesty's death.

SHELLEY, of Michelgrove, Suffex.

Page 35. Instead of the first article, read the sollowing. This family is undoubtedly of great antiquity, and came out of France with William the Conqueror. Sir Richard Shelly, Knt. was knight of the shire for Huntingdon, and allowed thirty-Vol. III.

feven marks for his attendance in parliament. Temp. Will. Ruf. several of his descendants had summons to parliament among the barons. Sir Thomas She ly, Knt. was sent ambalsador into Spain, anno 1205; and Sir William Shelley was sent ambassador to the emperor of Germany, temp. Hen. VII. and in great effeem with Philip II. King of Spain, who employed him in several embassies to the See of Rome, and Germany. this family also, though a younger br nch, was judge Shelley, who was sent by King Henry VIII. to cardinal Wolsey, to demand the furrender of York-Place, near Westminster, (now Whitehall) belonging to the archbishop of York, into the King's hands, telling the cardinal, 'That his highness had sent for all the judges, and all his learned council, to know their opinions thereupon; whose opinions were, that your Grace must 6 make a recognizance, and, before a judge, to acknowledge and confess the right thereof to belong to the King and his fuccessors, wherefore the King hath appointed and fent me hither to take of you the same recognizance, having in your · Grace such affiance, as that you will not refuse so to do; and I desire to know your Grace's pleasure therein. Master Shele ley, (quoth my lord) I know that the King of his own nature is of a royal flomach, not willing more than justice shall lead him unto by the law; and therefore I counfel you, and all other judges and learned men of his council, to put no more into his head than law that may fland with conscience; for when ye tell him this is the law, ye should tell him also, that although this be the law, yet this is confcience; for law without conscience is not meet to be given to a king by his • council: for every counsellor to a king ought to have a respect to conscience, before the rigour of the law. The king ought, for his royal dignity and prerogative, to mitigate the rigour of the law, where conscience hath no more force. Therefore I say to you, that in this case, although you, and other of your profession, perceive by the orders of the law that the king may lawfully do that thing which ye require of me: how fay you, Master Shelley, may I do it with conscience, to give that away which is none of mine, from me and my fuccessors? If this be the law and conscience, I pray you, hew me your opinion. Forfooth, my lord, (quoth he) there is a great conscience: but having regard to the King's higher opower, and to a better purpole, it may the better stand with conscience, who is sufficient to recompence the church of York with double the value. That I know well, but here is no fuch condition, (quoth my lord) but only a bare and fimple departure with another's right. For if every bishop that may, fhould do so, then might every Prelate give away the patrimony of their dignities, which should be but smally to the king's honour. Well, I will not stand with you long in this matter; let me see your commission. To whom Mr. Shelley shewed the same; and that seen, Master Shelley, quoth he, ye shall shew the king's hghness that I am his most faithful subject, obediencer, and beadman, whose royal commandment and request I will in no wise disobey, but sulfil his pleasive in all such things wherein the fathers of the law say that I may lawfully do, therefore I charge your conscience to discharge me; howbeit, shew his highness from me, that I most humbly desire his majesty to call to his most gracious remembrance, that there is both a heaven and hell: and therewithall the clerk wrote the recognizance, and after some secret talk they departed.

Musgrave, of Hartley-Caftle, Westmoreland.

Page 47, line 19, after, Sir Philip was a great military gemius, instead of the following sentence, read, In the year 1644, he was made commander in chief of the two counties of Cumberland and Westmoreland, by commission from the marquis of Newcastle. He courageously afferted the royal cause, and was made governor of the city and citadel of Carlisse. When the King was at York, he waited on his majesty there, and afterwards at Oxford. To the marquis of Newcastle, at York, he fent, first, six hundred soldiers, then eighteen hundred, and afterwards, to prince Rupert, a thousand more, whom he raised and listed in the counties of Cumberland and Westmoreland. After the battle of Marston-Moor, he, with Sir Thomas Glenham, retired to Carlisle; upon the surrender of which garrison, (the last that yielded to the rebels) he attended the King at Cardiff, in Wales. At the defire of some loyal gentlemen, a new regiment of foot being raifed in Cumberland, he was appointed colonel of it by the King; but in September following, A. D. 1645, they were all defeated at Rowton-Moor, near Chester, by Pointz, a rebel-officer, and either killed or taken prisoners: Sir Philip was among them, and was fent to York; but had fome favour shewn him, by means of his uncle, the lord Wharton, engaged on the other fide. Upon his enlargement after being taken at Rowton-Moor, viz. in April 1648, he received from Sir Marmaduke Langdale a new commission, to be commander in chief of the counties of Cumberland and Westmoreland, and having taken Carlifle from the rebels by furprize, he was appointed governor thereof. After the battle of Worcester, Sir Philip attended on his majesty King Charles II. both in France and Holland; and from the latter, waited on him in Scotland, where all the king's fervants being enjoined to depart that kingdom within eight days, he retired to the Isle of Man, where he was honourably entertained by the earl of Derby, until that earl received from the King an order to meet him in England with such forces as he could raise in the island, and that he should fend Sir Philip Musgrave to him with all speed. Upon the receipt of this order, Sir Philip failed for Scotland; but being fo long detained at fea by contrary winds, that the King's army had marched before his arrival, and not being able to escape the rebels, he was forced to defift from his defign of following the King, and to stay in Scotland until the counters of Derby sent a ship on purpose to setch him back to the Isle of Man, and appointed him governor; which place he bravely defended, under the countess, until it was reduced to the last extremity; and then, that lady having furrendered upon honourable terms, he had leave to retire to any part of England. At the restoration of King Charles iI. A. D. 1660, he was made governor of Carlifle, and had some other reparation made him by the Crown for the fufferings of his family. He had a warrant for creating him Baron Musgrave, of Hartley-Castle, but he never took out the patent.

SAVILE, of Thornbill, Yorksbire.

Page 60, line 26. After Attachment to the royal cause, omit the four following lines, and read as follows: She was a person of incomparable affection to his majesty, of singular prudence in defigning great things for his fervice, and of great interest and power to render them effectual, by the adherence of many perfons of honour, ability and loyalty, to her, and particularly by my lord Langdale's going along with her in all things, for his majosty's service: this lady also held a close correspondence with Thomas Holder, Esq; auditor-general to the duke of York. for the same purpose, and, during his confinement, with Dr. To this good lady was owing the escape of Sir Marmaduke Langdale, who was condemned by the rebels to die; for the found out such proper hands, by prefents, to mollify the guards, and invented so seasible a way for his escape, that Sir Marmaduke got out of prison with little difficulty to himself. and not much censure to his keepers, from the rebels their ma-This illustrious heroine, lady Savile, was always suspected by Cromwell's party, not only to be privy to these noble atchievements, but to be the author and director of them all; yet they could never come to a certain knowledge of this, though they laid their snares on all sides to entrap her, and made no doubt but she would at length be taken therein, and their ardent defire of deftroying her be accomplished. This gallant lady, famous even for her warlike actions, beyond her fex, had a little before been befieged by the rebels in Sheffield-castle, in Yorkshire, which they battered on all sides by great guns, though the was big with child; and had fo little regard for her fex, that in that condition, they refused a midwife, she had sent for, the liberty of going to her: yet this unheard-of barbarity was fo far from moving her, that the refolved to perifh, rather than furrender the castle; but the walls being every where full of cracks with age, and ready to fall, the foldiers of the garrison began to mutiny, not fo much concerned for their own danger, as for the lamentable condition of this noble lady, fo near the time of her falling in labour; for the was brought to bed the night after the castle was furrendered. This lady, a little before the battle of Worcester, generously contributed one thoufand pounds to his majesty's subsistence; and by her means, colonel Venables, a person of note in Cromwell's army, was brought over to the King's interest. She had a great respect for those clergymen who adorned their doctrines by the holiness of their lives, and was a great support to them. She lived to see the happy Restoration, and died about a year and a half after it, of whom Dr. Barwick says: 'The lady Savile, that illustrious example of piety towards God, and love to her country, about this time religned her breath, eafily yielding to a diffemper contracted from her weariness of an age so wicked and so "ungrateful to God, unshaken as she had stood against the secret conspiracies and open force of the most inveterate ene-" mies of the crown. When she found her disease encrease upon her, leaving the town, she went to her house at Wimple, in Cambridgeshire, and sent for Dr. Barwick from London, defirous to make use of his pious ministration in her last extremity.'

HALES, of Woodchurch, Kent.

Page 96, line 24, after brought him to the scaffold, instead of the three following lines, read as follows: Of which enterprize my lord Clarendon gives the following relation: Mr. L'Estrange, (the samous Sir Roger) says he, had a great friendship with a young gentleman, Mr. Hales, who lived in Kent, and was married to a lady of noble birth and fortune, he being heir to one of the greatest fortunes in that country, but was to expect the inheritance from the savour of an old severe grandsather, who, for the present, kept the young couple from running into any excess; the mother of the lady being of as four and strict a nature as the grandfather, and both of them so much of the parliament party, that they were not willing any part of their effates should be hazarded for the king. At the house of this Mr. Hales, Mr. L'Estrange was, when, by the communication which that part of Kent always hath with the ships which lie in the Downs, the report first did arise that the fleet would prefently declare for the king; and those seamen who came on shore talked as if the city of London would join with them. This drew many gentlemen of the country, who wished well, to visit the ships, and they returned more confirmed of the truth of what they had heard. Good fellowship was a vice spread every where; and this young great heir, who had been always bred among his neighbours, affected that which they were best pleased with, and so his house was a rendezvous for those who delighted in that exercise, and who every day brought him the news of the good inclinations of the fleet for the King; and all mens mouths were full of the general hatred the whole kingdom had against the parliament as well as the army.

In this posture of affairs, Mr. L'Estrange easily induced Mr. Hales to put himself at the head of his own country, that was willing to be led by him; and his lady, who was full of zeal for the king, joining with him, the young gentleman, resolved to do somewhat for his majesty's service, at a juncture when the Scots were ready to march into England, and most parts of the kingdom ready to rife; but being not enough conversant in the affairs of the world, he referred himself and the whole business to be governed by Mr. L'Estrange, who was believed, by his discourse, to be an able soldier. Accordingly letters were sent to particular gentlemen, and warrants to the constables of hundreds, requiring, ' in his majesty's name, all persons to appear at a time ' and place appointed, to advise together, and lay hold on such opportunities as should be offered for relieving the king, and delivering him out of prison.' And meeting accordingly they unanimously elected Mr. Hales for their general, declaring they would be ready to join and march as he directed: and accordingly a good body of horse and foot were drawn together, at Maidstone, Mr. Hales having taken up, on his own security, near 80000 l. to defray the expence; and they were so strong that the commander of the parliament forces, sent to suppress them, wrote word that he durst not advance. On the news of this commotion, (the first in the kingdom) the earl of Norwich was dispatched to Kent, to command as general. Upon the news of another general being fent, Mr. Hales retired, with his friend Mr. L'Estrange, to Holland; not that his affection was in the least declined, but being threatened by his grandfather, on the one side, and his wife by her mother on the other, he was willing to put his wife out of the reach of her mother, resolving to return himself, and venture his person in the service; which be did after heartily endeavour to do; but that body raised in Kent being asterwards dispersed by faction and ill counsel, he remained in Holland, and was ever after forced to abscond, and, for the most part, live beyond the seas.

De Crepitu in Parliaments.

Down came Sir John Croke,
And said his message on his book;
Sir William Norris nodded so so,
But William Ludlow's burn cry'd no.
Up stood one, suller of devotion
Than eloquence, and cry'd, A good motion.
I doubt of that, quoth Sir Hary Jenkyn,
I like the motion, but for the stinking,
And before this business be transacted,
I think this fart must be enacted.

HOTHAM, of Scarborough, Yorksbire.

In order to oblige the inquisitive part of our readers, who may be desirous of being acquainted with the whole history of the remarkable misfortunes of Sir Charles Hotham, Bart. and his son, Capt. John Hotham, of whom we have slightly made mention,

This Sir John Hotham, Bart. was governor of Hull, temp. Car. I. and in the year 1643, fays Mr. Rushworth, 'Sir John and his fon were discovered to hold correspondence with the e royal party. Upon what ground of discontent, or proffered hopes, they entertained thoughts of deferting the parliament, in whose service they had so far engaged, is hard to determine. Some differences there happened between Sir John and the lord Fairfax, to whom Sir John was unwilling to sub-4 mit, though he were the parliament's general in those parts: 4 and some said, that the parliament, hearing of this contest, intended to displace Hotham, which he having discovered by 6 intercepted letters, began to have new defigns. I have been informed by a gentleman that was Sir John Hotham's fecretary at that time, of another ground of diffatisfaction between 6 them, viz. that about three weeks before the fight at Edgehill, Sir John Hotham sent a letter to the speaker of the house 4 of commons, another to the earl of Northumberland, and a third to the earl of Holland, the subject matter of all three being earnest arguments to persuade them to use their endeavours, and improve their interest, to induce the parliament to an accommodation with the king, before matters came to extremity; for, if the fword was once drawn, it would be with us as it was with the Romans, in the time of Cæsar and Pome pey, when it was faid, whoever had the better, the Roman · liberty was fure to have the worst; and that these letters bee got an ill opinion of Sir John, amongst fome powerful mem-· bers; and that there having been a treaty, and some letters • passed between the earl of Newcastle, and Sir John: the earl fent to Ferdinando, lord Fairfax, to let him know, that if he would fend him a person he could confide in, he would advertife him of some things worth his notice; upon which, coloe nel John Allured was fent, to whom copies were given of some letters written by Sir John, which were communicated to those that bore him ill-will in the house of commons; upon which, jealousies were much increased against him. This is the account given by Sir John Hotham's secretary, who is yet But, whatever might be the inducements, so it was, that about the middle of June, Sir John Meldrum seized captain John Hotham, (Sir John's son,) in his bed, and sent him prisoner to Nottingham-castle, from whence he sound means to escape, and went to Lincoln; and sent a letter thence, dated Lune the 24th, to the parliament, complaining of his impriionment, and that he was ready to answer what should be ob-· iected igected against him. But soon after went to his father, to Hull, which giving the parliament fresh occasion of jealousy, order was given to Sir Matthew Boynton to have an eye upon them, and to endeavour to preserve the town if he perceived it in danger; and Sir Matthew being Sir John Hotham's brother-in-law, was the less mistrusted by him.

On Wednesday, the 28th of June, a letter was sent from captain Moyer, (commander of the Hercules, a man of war that lay in the road) to one Mr. Robert Ripley, in Hull, praying him to acquaint the mayor that there was a dangerous plot on foot against that town, from the treachery of Sir John Hotham, the governor, which would, that night, or the next, be e put in execution, if not prevented. Ripley presently acquainted the mayor, who communicated it about ten o'clock at ' night to some aldermen, and to Sir Matthew Boynton, and other gentlemen; but the latter would not be feen to act, and therefore left it wholly to the townsmen, only gave them their advice and approbation, and did order that private notice should be given to fuch as were most zealous for the parliament, fo that by three or four o'clock in the morning there were about 1500 men in readiness, expecting the word of command from the mayor; and then, every man armed, with his musket chareged, and match lighted, came forth and drew up in feveral bodies, feized first upon the commanders and the main guard, next upon all that had any relation to the governor, and particularly on captain Hotham, then on the magazine, and all the ordnance on the walls, and the guards at the gates, and the three block-houses, and the castle; so that the whole town, and all that belonged to it, was in lefs than about an hour's time fecured, without one drop of blood, or so much as a musket discharged. Sir John, having then notice of what was done, got out of his house, and meeting a man riding into the town, made him alight, and mounted his horse, and so passed through Beverly gate, the guard having yet no order to stop him. But his pursuers immediately coming thither, and seeing him gone, one from the walls shot a musket, and a gunner discharged a piece of ordnance at him. Fearing a pursuit, he quitted Beverley-road, and turned down to a ferry, intending to have got over into Holderness, but there missing of a boat, was forced to ride on to Beverly, whither Sir Matthew Boyn-6 ton's man was now got before him, with a letter to his fon, colonel Boynton, acquainting him with the plot, and order to e apprehend Sir John Hotham, if he came there, and also Sir Ldward Rodes, who had a company there, and was suspected of a defign to yield up that town too, but nothing proved sagainst him. Sir John Hotham soon after coming into Beverley, colonel Boynton took his horse by the bridle, and told him he was his prisoner: and presently Sir Edward Rodes was seized, and both sent to Hull, and put on board the ship Hercules, which soon after conveyed them and captain Hotham to London, where they arrived July 15, and were committed to the Tower.

Sir John Hotham was brought before the court-martial, at Guildhall, Nov. 30, 1644, Sir William Waller being president; the substance of the charge against him was, That he had traiterously betrayed his trust reposed in him by the par- liament, and adhered to the enemy, which would be proved by his words, his letters, and his actions; viz. his correspondence with the lord Digby, and the marquis of Newcastle; his refufal to supply the lord Fairsax with powder, arms, and ammuf nition, to the great differvice of the parliament, and the prejudice of their affairs in Yorkshire; his untering divers slanderous words against the parliament and close committee; his endeavouring to betray the town of Hull to the enemy; his holding a correspondence with the queen, by several messengers; his causing a demi-culverin to be placed on the top of the castle, against the town, and two pieces in the block-house, to give fire on the parliament ships; his sending away captain Moyer, captain of the great ship called the Hercules; his quitting the garrison at Ecverley, which was a great means to ftraiten Hull, and lastly, his endeavours to escape, as soon as he conceived his design discovered; for proof of all which, 4 about thirty witnesses were produced and examined.

Sir John produced divers witnesses on his behalf, whose testimenies chiefly tended to invalidate the credit, and take off the evidence, which had been deposed against him. And the next day, having desired that his sons, Mr. Charles and Mr. William Hotham, might be heard, the court (although not usual) granted it; they spoke largely for the most part to the same purpose, and on the Wednesday Sir John concluded his whole desence; but his allegations not being satisfactory to the court, they, on Saturday, December the 7th, proceeded to sentence, which was, that he should suffer death, by having his head cut off, which was appointed to be done on Monday, so 16th of December; but on his lady's petition for time to settle his estate, deferred.

His son, captain John Hotham, came to his trial before the fame court, where he was charged,——That he, being a commander in the service of the parliament, had betrayed the trust in him reposed, and perfidiously adhered to the enemy, and endeavoured deavoured to betray a regiment of horse, and other forces, into

'He produced a great number of witnesses to take off the credit of the evidence against him, (who were heard, indeed, but had no more regard paid to them than his father had to his;)

and the advocate having replied, on Tuefday, the 24th of December, he likewise received sentence to be beheaded.

On Saturday, December 28th, a message was sent from the lords to the commons, with a petition from Sir John Hotham, praying a pardon (as to life) for himself and his son; and that the lords, upon the said petition were willing to grant to Sir John Hotham his own life, and defired the concurrence of the house of commons therein; which occasioned a long debate, and was resumed again on Monday, and then carried in the e negative.

So that Tuesday, the last of December, being the day formerly appointed for Sir John's execution, great multitudes of spectators were assembled, and the scaffold, his cossin, the executioner, and all things were in a readiness; but about eleven of the clock in the forenoon, as he was coming from the Tower towards the hill, attended by the lieutenant, and the provost-martial, and the guard, and divers gentlemen and ministers, a messenger came riding with a reprieve from the house of peers, directed to the lieutenant of the Tower and provostmartial, requiring them to defer the execution until Saturday following, upon which he was carried back to the Tower.

following, upon which he was carried back to the Tower.

The house of commons having notice that the execution was deferred, they not affenting, nor being privy to any reprieve, fent an order to know the cause why execution was not done upon Sir John Hotham; who, the next day, January 1, 1644-5, acquainting them with the said reprieve from the house of peers, the commons, after some debate, passed an order, that no officer or ministers of justice, shall hereafter stay the execution of justice, upon any particular order or reprieve from either house of parliament, without the concurrence of both houses. And this order to be sent to the commissioners for martial law, to the lieutenant of the Tower, and the provost martial. And further ordered, that the lieutenant of the Tower do proceed to the execution of Sir John Hotham, according to the sentence of the court-martial.

Hereupon, finding no hopes of the father's pardon, the fol lowing petitions were immediately preferred on behalf of the fon, both written with his own hand, who was on this very day appointed to fuffer.

To the right honourable the house of peers in parliament.
The humble petition of captain John Hotham;

' Humbly sheweth,

HAT he acknowledgeth that he hath justly merited your heavy displeasure, and deserveth the greatest punishment that can be inslicted upon him, for that he hath required your abundant favours with ingratitude, arrogance, and folly: he well knows that he deserves not any mercy; neither should he have moved you in it, if your honours elemency, his desolate family, the tears and lamentations of a poor wife and helpless children, did not move him to sue for mercy. He hath forborn to trouble you, or interest your good intentions, whils there was hope of mercy to his distressed father, but hearing, to his great grief, that sentence is unrevoked, he is bold to present his miserable condition to their merciful consideration.

- And humbly prays, that whereas a fentence of death is passed upon him by the council of war, that you would mitigate his punishment, and change it into a fine, or
 - banishment, or both; and your petitioner will daily and duly pray, &c.

John Hotham

- To the hon, the house of commons, in parliament assembled,
 The humble petition of captain John Hotham;
 - " Humbly theweth,

THAT he acknowledges his faults and his follies committed against you are so many, that all the punishment that you can inslict will be according to justice; your great and abundant savours he hath requited with arrogancy and negligence, so that if his knowledge of your great mercy to offenders did not encourage him, the consciousness of his own unworthiness would have kept him from hoping for savour: but the cries and tears of a poor wise, helpless children, desolated samily, hath moved him, a poor condemned commoner, to say for mercy to the commons of England, and he hath sorbore thus long to petition you, because there were hopes your mercy would have been extended to his poor distressed sather, and he would not give interruption to his petition, although it had cost him his own life; but since, to his great grief, he hears the sentence is unrevoked,

He humbly prays, that your great elemency and mercy will look upon him in the next place, and mitigate his heavy

- heavy sentence of death, into banishment and fine, or
- what other punishment you please; and your petitioner,
- his wife, and poor children, will daily pray for profpefrity to your affairs, and will remain,

' Your humble petitioner,
' John Hotham.

These petitions not availing, he was the same day, toward noon, brought to the scaffold on Tower-hill, where Mr. Coleman, minister of the Tower, made a prayer, captain Hotham joining with him; and after that the captain made a prayer himfelf, and then rifing up, and turning to the people, he

Gentlemen,

YOU fee in what a condition I stand: you all come here to look upon me as a spectacle of shame and justice; and I believe many of you are possessed with apprehension of great crimes and treasons that I have committed against the parliament: those things, I must declare to you all, this conscience knows no guilt of; what I have advantaged the parliament's cause, is notorious; and that I did never disadvantage it, I think is proved alfo. I have been very violent in the parliament, and did many things according to the fwinge of the times; I did engage myself in their cause, I did them service in possessing of Hull, I preferved the forts, magazine, towns, and forces, and never miscarried in any attempt. It hath pleased God to bring me to this end for my fins against him, which I acknow-· ledge to be just; but not for any treason against the parliament, neither do I know any treason, or intention of treason, in my poor father, who lies in the fame condition that I do. whatever other men do call treason: this I testify to all here. -And having spoken some other words to the same purpose, Mr. Coleman prayed again, and the prisoner prepared himself for the block, whereon having laid his head, the executioner, at one blow, fevered it from his body, which his brother, Mr. Durant Hotham, standing by, took up, wrapt in a scarf, and · laid it, together with his body, in the coffin.

The next day, his father, Sir John Hotham, was conducted to the same place, where Mr. Peters, attending him, first told the people, that it was the defire of Sir John Hotham, that fince he had in his chamber fully discovered his mird to him, and other ministers, many questions might not be put to him, but that he might have liberty to speak only what he thought

- fit concerning himself.——Then Sir John coming up to the rail, put off his hat, and spake as followeth:
 - Gentlemen,

be for ever glorified.

- I know no more of myself but this, that I deserve this death from Almighty God, nay, that I deserve damnation, and the severest punishments from him. But, as for the business of Hull, the betraying of it from the parliament, the ministers have all been with me, and give me good counsel; neither was I any ways guilty of it; that is all I can say to that act; for other offences, rash words, anger, and such things, no man hath been more guilty, I beseech God to forgive me; I have received as many savours as any man from God, and I have been as ungrateful as any man could be; but God Almighty, (I hope) has forgiven me my sins, and I desire you all to pray God for me, that I may be forgiven.
- I hope, God Almighty will forgive me, the parliament, and the court-martial, and all men that have had any thing to do with my death. And, gentlemen, I thank this worthy gentleman, (Mr. Peters,) for putting me in mind of it, and I pray God bring more things into my memory; and, gentlemen, look to it all, as I; I have received many mercies from God, and have been unfruitful, ungrateful to him under them, and God Almighty hath let me see, that though for this offence whereof I am accused, he hath not done it; yet he hath brought this affliction upon me to save my soul, and by and through the merits of Jesus Christ, for alas, this affliction is nothing to all my sins; God Almighty kept me from my trial at St. Albans, and other places, to bring me to this place, that I hope I shall glorify God in, and his blessed name
- Then Mr. Peters spake again, and told the audience, that he had something surther to commend unto them from Sir John Hotham, which was, that he had lived in abundance of plenty, his estate large, about 2000l. a year at first, and that he had gained much to it: that in the beginning of his days, he was a soldier in the Low-countries, and was at the battle of Prague: that at his sirst going out for a soldier, his father spake to him to this effect; Son, when the crown of England lies at stake, you will have fighting enough. That he had run through great hazards and undertakings, and now coming to this end, desired that they would take notice in him of the vanity of all things here below, as wit, parts, prowess, strength, friends, honour, or what else.
- 6 Then Mr. Peters having prayed, and, after him, Sir John, 6 they fing the 38th Pfalm, and Sir John kneeling behind the block, spent above a quarter of an hour in private prayer; after which, lying down, the executioner, at one blow, did his office.'

My lord Clarendon fays, 'Sir John was of a fearful nature and perplexed understanding, and could better resolve upon de-Liberation than on a fudden; and many were of opinion, that if he had been prepared dextroully before hand, and in confidence, he would have conformed to the king's pleafure; for he was mafter of a noble fortune in land, and rich in money; of a very antient family, and well allied; his affections to the government very good, and no man less defired to see the nation involved in a civil war than he: and, when he accepted this employment from the parliament, he never imagined it would engage him in a rebellion; but believed, that the king would find it necessary to comply with the advice of his two houses; and that the preferving that magazine from being possessed by him, would likewise prevent any possible rupture into arms. He was now in great confusion, and calling some of the chief magistrates, and other officers together to consult, they perfuaded him not to fuffer the king to enter into the town. And his majesty, coming within an hour after his messenger, found the gates thut, and the bridges drawn, and the walls manned; all things being in a readine's for the reception of an enemy. Sir John Hotham, himself, from the walls, with several profestions of duty, and expressions of fear, telling his majesty. . That he durft not open the gates, being entrufted by the parliament; the king told him, that he believed he had no order from the par -· liament to fout the gates against him, or to keep him out of the town. · He replied, That his train was fo great, that if it were admitted, he should not be able to give a good account of the town. Whereupon the king offered, to enter with twenty horse only, and that the rest should stay without. The which the other refusing, the king defired him to come to him, that he might confer with him, upon bis princely word of fafety, and liberty to return. And when he excused himself likewise from that, his majesty told him, Thatas this act of his was unparalleled, so it would produce some notable effect; that it was not possible for him to sit down by such an indignity, but that he would immediately proclaim him traitor, and · proceed against him as such; that this disobedience of his would probably bring many miseries upon the kingdom, and much loss of blood; all which might be prevented, if he performed the duty of a · subject; and therefore advised him to think sadly of it, and to prewent the necessary growth of so many calamities, which must lie all upon his conscience. The gentleman, with much distraction in his looks, talked confusedly of the trust he had from the par-VOL. III. Ff liament :

Itament; then fell on his knees, and wished, That God would bring confusion upon him, and his, if he were not a loyal and faithful subject to his majesty; but, in conclusion, plainly denied to suffer his majesty to come into the town. Whereupon the king caused him immediately to be proclaimed a traitor, which the other received with some expressions of undutifulness and contempt. And so the king, after the duke of York, and the prince elector, with their retinue, were come out of the town, where they were kept some hours, was forced to retire that night to Beverly, sour miles from that place, and the next day returned to York, full of trouble and indignation for the affront he had received, which he foresaw would produce a very great deal of mischief.

The king fent an express to the two houses, with a message, declaring what had passed; and, That Sir John Flotham had justified his treason and disloyalty, by pretence of an order and trast from them; which, as he could not produce, so his majesty was consider, they would not own; but would be highly sensible of the scandal he had laid upon them, as well as of his disloyalty to his majesty.

And therefore, he demanded justice of them, upainst him, according to lato.

Instead of any answer to his majesty upon this message, or sadly considering how this breach might be made up, they immediately published (together with a declaration of their former jealousies of the papists, of the malignant party, of the lord Digby's letter intercepted; of the earl of Newcastle's being fent thither, upon which they had first fent down a governor, and put a garrison into Hull,) several votes and resolutions, by which they declared,

That Sir John Hotham had done nothing but in obedience to the command of both houses of parliament; and that the declaring of him a traitor, being a member of the house of commons, was a high breach of the privilege of parliament, and being without due process of law, was against the liberty of the subject, and against the law of the land.

My lord Clarendon says surther, 'There was an act of divine institute, executed by those at Westminster, which ought not to be forgotten in the relation of the affairs of this year, and which ought to have caused very useful resections to be made by many, who were equally engaged; some of whom afterwards did undergo the same sate. There hash been often mention before, of Sir John Horman, who shut the gates of Hull against the king, and resused to give him entrance into that town, when he came thither, attended only by his own lervants, before the beginning of the war, and was, in truth, the immediate cause of the war. It was the more wonderful, that a person of a full and ample fortune, who was not disturbed by any fancies in religion, had unquestioned duty to the crown, and reverence for the government both of church and state, should so foolithly expose himself, and his family, of great antiquity, to comply with the humours of those men, whose persons he did not much esteem, and whose designs he perfectly detested. But, as his particular animofity against the earl of Strafford first engaged him in that company, so his vanity and ambition, and the concessions the king had made to their unreasonable demands, made him concur farther with them than his own judgment disposed him to. He had taken upon him the government of Hull, without any apprehension or imagination that it would ever make him accessary to rebellion; but believed, that when the king and parliament should be reconciled, the eminence of that charge would promote him to fome of those rewards and honours, which that party resolved to divide among themselves. When he found himself more dangerously and desperately embarked than he ever intended to be, he bethought himself of all possible ways to disentangle himfelf, and to wind himself out of the labyrinth he was in. His comportment towards the lord Digby, and Ashburnham, and his inclinations at that time, have been mentioned before at harge; and from that time the entire confidence the parliament had in his fon, and the vigilance and jealoufy that he was known to have towards his father, was that alone that preserved him 6 longer in the government. Besides that, they had so constituted the garrison, that they knew it would never be in the father's power to do them hurt. But, after this, when they discovered some alteration in the son's behaviour, and that the pride and Rubborness of his nature would not suffer him to submit to the command of the lord Fairfax, and that superiority over both his father and him, with which the parliament had invested that lord, and had some inkling of secret messages between the marquis of Newcastle and young Hotham, they caused both father and son to be suddenly seized upon, and sent up prisoners to the parliament; which immediately committed them to the Tower, upon a charge of high treason.

Though there was evidence enough against them, yet they had so many friends in both houses of parliment, and some of that interest in the army, that they were preserved from farther prosecution, and remained long prisoners in the Tower, without being brought to any trial; so that they believed their punishment to be at the highest. But when that party prevailed that resolved to new model the army, and to make as many examples of their rigour and severity, as might terrify all men from falling from them, they called importunately, that the two Hothams might be tried at the court of war, for their treachery and treason; and they who had hitherto preserved them had now lost their interest, so that they were both brought to their trial, some little time before the treaty at Uxbridge, and both condemned to lose their heads. The principal charge against the father was, his suffering the lord Digby to escape; and a letter was produced, by the treachery of a servant, against the son, which he had sent to the marquis of Newcastle. The vile artifices that were used both before and after their trial, were so barbarous and inhuman as have been rarely practised among Christians.

'The father was first condemned to suffer, upon a day apopinted, and the fon afterwards to be executed in like manner, the day following: the night before, or the very morning that Sir John Hotham was to die, a reprieve was fent from the house of peers, to suspend his execution for three days. The com- mons were highly incenfed at this prefumption of the lords; and to prevent the like mischief for the suture, they made an order, · To all mayors, sheriffs, bayliffs, and other ministers of justice, that ono reprieve should be granted, or allowed for any person against whom the sentence of death was pronounced, except the same bad e passed, and had the consent of both houses of parliament; and that if it passed only by the house of peers, it should be looked upon as invalid and void, and execution should not be thereupon forborne or fulpended. By this accident the fon was brought to his execution before his father, upon the day on which he was fentenced to fuffer; who died with courage, and reproaching the ingratitude of the parliament, and their continuance of the war, concluded, that as to them he was very innocent, and had never been e guilty of treason. The father was brought to the scaffold the next day: for the house of commons, to shew their prerogative over the lords, fent an order to the lieutenant of the Tower, which should cause him to be executed that very day, which was two days before the reprieve granted by the house of peers was expired. Whether he had yet some promise from Peters. that he should only be shewed to the people, and so returned 6 fafe again to the Tower, which was then generally reported and believed, or whether he was broken with despair, (which is more probable,) when he faw that his enemies prevailed fo far, that he could not be permitted to live those two days which the peers had granted him, certain it is, that the poor ' man appeared so dispirited, that he spoke but sew words after he came upon the scaffold, and suffered his ungodly confessor, · Peters.

Peters, to tell the people that he had revealed himself to him, and consessed his offences against the parliament; and so he committed his head to the block. This was the woeful tragedy of these two unhappy gentlemen, in which there were so many circumstances of an unusual nature, that the immediate hand of God could not but appear in it to all who knew their natures, hu nours, and transactions.

DERING, of Surenden-Dering, Kent.

Page 265, after line 21, add, But a true account of this gentleman's behaviour may be taken from the following extract of a letter, wrote by a very worthy gentleman, and prefixed to Spot's Chronicle, published by Mr. Thomas Hearne:

SIR.

THINK myself obliged to answer your last letter—; and to return you my hearty thanks for your intention therein expressed, of doing justice to the memory of Sir Edward Dering, knight and baronet: (knighted by King James I. and made a baronet by King Charles the Martyr:) who was father of Sir Edward, one of the lords of the treasury, who was father of Sir Edward, who was father of Sir Cholmley, father of the present

Sir Edward Dering.

Whatever opinion the world may have conceived of that gentleman, from his behaviour in the beginning of the long parliament, (for which I cannot make a better apology than he himself has done, in his printed speeches,) sure I am, that the king had not a more loyal subject, nor the church of England a more zealous defender. It was his zeal to the church, and his loyalty to the king, that caused him to be sent a prisoner to the Tower, on the second of February, 1641, and to be voted unworthy of sitting in that parliament: (the greatest honour that I think he could receive from their hands:) and one captain Skinner, from whom the house was sure they should meet with no opposition, was admitted into his place, as knight of the shire for the county of Kent.

Sir Edward was no sooner dismissed out of the Tower, than the parliament thought fit to call him a delinquent, and an order was accordingly issued out, the 28th of March, 1642, for apprehending his person, signed by William Lenthald, Speaker, By what means he escaped the messengers hands, or whether he did escape them, I know not; but I find he was with the king at Nottingham, the August following, when he set up his standard; and in his majesty's service he continued till February, 1643, at which time he was at Oxford, and had the command of a regiment of horse, which (as I have it by tradition) he raised at his own expence for the king's service. But being violently afflicted with a pain in his head, (of which he died foon after) and in his shoulder, so great that he could not lift his hand to his head, he obteyned his Majesty's leave to quit his regiment, and retired privately to a farm-house of his own, where he lived concealed till, by the interest of some acquaintance then in power, he regained his liberty; a liberty, as he himself calls it, of starving with good company (his wife and children) in good air: for he was never able to get the sequestration of his estate taken off; but died of an imposshume in his head, on the 22d of June, 1644, (being about four months after he left Oxford) in the 46th year of his age, and left his whole estate sequestered, and his eldest son a minor, and beyond sea.

Perhaps no gentleman suffered more for his adherence to the king, than this Sir Edward did: his whole estate was sequestered; his house, newly surnished, was sour several times plundered by the parliament soldiers; his goods and stock were all seized, and took away; his farm houses and sences ruined and destroyed; his wood and timber selled; his rents abated; and himself reduced to that extreme poverty, that he was forced, with his wise and children, for many weeks before he died, to drink

Thus, Sir, I have given you a faithful account of this unfortunate gentleman, from the time that he was turned out of the parliament to the day of his death. If you, Sir, shall think fit to publish any part of it, you will do justice to his memory, and particularly oblige, Sir,

Your very humble servant.

BAGOT, of Blithfield, Staffordshire.

Page 283, line 9, after 21 R. II. add, Sir William was an active and ambitious man; and being one of his chief favourites and counsellor in that turbulent time, when Henry duke of Lancaster, who had been formerly banished, landed at Ravenspur, in Yorkshire, fled, with the rest of his sellows, to Bristol, there hoping to protect himself in that strong castle: but the discontented lords taking advantage of the king's absence, (then in Ireland) quickly raised an army of no less than 60,000; and, belieging that castle, in a short time took it, and therein all of them, except this Sir William Bagot; who, having made his escape, fled into Ireland; and of those so taken, forthwith beheaded William le Scrope, lord Treasurer, Sir John Bushy, and Sir Henry Green; all which happened the 22d and last year of King Richard II. whose deposal soon after ensued. It feems this Sir William came back again to England, with King Richard; for within a month after the new king began his reign, and committed him prisoner to the Tower of London, viz. 22 Nov. yet on the 24th of November following, the sheriff of this county received commands (for special reasons thereunto moving the King, as the writ faith) that he should permit the bishop of St. David's, and other, the feoffces of his lands in this county, amongst which this manor of Bagington is mentioned in the first place, to have the possession of them. But this displeasure of the king continued not very long; for the 12th of November following he gave command to the constable of the Tower for his enlargement. It seems he was still popular; for in the parliament held at Westminster the same year, the commons petitioned, that he might be restored to his lands: whereunto the king answered, that as he had allowed him pardon, so would he otherwise shew him justice, which extended to his reception into favour.

Page 468, after line 22, from the bottom, add, We will instance and insist on one memorable act of our judge, (fays Dugdale) which, though fingle in itself, was plural in the concernings thereof. And let the reader know, that I have not been careless to fearch, though unhappy not to find, the original record, perchance abolished on purpose, and silenced for telling tales to the disgrace of great ones. We must now be contented to write this story out of the English chronicles; and let him die of drought without pity, who will not quench his thirst at the river because he cannot come at the sountain.

King Edward the Fourth, having married into the samily of the Woodvils, (gentlemen of more antiquity than wealth, and of higher spirits than fortunes) thought fit, for his own honour, to bestow honour upon them, but he could not so easily provide them of wealth as titles. For honour he could derive from himfelf, like light from a candle, without any diminishing of his own lustee; whereas wealth flowing from him, as water from a fountain, made the spring the shallower. Wherefore he resolved to cut down some prime subjects, and to ingraff the queen's kindred into their estates, which otherwise, like suckers, must seed

There was at this time one Sir Thomas Cook, late lord mayor of London, and knight of the bath, one who had well licked his fingers under Queen Margaret, (whose wardrober he was, and eustomer of Hampton) a man of a great estate. It was agreed that he should be accused of high treason, and a commission of over and terminer granted forth to the lord mayor, the duke of Clarence, the earl of Warwick, the lord Rivers, Sir John Markham, Sir John Fogg, &c. to try him in Guild-hall: and the king, by private instructions to the judge appeared so far, that Cook, though he was not, must be found guilty, and if the law were too short, the judge must stretch it to the purpose.

The fault laid to his charge was for lending moneys to Queen Margaret, wife to King Henry the Sixth; the proof was the confession of one Hawkins, who, being racked in the Tower, had confessed so much. The council for the king, hanging as much weight on the smallest wire as it would hold, aggravated each particular, and by their rhetorical slashes blew the fault up to a great height. Sir Thomas Cook pleaded for himself, that Hawkins, indeed, upon a season, came to him, and requested him to lend one thousand marks, upon good security. But he desired first to know for whom the money should be: and understanding it was for Queen Margaret, denied to lend any money, though at length the said Hawkins descended so low as to require but one hundred pounds, and departed without any penny lent him.

Judge Markham, in a grave speech, did recapitulate, select, and collate the material points on either side, shewing, that the proof reached not the charge of high treason, and misprission of treason was the highest it could amount to; and intimated to the jury to be tender in matters of life, and discharge good con-

The jury, being wife men, (whose apprehensions could make up a whole sentence of every nod of the judge) saw it behoved them to draw up treason into as narrow a compass as might be, lest it became their own case; for they lived in a troublesome world, wherein the cards were so shuffled that two kings were turned up trump at once, which amazed men how to play their games. Whereupon they acquitted the prisoner of high treason, and found him guilty as the judge directed.

Yet it cost Sir Thomas Cook, before he could get his liberty, eight hundred pounds to the queen, and eight thousand pounds to the king: a sum in that age more sounding like the ransom of a prince than the fine of a subject. Besides, the lord Rivers (the queen's father) had, during his imprisonment, despoiled his houses, one in the city, and another in the country, of plate and surniture, for which he never received a penny recompence. Yet God righted him of the wrongs men did him, by blessing the remnant of his estate to him and his posterity, which still slourish at Giddy-Hall, in Essex.

As for Sir John Markham, the king's displeasure fell so heavy on him, that he was outed of his place, and Sir Thomas Billing put in his room, though the one lost that office with more honour than the other got it, and gloried in this, that though the king could make him no Judge, he could not make him a corrupt Judge. He lived privately the rest of his days, having got a fair estate by his practice.

Sir RICHARD PERROTT.

N examination of these volumes, I * perceive that the family of Perrott is omitted; but wishing to do strict justice to all mankind, I now insert a short account of Sir Richard and his family, from a curious pedigree lest by him in the hands of the late Mr. Kimber; which shews, that the said Sir Richard descends from a princely line, at the head of which stands Brutus, the first King of Britain; but, in confirmation

of this pedigree, and a proof that Sir Richard Perrott is a baronet, I here infert the Fiat of his Majesty, as it now stands properly authenticated in the Heralds office.

GEORGE R.

GEORGE, the Third, by the Grace of God, King of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, &c. To our right trusty and right well-beloved cousin and counsellor, Richard earl of Scarborough, deputy to our right trufty and right entirely-beloved cousin Edward duke of Norfolk, earl marshal, and our hereditary earl marshal of England, greeting. Whereas, to avoid all doubts and dispute about the rank and precedency of our trufty and well-beloved subject Sir Richard Perrott, baronet, we have thought fit hereby to fignify our royal pleasure, and declare, that he the said Richard Perrott, and the heirs male of his body lawfully begotten, fhall have and enjoy in all places, affemblies, and meetings, the place, rank, preheminence, precedency, privileges and immunities of, or belonging to, the degree of a baronet of this our realm, and to take place, and commence, as from the first day of July, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen: Our will and pleasure is, that you Richard earl of Scarbofough, deputy to the faid earl marshal, require and command that this our order and declaration be registered in our college of arms, to the end that our officers of arms, and all others, may take full notice and have knowledge thereof, for which this shall be your warrant. Given at our court at St. James's, the third day of January, 1767, in the seventh year of our reign.

By his Majesty's command,H. S. CONWAY.'

There are, perhaps, few families at this time existing, who can boast of so long and noble a pedigree, who can sink so deep into the bosom of antiquity, as this I am now treating of.—
The pedigree abovementioned is introduced by the following dedication: "This pedigree of the most noble and princely house of Perrott, descended from a most numerous race of Kings, monarchs of Britain, was collected from the British annals, which will bear record of the truth, and that it is no siction, which will bear record of the truth, and that it is no siction, noble and puissant prince, Sir James Perrott, marquis of Nerbeth, earl and viscount Carew, and baron Perrott, by his lordship's poor, but most faithful servant, Owen Griffiths, who was wounded by his side in Carew castle, 1650."

The first person mentioned in this perigree is Brutus, who first inherited this land, which after him was called Britain. This was about the year of the works 1855, and 1116 tears before the birth of Cariff. Authors have nitherto different from whence Britain derived its name; but here that matter seems to be settled. Brutus was succeeded by fix other kings, Madoc, Mymbyr, Estroc, Brutus, and Leon, who lived about the time in which Solomon built Jerusalem.

Leon was su ceeded by king Rhumbalade Briss, and king Bleuddydyd, who built the city of Bath, and made the baths there. He was succeeded by king Lyr, and he by Hewin Rhegaw, prince of Cornwall, who married the daughter and heir of king Lyr, and had iffue Seifillt, king of Britain, in whose time Romulus and Remus built Rome.

King Scifillt was succeeded by fix princes, and three British kings, the last of which, Beli, took the city of Rome, and plundered it, and also Germany, Gaul, &c. Beli was succeeded in a regular line, by thirty-two British kings and nineteen princes, whose names are all mentioned in this pedigree, which therr comes down to Malegwn Gwynedd, king of all Britain, Anno Dom. 586.

He was succeeded by Rhun, Beli, Iago, Cadsan, and Cadwallan, king of the Britains, who made a dreadful war against the Saxons, and, in one battle, slew, with his own hand, in the year 633, Edwin, king and monarch of the Saxons, and Offred, his ton; also Ofrick, king of Deira, and Ansred, king of Bernicia.

Cadwallan was succeeded by Cadwallader, king of the Britains, who died at Rome, Anno Dom. 689. His beir was Edwal Ywrch, king of Wales, who was succeeded by Roderick Malwynoc, who had two sons, Howell, prince of Anglesey, and king of Man, from whom proceeded a most noble, royal, and princely samily, some of his descendants marrying the daughter of king Alfred the Great. The other son was Conam Tyndaythy, king of Wales, whose daughter and sole heir, Eighth, married Mersyn, lord of Anglesey, and king of all Wales, in right of his wife. They left issue Rodney Maur, the great king of all Wales.

He left issue two sons: Anarawd, king of North Wales, sometimes called King of Aberfrew, his palace, from whom proceeded a most noble, royal, and princely family. His other son, his successor, was Cadeth, king of South Wales, sometimes called king of Dynsd, his palace. His successor was Howel Dha, the good king of all Wales, the Lycurgus, or

This good king was succeeded by Owen, king of South Wales, anno 948, and he by lord Jestyn, his third son, who left issue Rhudderch, and he, Richard, prince of South Wales, who was slain anno 1031. He was succeeded by Rice, and Rice by Marchion, who left an only daughter and heir, the princess Hellen, or Ellyn, of whom more presently.

I must now return to Howel, prince of Anglesea, and king of Man, son of Roderick Malwynock, king of Wales, who lived anno 808. From this Howel descended, through a line of princes and nobles, William, surnamed De Perrott, (the first of that name I meet with in this pedigree) so called from Castle Perrott, which he built in Britanny, and the town of Perrott, one league from it. Anno 957, he made an expedition into England, and obtained some lands in Wessex, on a river asserwards called Perrott, and is to this day vulgarly named Parret, in Somersetshire; but William aspiring to too much power, was obliged to retire back in haste to Britany.

He left issue, Richard Perrott, de Castel Perrott, who married Bonna, daughter of Rollo the Dane, duke of Normandy, by whom he had William Perrott, de Castel Perrott. He married a daughter of count de la Mare, and had issue,

Sir Richard Perrot, Seigneur de Perrot, in Britany, anno 1066. He furnished the Conqueror with his quota of ships and men, with whom he came over to England, the antient possessions of the kings his ancestors. He was knighted by William, and went to take possession of the lands which formerly belonged to earl William, in Somersetshire, and began there a city, whose remains are North and South Perrot, between which two the river Perrot rises, and runs into the Severn. Sir Richard married Blanche, daughter of Sancho Ramyro, second king of Arragon, and had iffue,

Sir Stephen Perrott, who growing too powerful in the lands he inherited in Somersetshire, king Henry I. called him thence, and gave him as much lands as he could conquer in South Wales, which was then in consusion. He was obliged to leave, though with regret, the infant city his father had sounded, and to which he had given the name of Perrot; but not being able to contest it with Henry, he went into Gloucestershire to raise forces. Not willing, however, to lead his troops into a country of which he knew nothing, he went to Wales in disguise, in order to view the state of it, and was there struck with the beauty of the princess Hellen, daughter and sole heir of Marchion, beforementioned. She was no less charmed with his graceful stature, his amiable and majestic countenance, and most wonderful brilliant and piercing eye, which commanded reverence from all that beheld it. The conquest of this princes, whom he married, gained him great part of that country, and his magmanimity, valour, and undaunted courage, the respect and love of the people. They had iffue one fon,

Sir Andrew Perrott, lord of Lyflynson, who claimed the kingdom of Wales in right of his mother Hellen, and collected a body of forces to defend his crown. The king of England marched a numerous army into Wales, to take the advantage of the disorders there; the knowledge of which, and a sum of money the king of England offered him by the bishop of Sc. David's, with a grant of the land for twenty miles round his camp, brought Sir Andrew to declare for that prince, who knighted him, and Sir Andrew did him homage for his lands. He built, on the very spot where his army was encamped, a castle, which he called Hubeth, or Narbeth, now in Pembrokeshire, and placed a garrison there to defend his lands, in the year 1112. These lands were afterwards converted into a foreft, and is called the forest of Narbeth. Sir Andrew married Janett, daughter of Ralph, lord Mortimer, afterwards earl of March, by Gladis Dee, daughter of Lewellyn ap Forworth, king of South Wales, descended from William the Conqueror. They had iffue two fons, Cradog, and

Sir William Perrott, lord of Lyklynston, and knight banneret. He married Margaret, sister to Sir Walter Hereford, Knt. of Tregaynt, Pembrokeshire, and had issue two sons, Peter and William, and one daughter, Elizabeth.

Peter Perrott was lord of Lystynston, and married Margaret, daughter and heir of Caveston, in Pembrokeshire. By her he had two sons, Ralph and Stephen. Ralph was summoned to parliament 25 Edw. I. and died without issue.

Stephen Perrott, the fecond fon, continued the line, and succeeded to his brother's manor. He married Mabley, daughter and heir of ——— Castle, lord of Castleton, in the county of Pembroke, by whom he had two sons, John and Thomas.

John Perrott, lord of Iystynston, &c. married Jonett, daughter and heir of Sir John Joyce, of Prendlegast, Knt. and lord of Bingest. They had issue three sons: Robert, member for Wallingsord, in Berks, temp. Edw. III. Sir William; and Peter, their successor.

Peter succeeded to the aforesaid manors, and married Ales, daughter and heir of Sir Richard Harold, lord of Haroldston.

He was succeeded by his only son and heir,

Stephen Perrott, who married Helene, daughter and fole heir of John Howell, lord of Woodstock, and left issue two sons and one daughter: Sir Thomas, of whom presently; Henry; and Agnes, wife of William Warren, of Warrington.

Sir

Sir Thomas Perrott, who was lord of several manors, married Alice, daughter and heir of John Picton. By this marriage fourteen heritages and lordships came to the Perrots, she being of the original blood of Sir Guy de Bryan, knight of the garter, and baron of Lachain. They had issue one son and heir,

Thomas Perrott, who married Jonett, daughter and fole heir of John Gwife, Efq; who was paternally descended from Philip Gwife, lord of Wiston, or Castel Grys. They had two sons,

Elliot, and

Sir William Perrott, who married Margaret, (some say Alice, others Jane) daughter of Sir Henry Wogan, of Wiston, whose mother was sister to Sir William Herbert, the first earl of Pembroke of that name. They had issue one son, Sir Owen, and four daughters, Alice, Jane, Anne, and Alfon.

Sir Owen Perrott, knight banneret, lord of Iystynston, &c. was the man in whom Henry the Seventh consided his design of attempting the crown. By Sir Owen's advice, he landed at Milford, where he affisted and attended him with men and money. He was so nearly related to him by the Tudor line, and a deleent from the Plantagenets, that the king's letters stilled him Our dearly-beloved cousin. He married Catharine, daughter of Sir Robert Poynes, of Acton, in Gloucestershire, by a daughter of Anthony Woodville, earl Rivers and Scales, whose mother was Jonet, daughter of Peter of Luxenburgh, earl of St. Pauls. They had issue one son and heir, Sir Thomas, and one daughter, Mary, married to George White, of Henlhan, Esq.

Sir Thomas Perrott was lord of several manors, and married Mary, daughter and sole heir of James Barkley, son of Mourice, lord Berkley. She was lineally descended from William de Albano, earl of Arundel, who married Adeliza, daughter of Godfrey, duke of Lorraine, and the widow of King Henry I. son of William de Albano, to whom William the Conqueror gave the castle of Bockenham, in Norsolk, in tenure of Grand Sargeantry, to be the king's butler at his coronation. After Sir Thomas's death, his wife married Sir Thomas Jones, Knt. of Albemarles, from whom the family of Cornwallis are descended. Sir Thomas had issue two sons, Sir John and Owen, and two daughters, Jane and Elizabeth.

Sir John Perrott was lord of Haroldston, and of Langhorn, which castle he built; he was likewise lord of Carew and its castle, to which he added the fine part called Castle Perrot, &c. He was lord deputy, lieutenant general, and general governor of the kingdom of Ireland, admiral of England, a lord of the privy council, knight of the bath, &c. He possessed an estate of 22,000l. per annum, and died Nov. 3, 1599. He married

Anne.

Anne, (daughter of Sir Thomas Cheyney, knight of the most noble order of the garter, and lord warden of the cinque ports) fifter to Henry lord Cheyney. By her he had one fon, his successor, Thomas, and a daughter, Mary, married to Sir John Phillipps, Bart. anno 1622. Sir John married, secondly, Jane Polard, by whom he had two fons, William, a colonel of dragoons, and flain for his allegiance; and Sir James, who anarried the daughter and heir of Sir Thomas Afhfield, lord of Aylesbury, Buckinghamshire. Sir James garrisoned Carew and Langham castles with 1130 men, all 2t his own expence, armed properly to sustain a siege of the enemies of his sovereign, to whom he offered them as places of fecurity, when the king's troubles encreased. He placed culverines on the walls, and supplied it with plenty of ordnance. He was of the king's council; and such was his affection to him for his loyalty, that he ordered a warrant for a patent, creating him marquis of Narbeth, earl and viscount Carew, and baron Perrott. After King Charles the Second's reftoration, he neglected this family, whose castles had been torn from them, their estates plundered, and some given to Oliver's adherents; themselves loaded with fines, and their houses and parks destroyed. He left the remnant of his fortune to Sir Herbert Perrott, of whom hereafter, and died in 1641.

I now return to Sir Thomas Perrott, (only son of Sir John Perrott, by his first wise) who was created a baronet, June 29, 1611, but died before his patent was made out. He married Dorothy, daughter of Walter Devereux, earl of Essex, and sister to the unfortunate earl, Queen Elizabeth's savourite. This lady, after the death of Sir Thomas, married Percy; earl of Northumberland. He lest two daughters: Dorothy, married to James Perrott, (descended from Owen Perrott, uncle of the above Sir Thomas Perrott, Bart.) and Penelope, married first to Sir William Lower, and afterwards to Sir Robert Nauton, principal secretary of state.

I now go back to Owen Perrott, fon of Sir Thomas Perrott, by Mary his wife, daughter and fole heir of James Barklay. He married Etheldred, daughter of Henry Scurfield, of the Moat: She was of the whole blood of of Hugh Le Brune, count of Lufignan, &c. of the royal house of France, by Isabel, daughter and heir of Aymer, earl of Angolesme, and widow of John, king of England. This Owen Perrott died in 1597, and left one son.

Thomas Perrott, who married the daughter and heir of —, lord of Willington under Dinmer, in the county of Hereford. He left two fons, Humphry, of Bilne, in the county of Worcester; and James.

James Perrott was lord of Wellington, under Dimner, &c. and married Dorothy, daughter of Sir Thomas Perrot, Bart. by Dorothy his wife, daughter of Devereux, earl of Effex, beforementioned. By her he had iffue, three fons and one daughter, Sir Herbert, Francis, James, and Damles, who married and had iffue.

- 1. Sir Herbert Perrot was lord of feveral manors, and was feverely fined by Oliver, who plundered his fine houses; he was a man of great wit, and very charitably disposed. He married three wives; first, Sybill, daughter and coheir of Thomas Lloyd, Efg; by whom he had Herbert Perrott, a man of refined parts, who wrote many lampoons on Charles, and other fevere fatires, on his neglecting the families who had facrificed their fortunes, and exposed their persons, in espousing the cause of their fovereign. On this account it is supposed, that captain South was the more readily pardoned, after his condemnation, for stabbing Herbert in the back, as he turned from him in the paffage of the Devil Tavern, Fleet-street, London; in which place he had vanquished South, and, on his knees, delivered him his fword, bidding him thank his daughter for his life. He died without iffue. Sir Herbert married, secondly, Hester, daughter of William Barlow, of Slebatch, Esq; by whom he had one daughter, Hester, who married Sir John Pakington, of Westwood, Worcestershire, Bart. Sir Herbert married, thirdly, Frances, daughter of Sir Francis Norris, Knt. by whom he had no

3. James Perrott, who died in 1683, and was buried in St.

Mary's church, Haverfordwest.

Francis Perrott, of Upper Bignal Hill, before mentioned, died in 1680. He married the widow Stonier, of Lower Bignall Hill, in Staffordshire, and by her had several children, of which,

Richard Perrott continued the line. He married Anne, daughter of Gabriel Smith, of the Brookhouse, in Cheshire, by whom he had issue several children: 1. Sir James Perrot, employed in many capacities by the government; and, on his relinquishing a balance due to him for the redemption of British slaves, was, on the first of July, 1716, created a baronet, with limitation to the eldest son of his brother Richard, and his heirs male; but not permitted to take rank from the original grant of this dignity to Sir Francis Perrott, knight and baronet, June 29, 1611. The other children were Delicia, who died unmarried: Stonier, of Hawksbury, Tackly, &c. in the county of Warwick, Esq; (who married Anne, daughter of Francis Place, of York Place, Esq; by whom he had issue, Richard, Francis, and Anne) Francis, of Falk of the Hill, who died without issue in 1734, having married Alicia, daughter of John Burn, Esq; of Newcastle; Naomy, who married Valentine Stead, of Halifax; Anne, who married, first, ---- Oldham. and afterwards - Spendelow, and died in 1731; laftly, Richard Perrott, who married Rebecca, daughter of Isaac Wyke, of Wacton-court, in Herefordshire, Esq; paternally descended from Wyke, a knight, to whom William the Conqueror granted divers lands on the banks of the Humber, whereon he founded a fair mansion for the reception of weary pilgrims. It was afterwards exchanged with the crown, and is at prefent known by the name of Kingstown on Hull, vulgarly called The different lordships named after this family, shews its early consequence. They had issue, Sir Richard Perrot, the present baronet, James, M. D. and Eleazer.

Thus have I given a fair extract of that curious pedigree, which Sir Richard very obligingly lent Mr. Kimber. There remains nothing at prefent, but to give the substance of a paper which Mr. Kimber received at the same time.

The present baronet is of a military genius, and was in service in East India, before he was fourteen years old, since which he has visited most of the habitable globe. His present majesty of Prussia found him of so active a disposition, that he consided solely to him the sole care of his intended marine: the following was the commission he was honoured with for that purpose.

'NOUS Frederick, par la Grace de Dieu, Roi de Prusse, Margrave de Brandenburg, Archi-Chambellan, & Prince Electeur du St. Empire Romain, &c. &c. &c. à notre aimé & féal serviteur, le Sr Richard Perrott, salut. Nous vous constituons, par les presentes, notre commandant de vaisseaux. & vous vous autorisons, par ces lettres patentes, de prendre à notre service autant de vaisseaux de guerre, & autant de compagnies de marine, que vous jugeres necessaires, pour defendre nos côtes, & pour protéger le commerce de nos fidéles fujets, contre les depredations de nos ennemis. Nous vous e permettons, & vous autorisons, de prendre à nôtre service, & de donner des commissions à un tel nombre d'officers, qu'il fera juge necessaire pour commander nos vaisseaux. Nous vous ordonnons, par les presentes, de courir sus, de prendre, de bruler, de couler à fond, & de ruiner, tous les vaisseaux de guerre, vaisseaux marchands, marchandises & effects, appartenants à l'Imperatrice Reine, au Roi de Suede, & au Grand 6 Duc

A lord high admiral of Great Britain could not have been vested with more extensive powers. When Sir Richard was told, it would be given in charge to all ships, from Whitehall; to search the Prussian ships of war for British sailors, he replied, They might, if they carried more metal than he did; but the wise and prudent arrangements of the ever-glorious Pitt, prevented this young hydra (under the command of a Briton) rising to a formidable maritime force, or we might, in time, have had another power to have disputed with us the sovereignty of our native element.

ARMs: If the foregoing pedigree may be confidered as curious, the Arms can be no less so, which are the grandest in this work, and are as follows: 1. Modern Perrott: Gules, three Pears, Or; on a Chief, Argent, a demi Lion issuant, Sable, armed of the Field. 2. Roderick the Great, King of all Wales: Gules, a Cheveron, Argent, between three Roses of the second; leaved Vert, seeded Or. 3. Tudor Maur, king of Wales, the great ancestor of Henry the Seventh, and the prefent line on the throne: Gules, within a Bordure, indented, Or, a lion rampant, of the fecond. 4. Sir Guy de Bryan, knight of the garter in the time of Edward III. Or, three Piles, Azure, issuant from the Chief. 5. Berkley, 6. Devereux, earls of Effex. The whole within a Bordure Royal of three, charged with England and France, quarterly, and Ireland, in bafe, The bordure furmounted in precise middle Chief, by the Arms of Ulster, as a baroner's distinction.

CREST: On a knightly helmet, the antient royal Chapeau, thereon a Lion of Britain imperially capped; but Sir Richard having generally bor'n the Parret for his Crest, I have chosen to continue that in our engraving.

SUPPORTERS: On the dexter fide, an antient Briton, armed and blazoned proper. On the finister, a Dragon, Gules; in the transparent display of his Wings, the antient British Arms: Quarterly, Gules, and Or, sour Lions passant, guardant, counterchanged.

MOTTO: Amo ut invenio:

ELTON, of the city of Bristol.

Page 53, line 16 from the bottom, after the second parliament of that king, add, he likewise served the office of one of the sheriffs of the city of Bristol, in 1702, and that of mayor in 1710.

Same page, line 14, inftead of, by whom he left two fons, read three fons, Sir Abraham, his succeffor, Isaac, and Jacob. Isaac, the second son, was a merchant. He died the 23d of October, 1714, aged thirty-four years, and was buried at St. Philip's, Bristol. He had two daughters, named Mary, who were both buried with him.

Same page, line 5 from the bottom, after now living and unmarried, add, This son, Abraham, served the office of one of the sherists of Bristol, in 1736, and that of mayor in 1753, and was likewise an alderman. He died Aug. 15, 1762, and was buried, with his first wise, at White Staunton, in Somersetshire. Isaac, the second of Jacob, also served the office of one of the sherists of Bristol, in 1743, and that of mayor, in 1761, and was likewise an alderman.

Page 54, line 15, after, and has iffue, add, Sir Abraham Elton, Bart. had likewise one daughter; Elizabeth, who married Peter Day, of the city of Bristol, Esq. She died Nov. 6, 1718, aged twenty-six, and was buried at St. Philip's.

WILMOT, of Chaddesden, Derbyshire.

At the time we printed a short account of this family, page 151 of this volume, we were in no hopes of obtaining the following particulars, which were entered in the heralds-office but a short time before the publication of this work. However, having been favoured by the office with a genuine copy thereof, we gladly embrace the opportunity of laying it before our readers.

The name of Wilmot, or Wylimot, for it has been variously written in different ages, is very antient in England. Speed mentions Wilmot, a nobleman of Sussex, in the reign of king Ethelred.

This family, as we find by deeds now in their poffession, (some of which were made before the custom of dating deeds began, others bear date in 1282, 10 Edward I. and in the reigns of succeeding kings) was settled soon after, if not before, the Conquest, at Sutton-upon-Soar, in the county of Nottingham, where several of the name of Wylimot appear to have lived; from which place some of them removed in the time of Edward III. to Bonyngton, in that neighbourhood and county, since called Sutton Bonyngton; for, in a deed, bearing date 4 Richard II. Robert Wylimot is stilled of Bonyngton, where his son Robert appears to have been in possession of lands in 9 Hen. IV. and the lordship and chief rents of Sutton Bonyngton appear to have been in the family till the latter end of the last century.

We find Richard Wylimot, William Wylymot, John Wylymot, and Ralph Wyllymot, to have been likewife possessor of lands in Bonyngton, in the time of Hen IV. where the family resided till their removal into Derbyshire, in the time of Henry the Eighth, in which century they made many considerable purchases, some of which appear to have been sold again, in 1507, to raise money for the purchase of other estates

Robert Wyllymot came to reside at Derby about the year 1539, and had a son named Robert, who resided at Spoondon, and married Elizabeth, the daughter of Mr. Edward Simby, of that place, and by her had two sons, Robert and Edward, and three daughters: Alice, married to —— Bainbridge, M. D. the second daughter married Mr. Henry Holden, of ——, in the county of Derby; Mary, the third daughter, married Mr. Babington, of the town of Derby.

Edward was, in Queen Elizabeth's time, a confiderable merchant in London; and Robert, the eldest, who resided at Chaddesden, lived to a great age, and died in 16g8. He married Dorothy, daughter and heir of Edward Shrigby, of Shrigby, in Cheshire, Esq; and by her had issue five sons and two daughters: Robert, John, Edward, Richard, and Thomas. The daughters were, Amy, married to Edward Charlton, Esq; and Elizabeth, the wife of Robert Miller, Efq.

Thomas died in his infancy, and John died a bachelor; Robert, the eldest, married Mary, the daughter of William Rowton, of Chaddesden, Esq; by whom he had only one daughter, who died young; Nicholas, born in Dec. 1611, was a student and at length a bencher at Gray's-Inn, in the county of Middlesex, where he took his degree of serjeant at law. He was honoured by the Cavendish samily with particular marks of confidence and trust, relative to the restoration of King Charles II. who was pleased to express his intentions to promote him in his profession; but, not being tempted by lucrative views to exchange a private for a public life, he modestly declined preserges and the state of the sta ment in the law, but received the honour of knighthood from his majesty. He was, by the earl of Clare, in 1661, appointed deputy of the town and county of Nottingham; and, in the year 1666, had a deputation of the same office from the marquis of Dorchester. He married Dorothy Harpur, daughter of Sir John Harpur, of Calke, in the county of Derby, Bart. by whom he had two sons, Robert and Nicholas, and three daughters: 1. Dorothy, married to Francis Rewell, of Carnfield, or Carlingthwaite, in the county of Derby, Esq; 2. Barbara, married to William Bainbrigge, of Lochington, in the county of Leicester, Esq; and, 3. Elizabeth, married to Nicholas Charnelle, of Snareston, in the said county of Leicester, Esq.

Nicholas, the younger fon, was of Gray's-Inn, in the county of Middlesex, and called to the bar. He married the daughter of - Chaloner, of Duffield, in the county of Derby, Efq. by whom he had one ion, Robert, and one daughter, Dorothy, who married — Jones, a merchant in London. Robert married Mary, eldest daughter of Edward Bigland, Esq; of Longwhatton, in the said county, serjeant at law, (formerly one of the representatives in parliament for the town of Nottingham. descended from the Biglands of Bigland, in the county palatine of Lancaster) by whom he had one son, Edward, and two daughters: Mary, married to Cordell Stors, of Gainsborough, Eig; and Arabella, married to Mr. John Rotton, of Duffield, áforelaid, and the said Edward married Mrs. Hatfield, since deceased, daughter and heir of - Hatfield, of the city of London, Esq; and by her had one son, Edward, now a barrister of the Middle Temple, and yet a bachelor; and Mary, who is unmarried.

Robert, the eldest son of Sir Nicholas, was of Magdalen-Hall, in the university of Oxford, from whence he removed to Gray's-Inn. Many applications were made to him, to promote the arbitrary views and designs of King James the Second, which he not only withstood, but professed himself an enemy to all tyrannical and unconstitutional proceedings; and, for his known zeal for the cause of liberty and the revolution, was, on the 5th of July, 1689, appointed a deputy lieutenant for the county of Derby, and had the honour to represent that town in the second parliament of King William and Queen Mary. In 1695, he was much pressed by William, the hist duke of Devonshire, to continue in parl:ament, but declined being re-chosen, and was fucceeded in that borough by lord Henry Cavendish, his Grace's second son. He had the offer of places of trust and profit: but residence and attendance in town affecting his health, he retired to his seat at Ormation, which he rebuilt, where he passed the remainder remainder of his life, and died in 1722, aged eighty-two. He married Elizabeth, daughter, and at length sole heir, of Edward Eardly, of Eardly-Hall, in the county of Stafford, Esq. possessed of considerable estates in that county, by whom he had seven sons: Robert, Nicholas, Edward, John, Charles, Christopher, and Henry; and one daughter, Anne, married to Ro-

FLEMING, of Brumpton-Park, Middlesex.

Page 195. After the last line, add, On a gravestone in West-minster-Abbey, is the following inscription: 6 Underneath thia stone, near the remains of his uncle, major-general Fleming, and his best of friends, lieutenant-general Hargrave, to whose memory he hath erected the two monuments in the aile adjoining, lies the body of Sir John Fleming, of Brumpton-park, in the county of Middlesex, Bart. who died Nov. 5, 1763, aged sixty-one years. And underneath the same stone lies the body of his son, Hargrave-William Fleming, by his wife Jane Fleming, only daughter of William Colman, Esq. who died Oct. 7, 1763, aged seven years. Also his daughter, Catharine-Elizabeth Fleming, who died July 7, 1767, aged ten years."

On another grave-stone, near the above, is the following infeription: "Miss Margaret Fleming, daughter of Sir John "Fleming, Bart. died April 17, 1769, aged seven years."

On the top of the above stone are the Arms of this family a A Cheveron, within a double Tressure, Flory, Counterstory.

The account of the three following families, though generally believed to have failed, are here inferted, that we may not, upon mere prefumption, prefume to treat those titles as extinct, of which there is a probability they may be still existing. We have continued them to the present time; but, as such continuation is neither from the baronets themselves, or any of their relations, and only from uncertain information, we do not give them as matters wholly to be relied on.

RICH, of Sunning, Berkshire.

Created BARONET March 20, 1660.

THIS family is of Gloucestershire, and divided into several branches, one of which was William Rich, of Mynty, who married the daughter of John Packer, of Cheltenham, in Gloucestershire, and was father of Thomas Rich, of Gloucester city, alderman in 1600, who, besides his paternal estate, was seised of the manor of Astwood-Court, in Worcestershire. He married Anne, daughter of Thomas Machyn, of Gloucester, and had a son, Thomas; and a daughter, Anne, married first to Toby Clements, of Gloucestershire; and, secondly, to John Hanbury, of Teckenham, in Worcestershire, Esq. On his decease, his estate descended to his eldest son,

Thomas Rich, Efq; who, being fortunate in his ventures as a Turkey-merchant, raised a large estate, and was of an uncommon charitable disposition and generous spirit : he supplied his unhappy fovereign abroad with large fums of money, and supported at home the oppressed clergy, particularly bishop Brownrigg; and, though he had many children, at his death left fixteen thousand pounds in public charities. He was, soon after the Restoration, advanced to the dignity of a baronet by King Charles the Second. He married two wives: I. Barbara, daughter of Gilbert Morewood, of Seale, in Leicestershire, Efq; by whom he had one fon, Gilbert, who died without iffue. His fecond wife was Elizabeth, daughter of William Cockain, Efg; alderman of London, of the lord viscount Cullen's family. He died at Sunning, Oct. 15, 1667, aged fixtyfix, and lies buried in the church of Sunning, in Bucks, under a handsome monument, with a Latin inscription thereon.

When Sir Thomas's lady died, the followed her husband's example, and left several thousand pounds in annual charities for ever, to debtors in Ludgate, St. Peter-le-Poor, and to clergymens widows. Sir Thomas left one son, Sir William, his successor successor, and one daughter, Mary, who married Sir Robert Gayer, Knight of the Bath.

Sir William Rich, Bart, his eldert son, succeeded him in title and estate. He represented the city of Gioucester in parliament, 2698, and married lady Anne Bruce, daughter to Robert, earl of Ailesbury, by whom he had only one son:

Sir Robert Rich, Bart, who succeeded his father in title and effate, in 1711, and married Mary, daughter of Sir William Walter, of Sarsiden, in the county of Oxford, Bart. (by his wife, the lady Mary Tuston, daughter of the earl of Thanet) by whom he had several children, of which sive some were living in 1741. I. Sir William, his successor, in title. 2. Thomas, in 1741, at Bombay, in the East-Indies. 3. Charles. 4. James; and, 5. Daniel Rich, of the Temple, Esq. Of his daughters, only two lived to be married; one to Capt. Wilson, of the guards, and the other to Walter Knight, of Ruscomb, in Berks, Esq. Sir Robert died, Nov. 9, 1724. (but his lady, who survived him, was living at Sunning, in Berks, in 1741) and was succeeded by his eldest sen,

Sir William Rich, Bart. who, dying unmarried, July 17,

Sir Thomas Rich, his nephew, who is faid to be the prefent parener.

Other accounts fay, that Sir William married, and, at his death, was forceeded by his fon; but cannot take upon us as fay which of them (purhaps misher) is right.

JOCELYN, of Hyde-Hall, Hertfordsbire.

Created BARONET June 8, 1665.

THIS family is of great antiquity; for, after the Romans had been masters of Britain five hundred years, wearied with the wars, they took their final farewell of it, and carried away with them a great many of their brave old British soldiers, who had served them in their wars, both at home and abroad, to whom they gave Armorica, in France, for their former fervices; which country was, from them, called afterwards Little Britain. It is supposed there were some of this samily amongst them, and that they gave the same name, as now given, exactly agreeable to one of the towns in that country, as may be seen in all the maps: and, very probably, they returned with William the Conqueror; for we find, in 1066, the first year of his coming over, mention made of Sir Gilbert Jocelyn, who is supposed to be the father of Gilbert, who sounded the abby of Sempringham, in Lincolnshire, about the reign of King Stephen, and became author of a religious order called Gilbertines.

Sir Henry Chauncy, in his antiquities of Hertfordshire, gives

Vol. III,

1. Gilbert Joceline, living 1066, father of

2. Geoffrey, who, by the daughter of John Biffet, had if-

6. Henry, who married Jane, daughter of William Castlin, and had iffue,

7. Ralph, living 3 Johan. who, by Beatrix, had iffue,

8. John, living 10 Hen. III. who married Catharine, daughter of Sir Thomas Battell, (or Battail,) Knt. and was father of,

g. Thomas, who is thus mentioned in a charter; 'Thomas, fon of John Jocelyn, fends greeting, &c. grants to God, and the church of St. Mary, and St. Laurence de Blackmore, and canons ferving God there, for the falvation of his own foul, and of his ancestors, all the lands, cum domibus & hortis, * & omnibus aliis pertinentiis, quam clericus Pecket aliquando teo nuit de Joanne, patre meo, in villa mea de Selges, que terr. vocatur Capell. Witness, Willo, filio Tho. de Clare, Tho. de la · Maca, Joh. de Merke, Willo, fratre ejus, Allano de Coggeshale. This Thomas, in 33 Hen. III. married Maud, daughter and coheir of Sir John Hyde, of Hyde-hall, in Sabridgeworth, in Hertfordshire, Knt. (by Elizabeth, his wife, daughter of John Sudeley, baron of Sudeley, in the county of Gloucester;) by this match this lordship came into the family, in whose possession it hath continued for five hundred years, to this day, being their chief feat. This lady, furviving her husband, became the wife of Nicholas Villers, Efg; progenitor to the late dukes of Buckingham of that name.
